INTRODUCTION to the science of METAPHYSICS

by H. J. KOREN, C.S.Sp., S.T.D.

The author admits that there is no such thing as 'metaphysics without tears', but rightly insists that true metaphysics must be taught to all students, if only to develop their powers of independent thinking. With an eye to the capacity of students Father Koren has made the abstractions of metaphysics concrete and practical, and has introduced many examples from the workaday world. Again, always keeping in mind the needs of his readers, the author has appended review questions at the end of his work, with a list of suggested readings after each chapter or section. 34s.

INTRODUCTION to the philosophy of ANIMATE NATURE

by H. J. KOREN, C.S.Sp., S.T.D.

Too many contemporary professors and students confuse psychology with that positive science which investigates only the surface phenomena of human consciousness and behaviour. As a result psychology is becoming almost exclusively pragmatic and utilitarian.

Professors will welcome a manual of rational psychology in readable English, for which many have long hoped. As in his work above, Father Koren has appended sections on suggested readings, review questions, and a list of the more important primary and secondary sources. 36s.

A Saint of the Week

'There is nothing like doctrine for setting oneself on the great trail, but after doctrine comes learning and after learning comes emotional atmosphere, which are best combined for most people in simple straight-forward talks which give us something to chew on, informative and factual. Fr Desmond Murray, O.P. has given us exactly this in these admirable sermon sketches of forty-eight saints.' The Life of the Spirit. 15s.

The Meaning of the Religious Life

The aim of this book, by Benoit Lavaud, O.P., is firstly to give the relation between the religious life and charity or friendship with God, which constitutes the special perfection of the Christian life; secondly, the author seeks to show that the religious life, the life that begins with profession of the three vows, of chastity, poverty and obedience, is a supremely effective means of moving towards the perfection of charity and therefore towards perfection itself—which is the sense in which the religious state deserves to be called the 'state of perfection'. 4s. 6d.

An Introduction to Contemplative Meditation

The art of spiritual recollection, of being 'spiritually tranquil within God', has almost been forgotten by too many of the laity, and even those who would consider themselves devout perhaps spend too little time in seeking God within themselves. The twentieth century is a century of 'acts' and Fr F. D. Joret, O.P., here seeks to restore the balance by showing his readers the predispositions necessary for fruitful recollection. 4s. 6d.

A Christology from the Sermons of St Vincent Ferrer

This Christology has been selected and translated by S.M.C. Six hundred years ago St Vincent Ferrer preached—sermons which were the talk of Western Europe, to which immense crowds of every class listened attentively. From the five volumes of these sermons published in Spanish, S.M.C. has selected and translated some twenty-five of the best discourses, which form a remarkable commentary on the life of our Lord. 12s. 6d.

No Abiding City Bede Jarrett, O.P.

A new edition of this little work hardly needs introduction, for over the course of the years more than 30,000 copies have been sold. Originally given as Lenten Conferences, these sermons are ideal spiritual reading for the 'everyday Catholic', and are written in Fr Bede's usual easy style. 5s.

* The Priest of the People Various

* Originally published as a Double
* Number of The Life of the Spirit,
* we have now, in response to many * requests, republished this most * valuable symposium on the spiritu-
* ality of the priesthood in a more
* permanent form. 4s. 6d.

A Catechism for Adults Ian Hislop, O.P.

At first sight there is something arid about a creed, but any Christian ignores a creed at his peril. It is all too easy to drift along on a tide of emotional devotion, and precisely because our devotion is not disciplined by the rule of faith, to become stagnant in the sands of sentiment. It is precisely with this danger in mind that Father Ian Hislop wrote these articles for adult and educated Christians. They first appeared in Blackfriars during 1955 and the interest they aroused has encouraged their publication in a more permanent form. 5s.

The Sacraments: Signs of Life

A. M. Roguet, O.P.

Father Roguet follows his book Holy Mass with a treatment of the Sacraments. Having explained the nature of a Sacrament, he deals with the seven in turn, with a note on sacramental spirituality. He stresses that the performance of a rite should not be merely ceremonial, but an act of worship on the part of all present, not merely 'mechanical administration of unintelligible incantation'. 6s.

Eve and the Gryphon

Gerald Vann, O.P.

* This is the fourth printing of a
* book first published in 1946, which
* was reprinted the following year
* and published in a second edition
* in 1952. This by itself is enough to * recommend this treatment of four
* great models of Christian Women
* living in the world, through which * Father Vann stresses that most * important point in Christian living,
* namely, that we each have a 'voca-
* tion', a call to do something for
* God that only we, each one of us
* individually, can do. 6s. 6d.

The Letters of Henry Suso

Translated by Kathleen Goldmann

The friendship which existed between Henry Suso, the fourteenth-century Dominican friar, and his spiritual daughter, Elspeth Stigel, is one of the most fascinating and fruitful in the story of the mystics. We owe our knowledge of the whole of his mystical teaching to the record of letters and conversations between the two. Elspeth collected and copied twenty-seven letters which Suso sent to her and others of his spiritual daughters, and which form her Book of Letters on which this translation is based. Twenty-three are reproduced here and give an account of the development of the spiritual life from conversion to the highest stage of contemplation. 4s. 6d.
