Global Pharmaceutical Policy

Ensuring Medicines for Tomorrow's World

Frederick M. Abbott, Florida State University College of Law, US and Graham Dukes,
University of Oslo, Norway

'There is a strong argument that people throughout the world have a right to receive the medicines they need in an appropriate, affordable, and timely way. Global Pharmaceutical Policy, describes the laws, policies, and customs relating to the development and provision of medicines, identifies their strengths and weakness, and then proposes global solutions for getting things better. Here is a masterpiece written in a clear and elegant style. Together, Dukes and Abbott have experience and insight that are unrivalled.'

— Joe Collier, Emeritus Professor of Medicines Policy,
St George's, University of London, UK

International Trade and Health Protection

A Critical Assessment of the WTO's SPS Agreement

Tracey Epps, University of Otago, New Zealand

'Interspersing law with societal context, this volume by Dr Epps stands out among WTO analysis. The author offers a delightfully balanced view on the nature and origin of SPS measures (including references to history) whilst at the same time mastering the hard law of the SPS Agreement in detail. Practitioners will enjoy the detailed analysis of WTO dispute settlement. A reference book for practice and academia, and also a very, very good read.'

The Political Economy of HIV/AIDS in Developing Countries

TRIPS, Public Health
Systems and Free Access

Edited by Benjamin Coriat,
Université Paris 13, France

The book is based on original data and field studies from Brazil, Thailand, India and Sub-Saharan Africa. Focusing on the issue of universal and free access to treatment (a goal now taken to heart by the international community), it assesses the progress made and presents a rigorous diagnosis of the obstacles that remain, especially the constraints imposed by TRIPS and the poor state of most public health systems in Southern countries. In so doing, the book renews our understanding of the political economy of HIV/AIDS in these vast regions, where it continues to spread with devastating social and economic consequences.

Study in the heart of Europe in a truly international environment

In addition to various international law courses at undergraduate and postgraduate level in French, the University of Geneva Law Faculty offers two Masters in advanced studies (MAS) in cooperation with the Geneva Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies taught in English. Students and professionals from around the world come to study in Geneva, the home of numerous international organizations, UN agencies, law firms active in international arbitration and the ICRC.

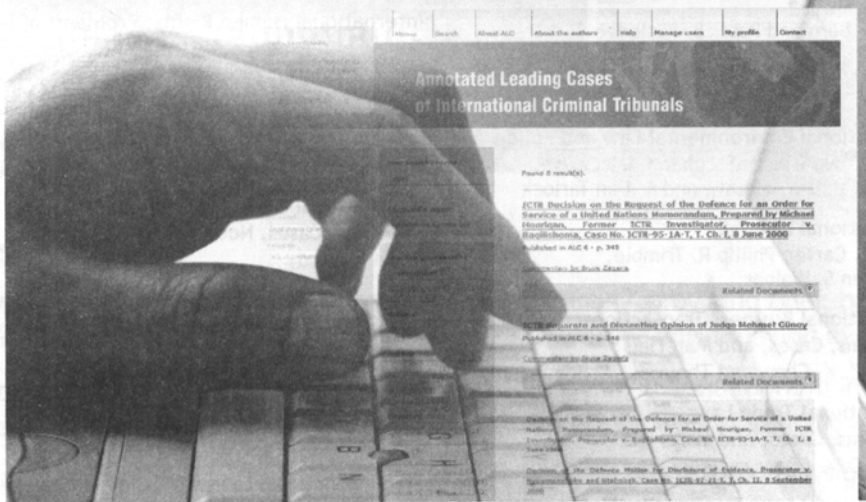

The Master in International Humanitarian Law is offered by the Geneva Academy of International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights. Students take in-depth courses on all areas of international law relating to armed conflicts including international criminal law and human rights. Website: www.adh-geneva.ch

The Geneva Master in International Dispute Settlement gives students the opportunity to study all aspects of dispute settlement in the international arena, across the divide of public and private, with an emphasis on today's most relevant fields such as commercial and investment arbitration, negotiation and WTO dispute settlement. ASPEN PUBLISHERS PROUDLY PRESENTS LAW ACROSS BORDERS

Law Across Borders is a new series by Aspen Publishers for professors who want to introduce an international perspective into their courses easily and confidently. These paperbacks, 150-250 pages in length, center around a single high-interest problem of international significance as it pertains to a specific course area. The problem orientation offers a framework for asking fundamental questions and teaching students how to think about international law issues. Each title in the series is accompanied by Professor's Notes that explain how the author uses his or her materials in class.

New Titles Available in 2009:

- Plea Bargaining Across Borders: Criminal Procedure by Jenia I. Turner
- Climate Change and Property Rights by Hari Osofsky and Wil Burns
- Constitutional Law: Regulation of Abortion by Colin B. Picker

Assisted by Karen Lee

Decisions of international courts and arbitrators, as well as judgments of national courts, are fundamental elements of modern public international law. The International Law Reports is the only publication in the world wholly devoted to the regular and systematic reporting in English of such decisions. It is, therefore, an absolutely essential work of reference.

i.lex*, the Legal Research System for International Law in US Courts

A free public online database of select US court cases and legal materials, i.lex is designed to serve as a practical resource for members of the judiciary and other legal professionals who want to identify and understand how international law is interpreted and applied by US courts at both the federal and state level.

i.lex's primary audience is judges and their clerks and assistants, but it also has been developed for lawyers and other advocates who rely on international law in domestic litigation as well as legal scholars whose research, analysis, and teachings contribute to the development of basic rules of law.

As international law appears with greater frequency in judicial decisions, this tool provides important and accessible information on the nature and scope of the relationship between international law and the US legal system.

The core data content of the i.lex database is:

- Select decisions by US federal and state courts
- Summaries of relevant holdings and legal applications that involve international law

The main content is supplemented by:

- Texts of international treaties
- Domestic statutes
- Decisions by international tribunals
- Commentary
- Implementing legislation
- Journal articles
- Other explanatory materials

Human Dignity and the Foundations of International Law

Patrick Capps

International lawyers have often been interested in the link between their discipline and the foundational issues of jurisprudential method, but little that is systematic has been written on this subject. In this book, an attempt is made to fill this gap by focusing on issues of concept-formation in legal science in general with a view to their application to the specific concerns of international law. In responding to these issues, the author argues that public international law seeks to establish and institutionalise a system of authoritative judgment whereby the conditions by which a community of states can co-exist and co-operate are ensured. A state, in turn, must be understood as ultimately deriving legitimacy from the pursuit of the human dignity of the community it governs, as well as the dignity of those human beings and states affected by its actions in international relations. This argument is in line with a long and now resurgent Kantian tradition in legal and political philosophy. This book shows how this approach is reflected in accepted paradigm cases of international law, such as the United Nations Charter.

Electronic Consumer Contracts in the Conflict of Laws

by Sophia Tang

The application of private international law to electronic consumer contracts raises new, complex, and controversial questions. It is new because consumer protection was not a private international law concern until very recently and e-commerce only became an important commercial activity within the last ten years. This book aims to provide an answer to the urgent requirement for legal certainty, security and justice in e-consumer contracts. It is primarily concerned with existing approaches to jurisdiction and choice of law issues in e-consumer contracts in the European Community and England, but some typical approaches in other jurisdictions are also examined. Based on the analysis and the comparative study of the existing law, the book seeks to provide a proposal as to what the law should be in order to provide certainty to both parties, to provide reasonable protection to consumers, and to promote the development of e-commerce.

Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in International Law

Manisuli Ssenyonjo

The effective promotion, protection and fulfilment of economic, social and cultural (ESC) rights is an important but under-explored component of international human rights law, of which ESC rights form an essential part. This book subjects ESC rights protected in the Covenant to a deeper analysis in light of the practice of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights while taking into account other relevant sources of ESC rights at national, regional and international levels. It analyses key issues relevant to ESC rights, with particular emphasis on various themes including State obligations; non-State actor's obligations; women's ESC rights; domestic protection of ESC rights; and State reservations to ESC rights. The book further makes a thorough examination of the rights to work, health, and education.

Sovereignty and the Stateless Nation

Gibraltar in the Modern Legal Context

Keith Azopardi

Gibraltar is an Overseas Territory of the UK within the EU, which has for three centuries been at the centre of a dispute between Britain and Spain, a dispute based on traditional perceptions of sovereignty. Hitherto the dispute has been managed in a predominantly bilateral way, but this has prevented the people of Gibraltar having an equal say on the issue of Gibraltar's sovereignty and decolonisation. It has produced a paradox of governance and constitutionalism that encases the Gibraltar people. This book considers the effects of sovereignty and the culture of bilateralism on the dispute, and examines the resulting deficits of governance and democracy.

The tradition of international law scholarship at UC Davis School of Law continues with the California International Law Center at King Hall.

Established in 2009, CILC:

- Enriches international studies at the law school by fostering the work of faculty, students, and alumni in international, comparative, and transnational law.
- Sponsors a speakers' series and curriculum and career development.
- Partners with international law and human rights organizations.

Aiding the center's work are a Faculty Council and a Global Council of internationally known scholars.

SAY GOODBYE TO international law as we knew it.

To old ideas about environmental regulation, global financial transactions and the traditional hierarchies of domestic and international courts.

SAY HELLO TO international law as we're getting to know it.

One which recognizes that there are fewer degrees of separation between issues once treated in isolation. Like foreign investment and human rights. Or labor relations in one country and capital markets on the other side of the globe.

AT THE FOREFRONT OF THIS PRACTICE IS COLUMBIA.

With first-of-their-kind dual degree programs. Through joint programs with the U.N., as well as the schools of business, public health and public affairs. On campus, you'll find endowed centers for Chinese, Japanese and Korean legal studies. Elsewhere, you'll find double degree programs with law schools in Paris, Frankfurt and London. And everywhere we are, you'll see pioneering scholarship on everything from climate control to international terrorism.

All of it developing just as fast as the world is changing. And that's pretty fast indeed.

The Restitution of Cultural Assets. Causes of Action – Obstacles to Restitution – Developments

by Beat Schönenberger, Lecturer, University of Basel, Faculty of Law

Disputes over the return of artworks or cultural objects have a long history. Since the mid-1990s debates on the subject have intensified, particularly with regard to the restitution of Nazi Looted Art. This post-doctoral thesis specifically addresses the dilemma of restitution, and yet in contrast to the current trend it is not limited to cases of looted art. These are placed in the wider context of other types of demands for the return of cultural assets. The central focus of this portrayal of comparative law lies in examining the potential grounds for claiming the restitution of a cultural asset, including the obstacles preventing such restitution. Issues dealt with involve mainly civil but also criminal and international law, whilst factors outside the scope of the law are considered as well. The final part shows how a counter-reaction promoting restitution has arisen in recent years. With the help of an analysis of developments to date, the work concludes with an overview of further significant advances in the debate about cultural assets.

The author graduated magna cum laude from the University of Basel in 1994 and received a PhD summa cum Laude at the same university a year later. Since 2002 he has been Lecturer in Civil Law at the Universities of Basel and St. Gallen, Switzerland.

Aviation Code of the Russian Federation

by Heiko van Schyndel, Member to the Rechts-anwaltskammer Berlin, Germany and Collegium of Advocates in Voronezh, Russia

This book contains the English translation and the official Russian text of the Aviation Code of the Russian Federation. For a better understanding of the Act, an introduction has been added, setting out the history of the Aviation Code and its ramifications. An outline of the Code is given and an account of other Russian Federation legislation covering the field of aviation law.

The aim of this book is to assist in presenting and clarifying the applicable aviation law in the Russian Federation by providing a professional English translation of the Russian Aviation Code. The book is a welcome addition to the literature in the field and should be of interest to anyone dealing with aviation law.

This book is volume 7 in our Essential Air and Space Law series, a book series set up with the aim of establishing a collection of prominent studies in this particular field of law especially for experienced practitioners (e.g. lawyers, policy makers in governments, national and international organisations and private entities), in addition to scholars involved in the research and study of air traffic and space law.

Beyond the Traditional

At GW, our international and comparative law faculty is recognized for the breadth and depth of its experience.

While we offer substantial expertise in the traditional aspects of the field, our reach extends well beyond the norm.

Faculty in other areas—including intellectual property law, government procurement, and national security law—routinely examine and influence international and foreign law in their teaching and scholarship.

GEORGETOWN LAW

Georgetown Law offers one of the largest transnational legal education programs in the world. With an ideal location and a campus of major new buildings that include an international and comparative law library, Georgetown Law is one of the leading global law schools.

The array of courses dealing with transnational, international, and comparative law is extraordinarily comprehensive, numbering over 150. This curriculum is generated and sustained by over 110 full-time faculty members, more than 30 of whom are currently focused on transnational and international curriculum subjects. These full-time faculty members are joined by over 90 distinguished Washington, D.C. practitioners from inside and outside the government. In addition, faculty exchanges bring several foreign law professors to visit each year.

Additional Transnational Initiatives:

Center for Transnational Legal Studies: In Fall 2008, Georgetown inaugurated the new London-based Center for Transnational Legal Studies (CTLIS). Georgetown students study alongside classmates drawn from over a dozen select partner schools, located in almost as many countries around the globe. A truly transnational faculty, drawn from many of the same schools, offers a curriculum specifically designed for those students intent on transnational careers. With this diversity of perspectives, and no "host" school or jurisdiction, students have a unique, semester-long opportunity to study transnational legal topics in a truly transnational setting.

Semester Study Abroad: As an alternative to the Center for Transnational Legal Studies, J.D. students at Georgetown may choose to study abroad for a semester at one of a number of outstanding foreign law schools including: Universidad Torcuato di Tella in Buenos Aires, Argentina; Tsinghua University Law School in Beijing, China; Bucerius Law School in Hamburg, Germany; Hebrew University of Jerusalem in Israel; National Law School in Bangalore, India; the University of Leiden in The Netherlands; National University of Singapore Law School; and ESADE Law School in Barcelona, Spain.

Global Law Scholars: Georgetown created the Global Law Scholars Program in response to the changing nature of legal practice and in recognition of the Law Center's prominent positioning—both academic and geographic—with regard to many of the most important cross-border legal institutions. The program offers access to a special curriculum as well as invited speakers and networking opportunities. Participation is limited to a select group of students who have a demonstrated commitment to the international sphere and who are interested in a particularly intensive preparation for the increasingly global nature of law practice, in the United States and abroad.

For more information on Georgetown's vast array of International and Transnational programs, please see visit the Office of Transnational Programs website at www.law.georgetown.edu/otp.

Wayne Law

Providing a global experience to tomorrow's legal practitioners

Law in the 21st Century has gone transnational and Wayne Law graduates are well-prepared for this new world. Today's lawyers are expected to know how to deal with foreign partners and litigate cases involving international parties, evidence and legal issues. At Wayne Law – located on a busy international border – students can choose from a range of public and private international law classes. Additionally, a newly-created Program on International and Comparative Law will present an exciting series of speakers and conferences, coordinate faculty scholarship on international issues, and present opportunities for students to study and work abroad.

Wayne Law features an internationally recognized faculty, hands-on curricular offerings, client clinics, and access to well over 100 internships each year. Its 11,000 living alumni are experts in their disciplines and include leading members of the local, national and international legal communities.

LUISS Guido Carli (Libera Università Internazionale degli Studi Sociali) is a private Italian university located close to Rome's historic centre, in one of the city's most beautiful areas. The University offers a variety of programmes held in Italian, plus an increasing number of courses in English, making it accessible to students from all over the world. Thanks to its affiliation with “Confindustria”, i.e. the Italian Industrialists' Confederation, the University has close ties to the country's industrial concerns, most of which operate internationally as well. In the more than forty years since its founding in 1966, LUISS Guido Carli University has thus played a key role in Italy's economic and cultural development. Not only has it trained world-class leaders sensitive to the values of market culture and the rules of a modern democracy, but it has also made important academic contributions in the fields of international law, EU law, business law and industrial relations law. Beside LUISS permanent faculty consisting of distinguished Italian and foreign professors, who are also successful professionals, lawyers and consultant, LUISS welcomes renowned professors who hold courses and lectures on a visiting basis as well as professors who will be employed by LUISS on a longer term basis. Furthermore, in addition to a wide range of facilities offered to LUISS students (university canteen, bookstore, coffee shop, etc.) international students also benefit from services designed to enable them to make a smooth transition to life in Rome.
