World Politics Announces Visiting Fellow for 2014–15

Peter A. Hall, the Krupp Foundation Professor of European Studies in the Department of Government at Harvard University, has been named the 2014–15 World Politics visiting fellow. The fellowship is funded by World Politics and hosted by the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies at Princeton University.

Hall, who is also a faculty associate of Harvard's Minda de Gunzburg Center for European Studies and codirector of the Program on Successful Societies at the Toronto-based Canadian Institute for Advanced Research, has published widely on European politics, comparative public policymaking, comparative political economy, and institutional analysis, for which he has received several prizes.

His current research centers on understanding how institutions structure interaction in the political economies of the developed democracies. He is exploring the evolution of “varieties of capitalism” and the political dilemmas generated by the Euro crisis and working on the issues related to methods of political science.

Hall's recent book, Social Resilience in the Neoliberal Era, written with Michèle Lamont, was published in 2013. Earlier works include Successful Societies: How Institutions and Culture Affect Health (2009), coedited with Lamont; Varieties of Capitalism: The Institutional Advantages of Comparative Advantage (2001), coedited with David Soskice; and the Woodrow Wilson Award-winning The Political Power of Economic Ideas (1989).

Fung Global Fellows Program

Princeton University is pleased to announce the call for applications to the Fung Global Fellows Program at the Princeton Institute for International and Regional Studies (PIIRS). Each year the program selects six scholars from around the world to be in residence at Princeton for an academic year and to engage in research and discussion around a common theme. Fellowships are awarded to scholars employed outside the United States who are expected to return to their positions, and who have demonstrated outstanding scholarly achievement and exhibit unusual intellectual promise but who are still early in their careers.

During the academic year 2015/16, the theme for the Fung Global Fellows Program will be “Ethnic Politics and Identities.” Recent events around the world have highlighted the role of ethnic politics and identities in shaping domestic and international political arenas. The Fung Global Fellows Program seeks applications from scholars who explore the causes, narrative modalities, and consequences of the politicization of ethnic, racial, and national divides from a comparative perspective. Researchers working on any historical period of the modern age or region of the world and from any disciplinary background in the social sciences or humanities are encouraged to apply.

Applications are due on November 1, 2014. To be eligible, applicants must have received their Ph.D. (or equivalent) no earlier than September 1, 2005. Fellowships will be awarded on the strength of a candidate’s proposed research project, the relationship of the project to the program’s theme, the candidate’s scholarly record, and the candidate’s ability to contribute to the intellectual life of the program. For more information on eligibility requirements and the application process itself, see the program’s website at <http://www.princeton.edu/funggfp/>
