

PICTURE THEORY

Essays on Verbal and Visual Representation

W. J. T. Mitchell

"Picture Theory will be a classic the moment it appears. Mitchell offers a series of brilliant analyses of theoretical texts, along with marvelous readings of a diverse array of cultural representations. All this in a prose of exemplary force and directness. A perfect sequel to Iconology that is bound to have a great impact across a spectrum of disciplines."
—Michael Fried

"A most exciting work. . . . Picture Theory is located very brilliantly at a juncture when the disciplinary boundaries, as between literature, art history, ethnography, history, etc. are dissolving or ineffective, and when a whole set of new concerns having to do with description, iconology, ideology, power and an enormous variety of media have emerged. . . . no other writer on images and texts...so brilliantly makes the work come alive."—Edward Said

THE VISIBLE WORD

Experimental Typography and Modern Art, 1909-1923

Johanna Drucker

Early in this century, Futurist and Dada artists developed brilliantly innovative uses of typography that blurred the boundaries between visual art and literature. Drucker focuses on the work of four poets—Zdanevich, Marinetti, Apollinaire, and Tzara—to examine the role that experimental typography played in critical debates on the nature and function of the avant-garde.

POETRY OF MOURNING

The Modern Elegy from Hardy to Heaney

Jahan Ramazani

In the first book-length study of the modern elegy, Jahan Ramazani demonstrates that the elegy flourishes in the twentieth century not by reverting to consolations of the past, but by becoming, paradoxically, anti-elegiac.

"This book provides the best account ever written of the modern elegy in English and should be welcomed and valued by any audience that cares about poetry."

—Lawrence Lipking, Northwestern University

QUESTIONS OF EVIDENCE

Proof, Practice, and Persuasion across the Disciplines

Edited by James Chandler, Arnold I. Davidson, and Harry Harootunian

What constitutes "evidence" in research and scholarship? Why do the "rules of evidence" vary in different disciplines? Thirteen essays, originally published in Critical Inquiry, by Carlo Ginzburg, R. C. Lewontin, Joan W. Scott, Simon Schaffer, Eve Kosofsky Sedgwick, and others are accompanied by new critical responses by Jean Comaroff, Elizabeth Helsinger, Thomas C. Holt, Cass R. Sunstein, and others.

CONSCIENCE AND MEMORY

Meditations in a Museum of the Holocaust

Harold Kaplan

Harold Kaplan insists that the Holocaust be viewed not only in terms of personal ethics but modern political ethics as well: for Kaplan the affirmative legacy of the Holocaust is its focus on the dangers of nationalism, racism, and all forms of separatist group identities. The Holocaust, he argues, challenges the historicism, cults of power, and scientific politics of our modernity.

"Conscience and Memory is informed by a profound and long-meditated piety. . . . It is a most compelling work."—Mark Krupnick, author of Lionel Trilling and the Fate of Cultural Criticism.

FALLING INTO THEORY Conflicting Views on Reading Literature

NEW!

David H. Richter, Queens College of the City University of New York
Foreword by Gerald Graff, University of Chicago
1994/paper/297 pages/$9.50 net

- the first book that enables instructors to “teach the conflicts” in undergraduate literature courses
- 29 selections include both popular press versions of academic debates and accessible scholarly pieces
- organized around 3 major questions of contemporary literary studies
- general introduction and part introductions point out to students what is at stake in these debates
- brief and affordable

Just what does ‘teaching the conflicts’ mean, especially when it comes down to what an instructor actually does on an actual Monday morning in a roomful of actual undergraduates? . . . Now, thanks to David Richter, I can refer questioners to a book that not only shows them how to teach the conflicts, but enables them to do it.”
