The Security Council and the Use of Force

Theory and Reality - A Need for Change?

EDITED BY NIELS BLOKKER AND NICO SCHRIJVER

This book addresses the authority of the UN Security Council to regulate the use of force. In particular, it examines the question of whether the present composition, functions, and powers of the Security Council are adequate to meet recent demands, such as the need perceived by states to use force in cases of humanitarian emergency and pre-emptive action in response to international terrorism and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

BEST IN SCHOLARSHIP

The Rights of Refugees under International Law

James C. Hathaway, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

Advance Praise:

"Jim Hathaway is indisputably one of the most interesting and provocative scholars working on international refugee law today. Any book he writes in this field is of major importance."

—Philip Alston, New York University School of Law

"James Hathaway undoubtedly stands as the intellectual architect of contemporary refugee law... He is a scholar of unparalleled depth, rigor, clarity and integrity. Professor Hathaway's writings, linking refugee and human rights law have already, and no doubt will continue to, transform both fields."

—Deborah Anker, Harvard Law School

"This is a remarkable study... Professor Hathaway charts the way forward to a dynamic and purposive interpretation of the Refugee Convention while remaining true to its text, object and purpose. No government official, refugee decision-maker or refugee advocate can conscientiously approach the Refugee Convention without this landmark text on refugee rights."

—Rodger Haines, QC, Deputy Chair, New Zealand Refugee Status Appeals Authority

Hathaway's study is the first-ever comprehensive analysis of the rights set by the UN Refugee Convention. He links refugee rights to general human rights norms, and tests his analysis against the hard facts of refugee life around the world. The result is a dynamic work, which proves the value of international law in resolving the world's most difficult refugee protection challenges.

International Economic Law

The Constitutionalization of the World Trade Organization

DEBORAH Z. CASS

This book untangles debates about constitutionalization and argues that the WTO is not, and should not, be described as a constitution by the standards of any conventional definition, or by the lights of any constitution to which we ought to aspire. Cass argues that what is needed is a constitutionalized WTO which considers the economic development needs of States. Trading democracy, and not trading constitutionalization, is the biggest challenge facing the WTO.

"Speaks with the authority of a major global commission study and offers analyses and prescriptions with important implications for human rights scholars and practitioners. Important sections assess the international community's efforts regarding transitional justice, the administration of justice, and the development of rule of law capacity in occupied states. On each of these themes, as with the many other dimensions of the study, Chesterman is adept at revealing the contradictions and weak points of each operation studied and offers excellent advice on needed reforms."—Human Rights Quarterly

International Organizations and Their Exercise of Sovereign Powers

DAN SAROOSHI

This book provides a conceptual and legal analysis of one of the most important challenges facing international organizations today: their exercise of sovereign powers. The book examines the exercise of sovereign powers by organizations such as the United Nations, the World Trade Organization, and the European Union. It makes a significant contribution to the content of the law that governs both the exercise of sovereign powers by international organizations and the relationships between organizations and their Member States.

THE POLITICS OF PIRACY

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY IN CONTEMPORARY CHINA

ANDREW C. MERTHA

The Politics of Piracy

Intellectual Property in Contemporary China

Andrew C. Mertha

"The Politics of Piracy is a great read and should prove to be the definitive, durable account of the politics of intellectual property in China. Andrew C. Mertha's research regarding patent, copyright, and trademark policymaking, implementation, and enforcement is the work of a highly skilled and motivated specialist in the structure and process of Chinese politics. We learn that Deng's science and technology policymakers debated patent policy from the earliest days of the reform movement, that cultural and propaganda issues trump copyright policy, and that U.S. trademark owners have figured out how to get the locals to take action against counterfeiters. Mertha's anecdotes illuminate even as they entertain."

Enforcing International Law Norms Against Terrorism Edited by Andrea Bianchi

The scale and horror of recent terror attacks has forced policy-makers and international lawyers to re-examine international legal tools available to enforce norms against terrorism. This book analyses the suitability of existing international legal tools to enforce rules prohibiting terrorism. Contributions from leading experts in international law examine, among others, questions relating to the legality of covert operations against terrorism.

EU International Relations Law Panos Koutrakos

In the post-9/11 world, the European Union has been trying to define its international presence in a way which corresponds to its economic power and enlarged membership. In an effort to assert its identity on the international scene, it has developed a wide range of economic relations with third countries and international organisations. This book provides a systematic analysis of these economic, political and security aspects of the relations of the European Union with the rest of the world.

Banking Regulation and World Trade Law

GATS, EU and Prudential Institution Building

Lazaros E. Panourgias

This book covers the legal aspects of international trade in financial services, comparing the relevant legal foundations at the level of the EU and GATS. The book examines the decentralised framework of banking regulation and supervision as the foundation for a sustainable liberalisation of international trade in financial services, and the author seeks lessons in the more advanced EU integration model and its banking supervision arrangements.

The Procedural Aspects of International Law Institute

www.pail-institute.org

announces

The Professor Richard B. Lillich Prize

for the best S.J.D. or Ph.D. Dissertation on a topic of procedural international law

The Procedural Aspects of International Law (PAIL) Institute is a nonprofit organization devoted to furthering the observance of international law through research, consulting, and publishing monographs and other educational materials. Established in 1965 by academic lawyers (including Richard B. Lillich), governmental officials, and private practitioners, the Institute's activities include work in areas as diverse as international claims settlement, State responsibility and diplomatic protection, a draft convention on terrorism, the concept of autonomy in international law, the reform of international organizations, and the international protection of human rights.

In recognition of the unique contribution of Richard B. Lillich to international law throughout his career, the PAIL Institute announces a competition for its first biennial Lillich Prize. The 2004-05 Prize – in the amount of US$5,000 – will be awarded for the best S.J.D. or Ph.D. dissertation submitted to any Faculty of Law in the world in calendar years 2004 and 2005. The dissertation may be on any subject of private or public international law, so long as it involves a procedural dimension in the practical development, observance, or enforcement of international law, rights, and duties. The dissertation must be in English and must be submitted electronically by May 15, 2006, to lillich-prize@pail-institute.org, in an acceptable format (such as Adobe Acrobat). The Prize submissions will be reviewed by a distinguished jury, including PAIL's Senior Fellows and Advisory Board Members. The winning submission will be published in the prestigious PAIL Series of monographs, in addition to receiving the cash prize. For further details, see www.pail-institute.org.
