ESSAYS ON RUSSIAN INTELLECTUAL HISTORY

Edited by Leon Borden Blair

Introduction by Sidney Monas

In the first essay, Joseph T. Fuhrmann analyzes Grigorii Skovoroda's contribution to philosophic thought and suggests the need to review past interpretations of the Russian Church. In the second essay, Edward C. Bock examines the contributions of Vladimir Soloviev, intellectual heir of Skovoroda. Leon I. Twarog deals in the final lecture with the specific problem of literary censorship in Russia and the Soviet Union. Sidney Monas, in the Introduction, places the essays in perspective.
