

P-439 - THE IMPORTANCE OF SPIRITISM TO THE UNDERSTANDING OF THE MECHANISMS OF PSYCHIATRIC DISORDERS

S.Thiesen

Ministry of Health, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

The incidence and prevalence of mental diseases are growing throughout the world and their causes are not yet clearly established in spite of the recent advances in modern psychiatry. Spiritism is the collection of principles and laws, as revealed by the superior spirits, through a natural human condition named mediumship and published in 1857 in Paris. Spiritist Centers are the place of the mediumship meetings with interchange and intellectual relationship with spirits. They are very common in many countries all over the world. Utilizing doctors and mediums with the sensibility to clearly see the spiritist and spiritual realm related to each case of mental disease, we can talk to them and, through dialogue, prayer and energy transfer benefiting them, obtain the dissolution of the ties between them and the patients. That spiritist with revenge, hate, jealousy, rivalry and many other feelings projected to the patients are rescued and guided to a different and better spiritual reality. That ties and disharmony were caused in past lives of that patients in common human experiences and relationships. All that steps of this approach are monitored by the mediums. After that we study the follow-up of each patient and comparing the results we can see a clear benefit and recovery of the majority of cases. Patients with schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, autism, depression and other diagnosis were treated by this approach.

Conclusion: The Spiritism and mediumnistic practice in Spiritist Centers can reveal the spiritual mechanisms of mental disease and to enable the patient's recovery.