FROM CENTRE
for POLICY ON AGEING

Mental illness in old age: meeting the challenge

Alison Norman

Mental illness in late life is far from being a hopeless cause. This concludes this new study which brings together many examples of how, even with limited resources, imaginative and effective care can be provided by primary health care teams, specialist psychogeriatric services, day hospitals and centres, community services, hospitals and residential homes. This is essential reading for all the caring professions.

Age is opportunity: education and older people

Eric Midwinter

This report argues the case for a more vital approach to education for older people whose needs and capabilities – as both learners and teachers – are too often underestimated. Examples of good practice are detailed, the literature on learning and ageing reviewed, and policy recommendations put forward to education authorities and practitioners at all levels.

Home help: key issues in service provision

Rodney Hedley and Alison Norman

Although acknowledged as a vital service to dependent elderly people, the home help service requires more serious consideration by policy makers. So concludes this report which considers issues such as need, provision and demand for home help; assessment, allocation and charging procedures; the role and training of staff; and the development of 'intensive home care' schemes.

The Journal of the Social Administration Association

Volume 11, part 2 April 1982

Editor: KEN JUDGE

Assistant Director, Personal Social Services Research Unit, University of Kent at Canterbury

Review Editor: A. M. REES

Department of Sociology and Social Administration, University of Southampton

The Journal of Social Policy is concerned with the historical and theoretical analysis of social policy. It also examines the design and implementation of social policy at both national and local levels and encourages the evaluation of policy consequences. Its scope is international and it draws on research and developments from all of the social sciences.

A feature of the journal is the Social Administration Digest, devoted to analysing major changes in legislation and related matters which affect social policy in Britain. Book reviews are also published. The journal sponsors the Richard Titmuss Prize Article competition.

Journal of Public Policy

Editor: BRIAN W. HOGWOOD

Centre for the Study of Public Policy, University of Strathclyde

The Journal of Public Policy publishes articles that use concepts derived from any of the social sciences to illuminate a significant problem facing contemporary government. Articles which cross the conventional boundaries between the social sciences are particularly welcome. Authors are expected to make clear under what circumstances and to what extent the findings are or are not generalizable to other policy areas, or to the same policy problem in other countries. In addition to articles, the journal publishes critical analyses of ideas currently in vogue among academics or practitioners of public policy, reviews of research published by governments or international bodies, and reviews of books about public policy which are interdisciplinary, either explicitly or in terms of their potential implications for other disciplines.

Notes for Contributors

All contributions and correspondence should be sent to: Malcolm L. Johnson, The Editor, Ageing and Society, Policy Studies Institute, 1–2 Castle Lane, London SW1E 6DR, England. All books for review should be sent to: Rex Taylor, M.R.C. Medical Sociology Unit, Westburn Road, Aberdeen AB9 2ZE, Scotland.

General approach

Authors are asked to bear in mind the multi-disciplinary and international nature of the readership when writing their contribution. In particular, care should be taken to draw out the implications of the analysis for readers in other fields, other countries, and other disciplines. Jargon specific to a particular discipline or country should be avoided, and definitions should be provided for words which might be unfamiliar to some readers.

Articles should generally contain between 5,000 and 10,000 words, although longer or shorter articles may be accepted by arrangement with the Editor.

Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, and is not being considered for publication elsewhere. If an author is publishing a related article elsewhere, this fact should be stated. Contributors of articles or reviews accepted for publication will be asked to assign copyright, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press.

Preparation of manuscript

Authors of papers should send three copies of their article and keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.

Contributions (articles, review articles, reviews) should be clearly typed on one side of the paper only using a conventional size of paper, preferably A4. All material should be typed double-spaced with generous margins.

The title of the article and the author's name and affiliation should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article. The title only should appear on the next page, which should contain an abstract of between one and two hundred words.

Style

References to books and articles should be numbered consecutively throughout the text and typed separately in number order at the end of the article. Bibliographic citations should include the following details: in the case of books, the author or authors, the full title, publisher, place of publication and date; in the case of articles, the author or authors, the title and full name of the journal, volume, year and page reference (first and last page). References should be typed using the following style.

1. Hendricks, J. and Hendricks, C. D. Ageing in mass society: myths and realities. Winthrop Publishers, Cambridge, Mass., 1977.

2. Walker, A. The social creation of poverty and dependency in old age. Journal of Social Policy, 9, 1980, 49–75.

Footnotes should be avoided if at all possible; when they must occur they should be numbered along with the references.

Tables and figures should be clearly laid out, numbered consecutively, and designed to fit on a page 234mm × 155mm. Vertical lines between columns should be omitted, and horizontal lines limited to the top and bottom of the table, with an additional one below the column headings. Totals and percentages should be labelled, and units identified. Every table or figure should have a title and at least one reference in the text to indicate its location.

Proofreading of the manuscript

First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor by airmail where appropriate, within seven days of receiving them. The master proof will always be sent direct to the Editor by the printer; contributors will receive duplicates.

Authors will receive 25 offprints of their article free of charge; additional copies may be purchased if ordered at proof stage.
