

PHILOSOPHY

The Journal of the Royal Institute of Philosophy

Edited by H. B. Acton

I	CONTEMPORARY EMPIRICISM AND THE PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION	193
	By H. D. Lewis
II	RELIGIOUS ASSERTIONS IN THE LIGHT OF CONTEMPORARY PHILOSOPHY	206
	By A. C. Ewing
III	THE ARGUMENT FROM DESIGN	219
	By Thomas McPherson
IV	KNOWLEDGE OF GOD	229
	By W. D. Glasgow
V	CAN I HAVE A DUTY TO BELIEVE IN GOD?	241
	By Jonathan Harrison
VI	PHILOSOPHICAL SURVEY: PHILOSOPHY IN FRANCE	253
	By Alan Montefiore
VII	DISCUSSION: THINKING AND MACHINES	258
	By A. D. Ritchie, W. Mays
VIII	NEW BOOKS	262
IX	INSTITUTE NOTES AND NOTICES	287

Published Quarterly

MACMILLAN & CO LTD LONDON

Price 6s Annual Subscription 25s 3d post free

'Even Mr. F. A. Lea, whose new study of Nietzsche is an unusually sympathetic one, admits that he did not take to his subject readily. He speaks of a "six-years' struggle" he has had to "make Nietzsche's perspective" his own. Nor does Mr. Lea expect to persuade his readers easily. "This book," he says, is for those who have either submitted or are prepared to submit to the full impact of Nietzsche's critique." These are daunting words, but I hope they will discourage no one who might appreciate Mr. Lea's book, as I did, for its scholarship, originality and style, and its wholly un-Nietzschean humanity.'—Maurice Cranston, Sunday Times

F. A. Lea

THE TRAGIC PHILOSOPHER

A Study of Friedrich Nietzsche

'... we must be grateful for this admirable exposition of the most challenging thinker of the modern world.'—
G. Wilson Knight, Yorkshire Post 30s.

METHUEN

Practical Reason and Morality

A Study of Immanuel Kant's Foundations for the Metaphysics of Morals

A. R. C. DUNCAN

The present author examines afresh and in detail the contents of the Foundations for the Metaphysics of Morals and shows that it is not, as has hitherto been mistakenly assumed, an ethical treatise but is what it claims to be—the foundations for a metaphysics of morals, a critique of practical reason, written by the man who had already produced the Critique of Pure Reason.

xviii + 182

18s

Ockham: Philosophical Writings

PHILOTHEUS BOEHNER OFM

The selection contained in this volume gives a balanced introductory view of Ockham's writings on logic, metaphysics and ethics. Latin and English are printed face to face, and the whole has been edited and translated by Fr. Philotheus Boehner, one of the leading authorities on Franciscan philosophy of the Middle Ages.

Nelson's Philosophical Texts ix + 300

21s

36 PARK STREET

NELSON

LONDON W1