

Pacific Ocean Boundary Problems

Status and Solutions

by Douglas M. Johnston, Mark J. Valencia

PUBLICATIONS ON OCEAN DEVELOPMENT 16

'The Pacific Ocean, surrounded by the Soviet Union, Japan, China, Korea, South-East Asia, Australia and the Oceanic countries, Latin/America, the United States and Canada, is going to play an important role in the future of international politics. On the other hand, this region is at present the forum of various conflicts among the relevant nations. In this sense, the subject of this work is very timely and, apart from his unique approach, the work covers in a most comprehensive manner materials relating to those conflicts and the resulting negotiations, as well as various scientific data of the region.'

Shigeru Oda, June 1990

This work presents an in-depth analysis of the most complex of the many ocean boundary delimitation problems confronting neighboring states in the Pacific region. In each case the various factors influencing the parties to the dispute are examined in detail and alternative diplomatic options are compared. Special emphasis is given to the problems of Southeast Asia, East Asia, and the Northeast Pacific, but regional developments in the Southwest Pacific and the Central and Southeast Pacific are also discussed.

The authors, who are prominent specialists in the field of ocean policy studies place their factor-and-option analysis of these difficult disputes within a multidisciplinary, 'functionalist' framework, and offer some original proposals for innovative ocean diplomacy that now seem realistic in light of recent improvements in the international political arena.

Each judgement reprinted in I.L.L.R. is accompanied by Headnotes and in practically all cases by an Annotation which sets forth, among other things, the legal issues involved, the basic facts of the case (if not included in the judgement itself), the relevant statutory provisions and judicial precedents, the labour law and industrial relations context in which the case arose and the significance of the judgement in the development of the law. The I.L.L.R. provide the reader with factual information that is not coloured by the personal views of the annotators. As a rule, judgements are printed in extenso; editorial discretion has been relied upon to delete or to summarize portions of judgements that are purely technical or only of marginal interest. Volume 9 covers the period 1 October 1988 to 30 September 1989.

As of 1992 Martinus Nijhoff Publishers will be publishing a new biannual in cooperation with the Istituto per la documentazione giuridica of the Consiglio nazionale delle ricerche in Florence:

Information Technology and the Law: An International Bibliography

(previously Informatica e Diritto: Bibliografia internazionale)

The idea of developing a bibliography on informatics and its application to law goes back many years, and the first issue of a predecessor publication was published as long ago as December 1971. Over the years, the fields covered by the Bibliography were redefined to take into account the evolution which studies and research on the subject were undergoing as well as user needs, which were becoming increasingly specific and actual.

Not only legal, but also political and social problems arising out of the application of new technologies have received attention, while the theoretical and technological aspects of information and data processing have been included only when they bear a direct relationship to the central themes of legal informatics.

The international character of the Bibliography merits separate consideration. In the first place, the Bibliography is international because it documents literature of world-wide importance on legal informatics and computer law. Furthermore, it is directed towards scholars and experts in all the countries represented in it. Finally, the bibliographical analysis is carried out with the cooperation of foreign Documentation Centres, qualified to cover all the most important geographical areas.

We are convinced that Information Technology and the Law is destined to become a powerful and versatile scientific instrument of interest not only to research institutes but also to Documentation Centres, university faculties and to both public and private organizations.
