ENSERFMENT AND MILITARY CHANGE IN MUSCOVY

Richard Hellie

A valuable reexamination of the problem of enserfment, the interests of landholders, and the utility of the landholders to state power. Using recent archival discoveries, Mr. Hellie shows that the fate of the Russian peasantry and its relationship to the rise and fall of middle service class cavalry archers were influenced by the state of the military art.

RUSSIA AND THE MEDITERRANEAN, 1797-1807

Norman E. Saul

"Saul succeeds, through meticulous analysis of an impressive amount of archival material and other primary sources, in proving the existence of an intimate relationship between Russia's involvement in the Napoleonic wars and its interest in the Mediterranean and the Ottoman Empire. He presents a detailed, close study of intricate personal relations which influenced policy-making."—Slavic Review

The Republic of ArmeniaVolume I: The First Year, 1918-1919

Richard G. Hovannisian

At the end of World War I the Armenian people emerged from centuries of foreign domination to establish a small republic. This volume, drawn from official documents and the first of three projected on the short-lived Republic of Armenia, describes the grave domestic problems faced by the Armenian government, its envoy's activities in Europe, and its relations with neighboring Georgia and Azerbaijan, the White Armies of Russia's Soviet government, and the Ottoman Empire.

Revolutionary Breakthroughs and National Development
The Case of Romania, 1944-1965

Kenneth Jowitt

Focusing on nation-building in Romania, Kenneth Jowitt examines what happens when a Leninist regime attempts to redefine its status—in this case, from satellite to largely self-directed policy. Romania's process of development is compared throughout with other Leninist and non-Leninist regimes.

NEW POLITICS SERIES:

AUTOCRACY AND INSURGENCY IN ORGANIZED LABOR

Edited by Burton H. Hall. Is it possible to democratize a trade union movement dominated by a conservative and in many instances corrupt bureaucracy? This is one of many topics explored in this interesting, provocative volume. The contents are taken from the distinguished body of American labor movement literature which has previously appeared in New Politics. Included are studies of individual labor organizations and accounts of the Negro fight for a place in organized labor. January. 300 pages approx. $3.95 paper. $7.50 cloth.

SOVIET COMMUNISM AND THE SOCIALIST VISION

Edited by Julius Jacobson. This volume examines the intimacies of Soviet Society—its legal practices, its party organization, its economic planning techniques. The writings, taken from New Politics, draw heavily from scholarly sources in Europe. A fascinating insight into the shortcomings of Soviet socialism; a crucial work for everyone interested in the past, present or future of the Soviet regime. January. 300 pages approx. $3.95 paper. $7.95 cloth.

THESE THREE OUT-OF-PRINT TITLES NOW AVAILABLE DIRECTLY FROM TRANSACTION BOOKS

MARXISM AND THE OPEN MIND

John Lewis. A collection of essays covering a wide field of thought on Marxism. Among the topics covered are idealism and ideologies, historical inevitability, Marxism and liberty, Marxism and ethics, Marxist humanism, Sartre and society, Communism as heir to the Christian tradition. $9.50 cloth.

THE STRUGGLE FOR MADRID

The Central Epic of the Spanish Conflict (1936-1937)

Robert G. Colodny. A study of the battles between the armies of the Spanish Republic and the armies of Francisco Franco for the city of Madrid. It was this struggle, ending with the victory of the defending Republican armies, which determined the duration and characteristics of the rest of the conflict. $9.50 cloth.

THE GERMAN PEACE SETTLEMENT AND THE BERLIN CRISIS

Manuel Gottlieb. The German Peace Settlement and its consequences for the great powers in negotiating differences remains a central concern in attempts at stabilizing international relations. This book represents a detailed historical reference for students of international or German politics. $8.95 cloth.

A HISTORY OF RUSSIA Second Edition

Jesse D. Clarkson, Brooklyn College

The Second Edition of this panoramic text places emphasis on analytical interpretations of the origins and growth of social, economic, political, and cultural institutions. The development of Russia over the ages is carefully compared and contrasted to the more familiar story of the development of the Western world. Throughout the book, recent scholarly research is noted, particularly the revisionist attitudes to the cold war.

Random House, 1969; 928 pages; $10.95

THE STRUCTURE OF RUSSIAN HISTORY: INTERPRETIVE ESSAYS

Edited by Michael Cherniavsky, State University of New York at Albany

For use with Professor Clarkson's text or any other introduction to Russian history, these eighteen recent interpretive articles cover problems to 1917. In addition to examining Russian history from the medieval period, the essays treat issues of political theory, art, literature, popular ideology, gentry culture, and the Mongol Yoke. Illustrated.

Random House, 1970; 448 pages; $5.95 paperbound

Dostoevsky:
The Major Fiction
by Edward Wasiolek

"Mr. Wasiolek's Dostoevsky is probably the best guide book to the major fiction that I have seen. It is authoritative, penetrating, incisive; in remarkably short space it provides—under the guise of a guide book, as it were—what amounts to a depth analysis of the key works of a writer who has now become a key figure of contemporary culture. This is a brilliant work of scholarship."—Maxwell Geismar, Chicago Review
$7.95; paperback, $2.95.

Fifty Years of Russian Prose:
From Pasternak to Solzhenitsyn
Two volumes
edited by Krystyna Pomorska

The writings in this anthology represent a highly personal and qualitative selection from both the "golden period" of Russian prose immediately following the 1917 revolution and the period from Stalin's death to the present—a time of "thaw," protest, and a new revival of art.

A number of the stories have been published previously, but about half are original translations. They vary in length from five to over a hundred pages. Each volume in the anthology contains an introductory essay by Krystyna Pomorska and brief biographical sketches of the authors.

Solzhenitsyn
by Georg Lukács

Georg Lukács's last work of literary criticism, on Nobel Prize winner Alexander Solzhenitsyn, hails the Russian author as a major force in redirecting socialist realism toward the level it once occupied in the 1920s when Soviet writers portrayed the turbulent transition to socialist society.

In the first essay Lukács discusses the novella One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich and several stories. In the second, longer section, he greets Solzhenitsyn's novels The First Circle and Cancer Ward, which were published outside Russia, as representing "a new high point in contemporary world literature."

$5.95; paperback, $1.45

The Psychology of Art
by Lev Semenovich Vygotsky

This work, written more than forty years ago, is now translated into English for the first time. The Psychology of Art discusses the literary genre in its classical forms—the fable, the epic, the short story, and Shakespearean tragedy. The heightened levels of perception and feeling that are created by great literature and drama are discussed by Vygotsky with clarity and conviction.

Reading in Russian Poetics:
Formalist and Structuralist Views
edited by Ladislav Matejka
and Krystyna Pomorska

This volume is a collection of the most important contributions concerning the Formalist school, most of them translated for the first time from the Russian or the Czech. The editors have included articles on the general literary theory, on problems in the study of poetry, on selected problems in prose, and on specific literary works (including some by Dickens and O. Henry).
