SPORTS CULTURE IN LATIN AMERICAN HISTORY

Edited by DAVID M. K. SHEININ

“This book expanded my sense of Latinidad by exposing under-analyzed, vastly hybrid histories and sporting practices. Extending key works in sport studies, it offers a broad geopolitical lens on the role of sport in nation building, settlement, community activism, and social hierarchies. A much-needed corrective to a U.S. practice of over-reliance on a European-centered historical and cultural landscape for theorizing sport.”

ANNOUNCING A NEW SERIES: Latino and Latin American Profiles

Frederick Luis Aldama, The Ohio State University, Series Editor

The focus of this series will be on contemporary Latino and Latin American literary, visual, and performing artists. The books published in the series will outline the shape of U.S. Latino and Latin American producers of cultural content and their work. It offers scholars the possibility of formulating an interpretive approach to an individual artist, group of artists, movement, or genre. It will be multi-disciplinary and seek out works on established and emerging artists.

4th Conference on Ethnicity, Race, and Indigenous Peoples in Latin America and the Caribbean

Conference dates: October 15-17, 2015

About ERIP

This conference is organized by ERIP, the LASA section on Ethnicity, Race, and Indigenous Peoples, in collaboration with Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU) and the Latin American and Caribbean Ethnic Studies journal (LACES). ERIP is committed to promoting research, teaching, and the exchange of ideas about the distinctive cultures, racial identities and relations, as well as concerns of subaltern ethnic groups in the region, particularly indigenous peoples and Afro-descendants.

Communities, Circulations, Intersections

evokes the scope of the 2015 ERIP conference. Panel and paper proposals related to this motif, as well as to all topics related to the section's mission and areas of interest in Latin American and Caribbean studies, are welcome and encouraged.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Presenters may propose individual papers, panels or posters on all subjects related to the section's mission and areas of interest in Latin American and Caribbean studies. In particular, the 2015 conference seeks to foster reflections on the involvement of peoples of indigenous and African descent in migrations, the circulation of ideas and practices, and their exchange of resources and commodities in Latin America and the Caribbean, and the challenges and opportunities posed to the heritage and development of these communities.

The deadline to submit proposals is
June 15, 2015, 5pm

The Native Conquistador

Alva Ixtlilxochitl's Account of the Conquest of New Spain

Edited and translated by Amber Brian, Bradley Benton, and Pablo García Loeza

"This excellent translation accomplishes a 'decentering' of the conquest of Mexico. It makes available a text with an alternate indigenous view of the fall of Tenochtitlan that not only reveals the social, ethnic, and regional divisions in preconquest society but also makes clear the religious and political imperatives in the creation of the new colonial regime." —Stuart B. Schwartz,

Yale University

152 pages | 4 illustrations/3 maps

Translated Christianities

Nahuatl and Maya Religious Texts

Mark Z. Christensen

"Mark Christensen expertly guides the reader through a rich selection of little-known religious writings in native languages, unfolding multiple dimensions of this intercultural confrontation. . . . Concise, yet ranging broadly in time and space, this book shows that, indeed, the processes of translation and adaptation yielded not one but many 'Christianities.'"

—Louise M. Burkhardt,
University at Albany, SUNY

152 pages | 4 illustrations/1 map

The Improbable Conquest

Sixteenth-Century Letters from the Río de la Plata

Edited by Pablo García Loeza and Victoria L. Garrett

"The Improbable Conquest . . . [offers] readers an excellent and needed translation of little-known letters from the Spanish conquest of an immense territory. . . . This book is a necessary tool for all Spanish American scholars, particularly those specializing in the first half of the sixteenth century and the Spanish and Portuguese discovery, conquest, and colonization of South America."
