The Cambridge History of China

Edited by JOHN K. FAIRBANK
and DENIS TWITCHETT

This latest Cambridge History is one of the most far-reaching works of international scholarship ever undertaken and one which will open a new era in our understanding of the Chinese past. Planned to be complete by the early 1980s it will extend to fourteen volumes and will explore the main developments in political, social, economic and intellectual life from the Ch'in Empire (pre-200 BC) to the present day. The contributors are specialists from the international community of sinological scholars. Many of their accounts break new ground; all are based on fresh research.

Volume 10: Late Ch'ing, 1800-1911, Part 1

Edited by JOHN K. FAIRBANK

Volume 10, the first to be published, covers the period from 1800 to about 1870 when the Western world first made a profound impact on China. The period was characterised by the dynastic decline of the Ch'ing Empire and by domestic revolt, culminating in the Taiping rebellion. The authors survey the Opium War and the treaty system whereby the victorious Western powers occupied the principal ports. Central Asian developments are also studied, as is the successful restoration of imperial power following the collapse of the Taiping forces. Numerous maps illustrate the text, and each chapter has a separate bibliographical essay.

The Correspondence of G. E. Morrison

Volume 2: 1912-1920

Edited by LO HUI-MIN

The second and final volume of Lo Hui-Min's highly-praised edition of Morrison's correspondence, covering the period during which Morrison was chief adviser to the first President of the Chinese Republic.

'As in the first volume, Dr Lo Hui-Min's editing is impeccable, with ample footnotes to serve the scholar and the general reader equally.'

Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts from all scholars, including research students, on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those who deal with Taiwan and Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, together with a duplicate copy, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing and, preferably, conform to the styling of The China Quarterly.

The China Quarterly is published by the Contemporary China Institute of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Contemporary China Institute.

Reviewing the Dimensions of Our World

ORBIS
A Journal of World Affairs
published by the Foreign Policy Research Institute
in association with the International Relations
Graduate Group,
University of Pennsylvania

ORBIS is a quarterly journal of world affairs dedicated to the proposition that it is possible to bridge the gap between academic scholarship and policy relevance. For more than twenty years ORBIS has been publishing perceptive, thought-provoking articles on international relations, whether political, economic or sociocultural. A special feature of each issue, "Reflections on the Quarter," analyzes developments in specific areas of current interest. Also included are review essays on recent books, short notes on publications received, and letters to the Editor.
