

Protection of Global Biodiversity Converging Strategies

Lakshman D. Guruswamy and Jeffrey A. McNeely, editors

The rate of extinction of biological species is greater today than at any time in the last 65 million years. Some predict that if this rate continues, two-thirds of all living species will disappear during the next century.

Although the global community has recently adopted a Convention on Biological Diversity, the agreement sets forth only abstract goals. Contributors to this volume advance the Convention's initial steps by providing workable solutions that can be implemented regionally, nationally, and locally. The contributors—including natural, social, and political scientists; economists, lawyers, and environmentalists; and decisionmakers in business, agriculture, and government—have united to create a common discourse and to evaluate and propose strategies for halting this alarming loss of biodiversity.

“Many passionate, inspiring appeals to ‘save’ the environment offer no clue as to how it should be accomplished. This book, therefore, is a significant contribution to understanding the magnitude of the problem and the obstacles to its solution.”—
Lynton K. Caldwell, author of International Environmental Policy

OZONE DIPLOMACY

New Directions in Safeguarding the Planet
Enlarged Edition

RICHARD ELLIOT BENEDICK

Richard Benedick—a principal architect and the chief U.S. negotiator of the Montreal Protocol—expands the ozone story, bringing us to the eve of the tenth anniversary of the historic treaty. He describes subsequent negotiations to deal with unexpected major scientific discoveries and important amendments adding new chemicals and accelerating the phase-out schedules. Ozone Diplomacy is essential reading for those concerned about the future of our planet.

“A landmark book that should command the attention of every serious student of American diplomacy, international environmental issues, or the art of negotiation.”

This book is the record of the Fourth Hague Joint Conference of the American Society of International Law and the Nederlandse Vereniging voor Internationaal Recht, which was held in The Hague on July 2-5, 1997. At this event international scholars, practitioners and experts gathered to discuss a large range of topics. The 24 panels were organized in the following nine blocks:

International Criminal Law
Peace and Security
International Human Rights and Humanitarian Law
International Arbitration
The Intergovernmental Conference of the EU
Trade, Sanctions, Aid
International Law and the Information Highway
International Dispute Resolution: Institutions and Procedures
Protection of Children.

The contents of these Proceedings bear evidence of the wide range of dialogue that occurred during the Conference and directs the reader to issues which might form suitable subjects for further research and elaboration in other scholarly work. Apart from a subject index, a list was included of Treaties referred to by the contributors.

Important International Law Titles from...

INTERNATIONAL MARITIME BOUNDARIES Volume III

edited by Jonathan I. Charney & Lewis M. Alexander

This is the ultimate guide to international maritime boundaries. Its unique practical features include systematic examination of all international maritime boundaries worldwide; comprehensive coverage, including the text of every modern boundary agreement; descriptions of judicially-established boundaries; maps and detailed analyses of those boundaries; expert papers examining the status of maritime boundary delimitations in each of the ten regions of the world; papers from a global perspective analyzing key issues in maritime boundary theory and practise; and a cumulative index for volumes I - III. These features make International Maritime Boundaries an unmatched comprehensive, accessible resource in the field.

THE CHANGING WORLD OF INTERNATIONAL LAW IN THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY

A Tribute to the late Kenneth R. Simmonds edited by Joseph J. Norton, Mads Andenas & Mary Footer

This work draws together contributions of leading international legal scholars respecting major themes of the future of international law in the new century. The papers have been collected in honour of the late Professor Kenneth R. Simmonds, former Director of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law and Professor of Law at Queen Mary & Westfield College, University of London. This book will be of prime interest to international legal scholars or legal practitioners.

THE EMERGING SYSTEM OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW Developments in Codification and Implementation by Lyal S. Sunga

In this book, the author focuses on recent developments in codification and implementation to evaluate prospects for the emergence of a unified system of international criminal law, characterized by broad and coherent material coverage, as well as fair and effective institutional implementation. To this end, he sketches the normative contours of international criminal law by exploring the history, content and legal status of the relevant norms against the background of the work of the International Law Commission. Finally, the author identifies the essential properties for the emergence of a good system of international criminal law and locates the development and future prospects of this field within the main historical dynamics of international legal cooperation.

THE CONCEPT OF THE COMMON HERITAGE OF MANKIND IN INTERNATIONAL LAW

by Kemal Baslar

This book aims to explore the legal theory and implications of the concept of the common heritage of mankind. It addresses almost all aspects of the concept in the light of the experience of three decades. The author takes into account the elements of the common heritage concept in the fields of jurisprudence, outer space law, the law of the sea, the law of Antarctica, international environmental law, human rights and general principles of public international law. It tries to develop a normative framework through which the concept may offer alternatives for the governance of the global commons.

INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW IN THE ASIA PACIFIC

by Ben Boer, Ross Ramsay
& Donald R. Rothwell

What does the future hold for the development of international environmental law in the Asia Pacific? This book addresses that question through a multifaceted examination of various aspects of environmental law in the states which comprise East and Southeast Asia, Australia, New Zealand, the island states of the Southwest Pacific, and occasionally the states of South and Central Asia. Through its thorough range of coverage, International Environmental Law in the Asia Pacific provides an illustration of the current state of development of international environmental law within the region as well as the forces shaping further development of international and regional schemes for environmental governance. In doing so, the book promotes long-term ecological, social, and economic sustainability.

HUDDLED MASSES AND UNCERTAIN SHORES

Insights into Irregular Migration

by Bimal Ghosh

Irregular migration, including trafficking in migrants, has emerged as a major international challenge. It now represents between one-quarter of the total yearly inflow in the United States and as much in Europe. One of the most complete and penetrating treatments of the subject to date, this volume unveils the complexities of contemporary irregular migration and discerns its possible remedies. The professional rigour and lucidity of the discussion make this timely book valuable to policy-makers, researchers and practitioners alike.

PROPERTY PROBLEMS

From Genes to Pension Funds

edited by J.W. Harris

This wide-ranging collection of essays focuses on three major concerns: firstly, the frontiers of property, including genes, body parts, embryos, information, shares, bank balances and pension funds; secondly, questionable assumptions within conventional classificatory doctrines including leaseholds, mortgages, restitutionary rights, things, composite ownership and public property; thirdly, the role of property seen in an inter-disciplinary context including economic, historical, comparative and philosophical. The essays contribute insights from both common law and civil law backgrounds. They will be of interest to practitioners, academics, researchers, and political and social theorists.

January 1998, 322 pp., Hardbound, ISBN: 9041196439, Price: $100.00

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS

by Jan Ramberg
The ICC has enunciated several rules, practices, standard contracts, and clauses for the facilitation of international trade. Although guidance exists for commercial practice in many different sectors, merchants and legal practitioners face a difficult task in trying to understand the interrelation of the various rules and practices within the vast area of international trade. International Commercial Transactions fills this gap in understanding by presenting a concise look at the most relevant rules and practices applicable to transnational trade transactions. Its extensive scope, coupled with a concise, lucid style makes International Commercial Transactions an essential tool for obtaining first-hand knowledge and the foundation needed for further study or practice of international trade law.

Procedure at International Conferences

A Study of the Rules of Procedure of International Inter-Governmental Conferences

Robbie Sabel

This book is a study of the rules of procedure of international intergovernmental conferences. It will be invaluable to any representative attending an international conference or an assembly of an international organization. It provides, for the first time, a practical manual with examples and precedents of how conferences apply rules of procedure. For the academic the book is of particular interest as it examines whether a new branch of customary international law has developed, namely that of procedure at international conferences.

Anglo-American Securities Regulation

Cultural and Political Roots, 1690-1860

Stuart Banner

This book examines the regulation of the earliest securities markets in England and the United States, from their origins in the 1690s through the 1850s. Banner argues that during the reign of Queen Anne a complex and moderately effective body of regulatory control was already extant, reflecting widespread Anglo-American attitudes toward securities speculation. He uses traditional legal materials as well as a broad range of nonlegal sources to show that securities regulation has a much longer ancestry than is often supposed.

Globalization, Human Rights and Labour Law in Pacific Asia

Anthony Woodiwiss

This pathbreaking book is the first substantive contribution to a sociology of human rights and takes up the question of whether so-called Asian values are compatible with human rights discourse. Using a sociological and poststructuralist approach to the concept of rights, and incorporating transnationality into sociological theory, Woodiwiss demonstrates how the global human rights regime can accommodate Asian patriarchy, while Pacific Asia is itself adapting by means of what he calls "enforceable benevolence."

The Law of Evidence in Victorian England

Christopher Allen

In this book, Allen provides a fascinating account of the political, social and intellectual influences on the development of evidence law during the Victorian period. His book convincingly challenges the traditional view of the significance of Bentham's critique of the state of contemporary evidence law, and describes instead the extent to which ongoing common law developments had already anticipated many of the improvements for which Bentham has usually been credited as the instigator.

The Facts You Need at Your Fingertips

Published bimonthly since 1962, ILM provides the basic, primary documents of research and analysis. Materials are selected for their usefulness to scholars, practitioners, business and government officials, both in the U.S. and abroad. Each 250-page issue contains the full texts of important treaties and agreements, judicial and arbitral decisions, national legislation, international organization resolutions and other documents.

A content summary precedes each document, many of which are accompanied by authored introductions. Status information for treaties also appears in each issue.
