QUANTIFYING ARCHAEOLOGY

Stephen Shennan

This book introduces archaeologists to the most important quantitative methods, from the initial description of archaeological data to techniques of multivariate analysis. These are presented in the context of familiar problems in archaeological practice, an approach designed to illustrate their relevance and to overcome the fear of mathematics from which archaeologists often suffer.

Reading the Isotopic Clocks.

Your research in age determination and stable isotopes requires reliable data and custom service. Teledyne Isotopes has the expertise and experience to meet these requirements.

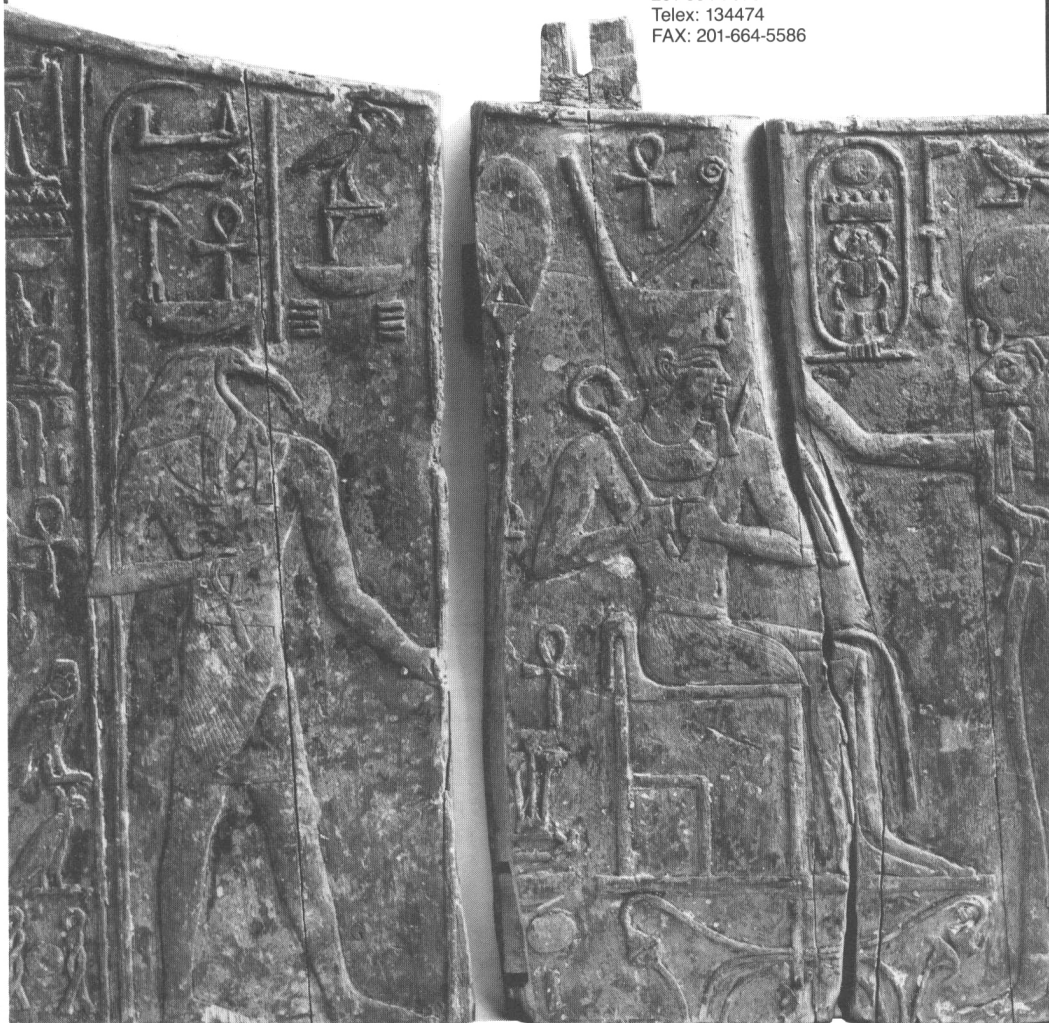

We have been pioneers in the industry since 1955 and are the only commercial laboratory that offers all major age determination techniques.

We can assure you of reliable data because of well-staffed and well-equipped labs, intercalibration with major universities and government facilities, and through use of N.B.S. and international standards.

For the most reliable reading of the isotopic clocks, come to the experts.

NEW!

The first comprehensive encyclopedia to deal with human and primate evolution and prehistoric archaeology and their geological, paleontological, and zoological contexts

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF HUMAN EVOLUTION AND PREHISTORY

Edited by Ian Tattersall, Eric Delson, and John Van Couvering of the American Museum of Natural History

This one volume compendium for both lay persons and scholars covers all aspects of the 65-million-year story of human evolution. Over 750 articles, arranged alphabetically, vary in length from a paragraph to a 5000 word essay. They are the work of a large team of leading anthropologists, archaeologists, primatologists, and geologists, making the volume fully authoritative in all of the subject areas it covers.

Extensive illustrations, with many new drawings and photographs prepared especially for this book, allow users to appreciate to the fullest the essentially visual materials that document the long story of primate and human evolution and prehistoric archaeology.

Among the subjects covered:

- General Terminology (e.g. Anthropology, Palaeobotany)
- Evolutionary Biology (Adaptation, Cladistics, Evolution, Ontogeny)
- Behavioral Biology (Ecology, Primate Societies, Sociobiology)
- Genetics (Chromosome, Molecular Clock, Population, Race)
- Numerical Approaches (Morphometrics, Numerical Taxonomy)
- Morphology including Bodily Systems and Function (Teeth, Skeleton, Skull, Locomotion)
- Systematics (Nomenclature, Taxonomy, Genus, Species)
- Primate Taxa (Anthropoidea, Hominoidea, Apes, Monkeys, Plesiadapidae, Tarsiers)
- Human Fossils (Australopithecus, Homo habilis, Homo erectus, Homo sapiens)
- Geology, Paleontology, Stratigraphy, Chronology (Plate Tectonics, Extinction, Time Scale, Miocene)
- Overviews of Continental Regions
- Fossil Localities (Olduvai Gorge, Neanderthal, Jinniu Shan)
- Archaeology (Aurignacian, Domestication, Middle Paleolithic, Paleolithic Image, Stone-Tool Making)
- Biographies of Significant Scientists (Arambourg, Darwin, Leakey)

A comprehensive system of cross-indexing, embracing over 1,200 topics, enables readers to rapidly locate material that they wish to consult, even where it is spread among several articles.

Maya Iconography

Edited by Elizabeth P. Benson
and Gillett G. Griffin

This volume presents recent work on Maya iconography from practitioners in a variety of fields: archaeology, anthropology, art history, linguistics, astronomy, photography, and medicine. The time period discussed runs from the last centuries B.C. through the great Maya Classic period, with some discussion of later eras and of regions outside the Maya area.

The papers are placed in an order that most clearly brings out the emerging themes: the book shows how certain Maya beliefs grew over time, and for the first time makes connections between Preclassic and Classic iconography.

The Recovery of Meaning

Historical Archaeology in the Eastern United States

MARK P. LEONE and
PARKER B. POTTER, editors

This collection of original essays examines the past two decades of historical archaeology—decades marked by advances in analytical technique, and a vast increase in knowledge of the material life and culture of the past. Rich in data and provocative in theory, these essays show us new ways of listening to the archaeological record.

Stylistic Boundaries among Mobile Hunter-Foragers

C. GARTH SAMPSON

In this study of the valley-wide distribution of South African decorative motifs, the author pioneers a methodology for etching band-territories out of the archaeological surface trace left by mobile hunter-forager societies. Using data gathered from 2,000 square kilometers, Sampson explores the role of decorative style as a means of signaling group identity.
