Explorations of Christian Thought

Theological Turning Points Major Issues in Christian Thought Donald K. McKim

In this one-volume handbook Donald McKim traces the historical and systematic development of eight major Christian doctrines. Concisely written and extensively documented, he covers the Trinity, Christology, ecclesiology, anthropology, soteriology, authority, the sacraments, and eschatology, focusing on key issues in the Church's maturing theology. This book "introduces people with little or no background to the history of Christian theology."—Thomas W. Gillespie, President, Princeton Theological Seminary. Paper $13.95

Unapologetic Theology A Christian Voice in a Pluralistic Conversation William C. Placher

This book actively challenges students, scholars, and Christians to address the issue of religion and science by entering into a pluralistic dialogue with individuals of different faiths and theologies. Concerned with the role of current Christian thinking, Placher gives a review of many of the philosophical trends of the last twenty-five years and suggests new avenues for theological investigation. "... well argued and splendidly written. The elegant clarity of Placher's prose may, in fact, belie how ambitious and significant his project really is."—William Werpehowski, Associate Professor of Religious Studies, Villanova University. Paper $13.95

Past Event and Present Salvation A Study in the Christian Doctrine of the Atonement Paul S. Fiddes

Fiddes provides a comprehensive understanding of the doctrine of atonement as one of the central teachings of Christianity. He demonstrates that the event of Christ's crucifixion bears relevance upon the histories of the church, faith, culture, and human experience. Issues such as sacrifice and liberation, forgiveness and suffering are also explored. Paper $14.95

John Calvin's Doctrine of the Christian Life John H. Leith Foreword by Albert C. Outler

John Calvin

A leading interpretation of the Reformed tradition defines Calvin's views on the Christian life in the context of his theology. This book will lead scholars and students into a clearer understanding of what Calvin believed it means to live with God at all times. Hard $16.95
