City (2008). Paul Digby (b. 1971)

Paul Digby graduated from Norwich School of Art and Design in 1997 and completed an MA in 2001 from the University of Leeds. He has worked in education, teaching people with mental health problems and in 2002 was Artist in Residence at Rampton Hospital. City is one of a series of gouache paintings on paper created in 2008 and entitled 'At home and at work'. The environments featured are partly derived from memories and are lamentations on modern living that predominantly deal with alienation and isolation. Digby says of these pictures: 'I wanted to portray the everyday to capture a familiar picture, although the broken individuals inhabiting these pictures seem all alone in the world. However, I did want to suggest that we all hurt sometimes. A question I think about with regard to this series is, is this the start or end of a journey for the people portrayed or perhaps the journey itself?'

Paul is represented by the Design and Artists Copyright Society (DACS).

We are always looking for interesting and visually appealing images for the cover of the Journal and would welcome suggestions or pictures, which should be sent to Professor Robert Howard, British Journal of Psychiatry, 17 Belgrave Square, London SW1X 8PG, UK or robert.howard@iop.kcl.ac.uk
