Scripture, Canon, and Commentary

A Comparison of Confucian and
Western Exegesis

John B. Henderson

In this major contribution to the study of the Chinese classics and comparative religion, John Henderson uses the history of exegesis to illuminate mental patterns that have universal and perennial significance for intellectual history. Henderson relates the Confucian commentarial tradition to other primary exegetical traditions, particularly the Homeric tradition, Vedānta, rabbinic Judaism, ancient and medieval Christian biblical exegesis, and Qur'anic exegesis.

"This book is a major statement on the relationship between canon and commentary in a comparative cultural perspective."

The Ledgers of Merit and Demerit

Social Change and Moral Order in Late Imperial China

Cynthia J. Brokaw

The ledgers of merit and demerit were a type of morality book that achieved sudden and widespread popularity in China during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Consisting of lists of good and bad deeds, each assigned a certain number of merit or demerit points, the ledgers offered the hope of divine reward to users "good" enough to accumulate a substantial sum of merits. By examining the uses of the ledgers during the late Ming and early Qing periods, Cynthia Brokaw throws new light on the intellectual and social history of the late imperial era.

Crisis and Compensation

Public Policy and Political Stability
in Japan

Kent E. Calder

Why does Japan, with its efficiency-oriented technocracy, periodically adopt welfare-oriented, economically inefficient domestic policies? In answering this question Kent Calder shows that Japanese policymakers respond to threats to the ruling party's preeminence by extending income compensation, entitlements, and subsidies, with market-oriented retrenchment coming as crisis subsidies.

In Search of Self in India and Japan

Toward a Cross-Cultural Psychology

Alan Roland

"This book addresses a fundamental question—the universality of human nature. . . . Drawing upon work with patients and therapists in both India and Japan, [Roland] describes the profound differences between the Western individualized self and the familial self so central to Asian culture. . . . Of particular value is Roland's sensitive treatment of the evolving identity of women in the two cultures, as well as his exploration of the deeply significant spiritual self, a topic that is largely neglected in Western theory and practice."—Choice

THE JAPANESE
INFORMAL EMPIRE
IN CHINA, 1895–1937

Edited by PETER DUUS, RAMON H. MYERS, and MARK R. PEATTIE

The Japanese Informal Empire in China, 1895–1937

Edited by *Peter Duus,
Ramon H. Myers, Mark R. Peattie*

This volume examines the period from 1895 to 1937 when Japan's economic, social, political, and military influence in China expanded so rapidly that it supplanted the influence of Western powers competing there. These fourteen essays discuss how Japan's "informal empire" emerged in China and how that "empire" influenced Japan's own internal development.

"Describes in rich detail Japan's organization of a wide range of cultural, educational, economic, military, and bureaucratic institutions that formed the mainstays of Japanese influence in China along with the trading, manufacturing, intelligence-gathering, and political intriguing which they managed."

PURPOSE AND ORGANIZATION

The Association for Asian Studies is a scholarly, non-political, and non-profit professional association open to all persons interested in Asia and the study of Asia. It seeks through publications, meetings, and seminars to facilitate contact and exchange of information among scholars and to increase understanding of Asia. The Association for Asian Studies is the largest society of its kind in the world. Its 7,000 members include scholars, teachers, business people, diplomats, journalists, and interested laypersons.

Founded in 1941 as the Far Eastern Association, the organization was renamed the Association for Asian Studies in 1957 to reflect the wider geographic interests of its membership. In 1970, four elective area Councils—South Asia, Southeast Asia, China and Inner Asia, and Northeast Asia—were established to guarantee each area constituency its own representation and a proportionate voice on the Board of Directors. In 1977, a Council of Conferences was established as a liaison with eight regional conferences throughout the United States to serve the needs of those interested in Asian studies in different parts of the country. The Association is a member of the American Council of Learned Societies and the National Council of Area Studies Associations, actively participating with its sister societies in a wide range of activities, including joint participation in research and informational exchanges.

Publications of the Association include The Journal of Asian Studies, the Bibliography of Asian Studies, Doctoral Dissertations on Asia, the Asian Studies Newsletter, the Monograph Series, and committee publications. The Association holds a three-day meeting each spring devoted to planned programs of scholarly papers, round table discussions and panel sessions on a wide range of problems in research and teaching, and on Asian affairs in general. From time to time, it sponsors, through its committees, special conferences on research problems and other matters of topical interest.

Chu Hsi's Family Rituals

A Twelfth-Century Chinese Manual for the Performance of Cappings, Weddings, Funerals, and Ancestral Rites

Translated, with annotation and introduction, by Patricia Buckley Ebrey

Compiled by the great Neo-Confucian philosopher Chu Hsi (1130–1200), the Family Rituals is a manual for the private performance of the standard Chinese family rituals: initiations, weddings, funerals, and sacrifices to ancestral spirits.

This translation makes the work, which is the most important text of its kind in the last thousand years of Chinese history, fully accessible to scholars and students in a wide range of fields.

“Chu Hsi's ‘Family Rituals’ is a significant work for anyone interested in what Ebrey calls the ‘complexity of the interrelations of ideas, power, and social life’ in late imperial China. Her accomplished translation demonstrates a sure command of the text. It will give scholars ready access to material of the first importance.”

Volume Three: The High Middle Ages

Jin'ichi Konishi

Translated by Aileen Gatten and Mark Harbison

Edited by Earl Miner

In this third of five volumes tracing the history of Japanese literature through Mishima Yukio, Jin'ichi Konishi portrays the high medieval period. This volume focuses on three areas in which Konishi has long made distinctive contributions: court poetry (waka), featuring twelfth- and thirteenth-century works, especially those of Fujiwara Teika; standard linked poetry (renga), from its inception to its full harvest in the work of Sōgi; and the theatrical form noh, including the work of Zeami and Komparu Zenchiku. He also considers prose narrative and popular song.
