Austria's Policy in the Austro-Turkish War, 1737-1739

KARL A. ROIDER, JR.

Primarily a diplomatic history, this work analyzes the Habsburg state of the 1730s and the general European framework in which the Austro-Turkish War took place. The author discusses Austria's decision to fight and its diplomatic preparations for the conflict, as well as the course of the fighting itself and its impact on Habsburg decision-making. This valuable study is based on original manuscripts found in the Haus-, Hof- und Staatsarchiv in Vienna.

Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development, 1945-1965

ANTONY C. SUTTON. 1973. This is the third volume of an analysis of the impact of Western technology and skills on the industrial development of the Soviet Union from 1917 until 1965. The hypothesis of the series is that the absorption of Western technology and skills has been by far the most significant factor in the development of the Soviet economy. P113. 500 p. Hard, $15.00

Industrial Management in the Soviet Union

The Role of the CPSU in Industrial Decision-making, 1917-1970

WILLIAM J. CONYNGHAM. 1973. Studies the role of a revolutionary political party during forced industrialization. The author concludes that the Party performed important functions of mobilization during the early phase of industrialization but that its role has become increasingly marginal.

The Berlin Crisis of 1961

Soviet-American Relations and the Struggle for Power in the Kremlin, June-November 1961

ROBERT M. SLUSSER Professor Slusser challenges the view that because traditional source materials are not available recent Soviet history cannot be written. Using all of the sources that are available—newspaper reports, broadcasts, speeches by Soviet officials, diplomatic records—he presents a detailed account of the internal sources of Soviet foreign policy during the 1961 Berlin crisis.

The Myth of Liberation

East-Central Europe in U.S. Diplomacy and Politics since 1941

BENNETT KOVRIG In the first comprehensive account of the evolution of U.S. policy toward East-Central Europe, Bennett Kovrig focuses on the issue of East European self-determination. His book is not only a thorough account of one important sphere of U.S. foreign policy but also a valuable case study of international politics in a bipolar world. $11.50

The Politics of Soviet Agriculture, 1960-1970

WERNER G. HAHN Conflicts over agricultural policy have played a major role in determining the fates of Soviet leaders as prominent as Malenkov, Khrushchev, and Brezhnev. Through intensive study of the Soviet press and Russian language sources, Werner Hahn offers the first in-depth study of Soviet agricultural politics during the past decade. His book adds a new perspective to our knowledge of the Soviet system. $12.50

East Europe in Search of Security

PETER BENDER, translated by S. Z. Young In their anxiety to protect themselves from the East, the people of the West give little thought to the fact that the East is also anxious to protect itself—from the West. Peter Bender offers a unique look at the security concerns of the six states today linked to the Soviet Union in the Warsaw Pact. His conclusions reflect the communality and the diversity of East European security concerns in the seventies. First in our new series from The International Institute for Strategic Studies. $7.00, $3.00 paper

British and Soviet Politics

Legitimacy and Convergence

JEROME M. GILISON How does a political regime justify its actions to the citizenry? Jerome Gilison compares the structure and functions of two major political systems that, by their very nature, seem incompatible. He devises a new conceptual framework to describe the operation of each system's political parties, higher bureaucracy, and representative bodies, and discovers striking parallels between the two systems. $8.50

MARXISM AND THE PHILOSOPHY OF LANGUAGE

by VALENTIN NIKOLAEVIC VOLOŠINOV

translated by I. R. TITUNIK and LADISLAV MATEJKA

A Volume in the STUDIES IN LANGUAGE Series

"Volosinov's book, Marxism and the Philosophy of Language, is one of the important international publications of the last 50 years in linguistic and semiotic theory and in the analysis of discourse. The book consists of three parts, the first two penetratingly discuss problems of philosophy of language; in particular, the question of relations between language and ideology, the place of language in the light of general semiotics, the relation between linguistics and psychology, the inner speech, and problems of introspection as well as dialectic of language. Saussurian doctrine and the Crocean trend are submitted to a profound comparative analysis.

"The third part, entitled, 'To the History of Utterance Forms in Linguistic Constructions', offers a masterful investigation of syntactic problems and in particular of the intersentential relations. . . ." —ROMAN JAKOBSON, Harvard Univ.

Contents: PART I: PHILOSOPHY OF LANGUAGE AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE FOR MARXISM: The Study of Ideologies and Philosophy of Language. Concerning the Relation of Basis to Superstructures. Philosophy of Language and Objective Psychology. PART II: TOWARD A MARXIST PHILOSOPHY OF LANGUAGE: Two Trends of Thought in Philosophy of Language. Language, Speech and Utterance. Verbal Interaction. Theme and Meaning in Language. PART III: TOWARD A HISTORY OF FORMS OF UTTERANCE IN LANGUAGE CONSTRUCTIONS (STUDY IN THE APPLICATION OF THE SOCIOLOGICAL METHOD TO PROBLEMS OF SYNTAX): Theory of Utterance and Problems of Syntax. Exposition of the Problem of Reported Speech. Indirect Discourse, Direct Discourse and Their Modifications. Quasi Direct Discourse in French, German and Russian. Appendix. 1. Ladislav Matejka, On the First Russian Prolegomena to Semiotic. 2. I. R. Titunik, The Formal Method and the Sociological Method (M. M. Baxtin, P. N. Medvedev, V. N. THE PEASANT URBANITES

A Study of Rural-Urban Mobility in Serbia

by ANDREI SIMIĆ

A Volume in the STUDIES IN ANTHROPOLOGY Series

The Peasant Urbanites—one of the few anthropological studies of urbanization—is also one of the few such studies of an Eastern European, socialist nation. Based on an anthropological study of the South Slav peasants who have migrated to Yugoslavia's capital city, Belgrade, it examines in detail the complex process of transculturation that takes place when members of an agrarian society migrate to the city. The author discusses the profound psychological, social, and cultural adjustments that must be made, and explores the role of village culture, tradition, and social organization in the transformation of the South Slav peasant to Belgrade urbanite.

The Oxford Russian-English Dictionary

Edited by MARCUS WHEELER

General Editor B. O. UNBEGAUN

In progress for more than a decade, this new general dictionary is based on a collation of the best existing Russian-English dictionaries with fundamental Russian dictionaries. It draws on Russian literature and the Soviet press, and it emphasizes colloquial vocabulary and idiom and general scientific and technological terminology.

“There are good reasons why it may be expected to replace Smirnitski as the standard reference-book for students whose native tongue is English. To start with, the Oxford is far superior to any Russian work in respect of binding, quality of paper, legibility and general appearance, and it contains 70,000 entries. . . . The Oxford . . . has much better and more up-to-date translations, especially of idioms. . . . The Oxford is also more informative in explaining Russian terms which have no exact English equivalent.”

by Sveta Lukić

edited by Gertrude Joch Robinson, translated by Pola Triandis

Focusing on the concept of "literary life," or the complex of sociopolitical factors which influence a writer's output, Lukić (one of the group of "new critics" who studied at Belgrade's faculty of pure philosophy and who has himself experienced many of the difficulties he describes) examines Yugoslav literature in the last 25 years. "The wealth of material presented on what is surely one of the most dynamic and exciting literatures in present-day Europe makes this fine translation an invaluable tool for all students of modern literature and politics. Full biographical notes on current Yugoslav authors and an extensive bibliography of selected publications from 1945 to 1965 are appended." — Library Journal. $11.95

SELECTED WORKS OF ZINAIDA HIPPIUS

translated and edited by Temira Pachmuss

A woman who declares her son dead and has a mock burial for him when he leaves for the war; another woman whose life is unbearable because she has seen her future in all its detail: these are among the singular characters Zinaida Hippus portrays in 15 of her stories now published in English for the first time. Zinaida Hippus (1869-1945) played an important role in the Silver Age of Russian poetry and later in Russian emigré circles in Paris. Her remarkable fiction re-creates the gradual evolution of her thought, which began with introspection and ended with a concern for sociopolitical issues and matters of universal spiritual significance. $10.00

THE SOVIET RURAL COMMUNITY

A Symposium

edited and with an introduction by James R. Millar

Fifteen essays presented as original research studies to a 1969 symposium held at the University of Illinois. In a cross-disciplinary examination and appraisal of the changing nature of rural life and work in the Soviet Union, such contributors as George Yaney, Jerzy F. Karcz, Alexander Vucinich, and Gleb Zekulin discuss agricultural policy, rural administration, law and farm management, recent trends in the rural economy, social institutions (with special reference to the social position of the peasant), the rural family and religion, and rural literature. "A substantial symposium. . . ." — Foreign Affairs. "In general, this is an excellent work, one that makes significant and valuable additions to our expanding knowledge of Soviet rural and agricultural affairs." — Agricultural History. $12.50
