Family Doctors and Public Planning

JOHN R. BUTLER

With J. M. Bevan and R. C. Taylor

A major aim of the National Health Service is to achieve a fairer geographical distribution of resources. This study looks at the effectiveness of incentives offered to GP's to move to 'under-doctored' areas. It also presents the important results of a survey conducted among a sample of GP's in England which constitute one of the most up-to-date sources of data about effectiveness and deficiencies of current man-power policies in general practice. £4.25

Mental Handicap and Community Care

A Study of Mentally Handicapped People in Sheffield

MICHAEL BAYLEY

The mentally handicapped are people who need help for the whole of their lives. Dr Bayley's basic theme, which he examines with particular reference to the mentally handicapped, is that the care given by the official services of the welfare state can only hope to be effective when they link in with, support and are supported by the informal caring that goes on throughout society. The study will be of considerable value to those responsible for the development of the reorganized social service departments and the new area health boards as well as those more directly concerned with the service for mentally handicapped people. £6.50

Race and Labour in London Transport

Dennis Brooks

London Transport employs a high proportion of immigrant workers, particularly West Indians, and has operated a planned system of recruitment in Barbados. This book provides the first detailed study of race relations in a large industrial organization in Britain and is also one of the very few contributions to the sociology of public transport. £7 Institute of Race Relations

Sikh Children in Britain

A. G. James

Here is an interpretative account for teachers, social workers, and administrators, of the Sikhs living in Britain. The author examines the extent to which the social traditions of Punjabi villages are being maintained in Sikh households here; he argues that the children are developing an awareness of their own special identity that may create tension and unhappiness, but may also lead to a unique and valuable contribution to British culture and society. Paper covers £1.30 Institute of Race Relations

The Politics of the Powerless

A Study of the Campaign Against Racial Discrimination

Benjamin W. Heineman, Jr.

Dr Heineman recounts the history of Britain's main civil rights group of the last decade, the Campaign Against Racial Discrimination. His analysis, based on extensive interviews and research, delineates many problems still facing coloured citizens seeking the power necessary to participate in British politics and society as equals. £4.30 Institute of Race Relations

Black Men, White Cities

Race, Politics, and Migration in the United States 1900-1930 and Britain 1948-68

Ira Katznelson

This is the first systematic comparison of race politics in Britain and the United States across periods of time. Many common features are found. The organizations set up to improve matters in fact impeded the development of black political power and absorbed protest, and in both countries liberal democratic forms were accommodated to the institutional expression of racism. 22 tables £3.50 Institute of Race Relations

Journal of Social Policy

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. All contributions and correspondence should be sent to: The Editor, Journal of Social Policy, The London School of Economics and Political Science, Houghton Street, Aldwych, London WC2A 2AE. All books for review should be sent to: The Review Editor, Journal of Social Policy, Department of Sociology, Goldsmiths' College, University of London, Lewisham Way, London SE14.
2. Articles should generally contain between 5,000 and 10,000 words including footnotes, although longer or shorter articles may be accepted by arrangement with the Editor. Short articles stand a better chance of early publication.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere. If an author is publishing a related article elsewhere, this fact should be stated.
4. Contributions (articles, review articles, reviews) should be clearly typed on one side of the paper only using a conventional size of paper, preferably A4. All material should be typed double-spaced with generous margins. Contributors should send two copies and keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
5. References to books and articles should include the following details: in the case of books, the full title and author or authors, place of publication, publisher and date; in the case of articles, the title and author or authors, full name of the journal, volume, year and page reference (first and last page). References and other footnotes should be numbered consecutively throughout and typed separately at the end of the article. Good articles which contain this bibliographical information will be accepted, even if they do not follow the journal's own arrangement of the information.
6. Tables should be clearly laid out and designed to fit on to a page $9\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Vertical lines between columns should be omitted, and horizontal lines limited to the top and bottom of the table, with an additional one below the column headings. Totals and percentages should be labelled, and units identified.
7. Contributors are advised to look through earlier issues of the journal for guidance on points of general style.
8. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the editor, by airmail where appropriate, within ten days of receiving them. The master proof will always be sent direct to the editor by the printer; contributors will receive duplicates.
9. Authors of articles and review articles (but not book reviews) receive twenty-five free offprints. Additional copies may be bought if ordered at proof stage.
10. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyright, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
