

Citation: This is the first time the Association has given the Hubert Humphrey Award. It was established to recognize "notable public service by a political scientist." In addition to myself the award committee was composed of Adam Ulam of Harvard University, the chairman, and John Kessel of the Ohio State University. Professor Ulam regrets very much that he cannot be here this evening.

We are pleased to present the Humphrey Award to the senior senator from New York, Daniel Patrick Moynihan. His career is, in our judgment, a remarkable combination of service to the academy and to the nation. To his public service he has brought a freshness of thought and an intellectual independence that best exemplifies the uses of knowledge in the public service. He has also brought both to the academy and to the public life a wit and exuberance that are rare in both.

Senator Moynihan received the Ph.D. from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. He held academic appointments at Harvard University between 1966 and 1976 in education, urban politics, and government, and from 1966 to 1969 he served as director of the Harvard-MIT Joint Center for Urban Studies. He is the coauthor of Beyond the Melting Pot (with Nathan Glazer) and the author of Maximum Feasible Misunderstanding (1969) and The Politics of a Guaranteed Income (1973), as well as many other books, essays, and articles. Since this is a reward for "notable public service," let me remind you briefly of the Senator's record. He began it as a secretary to the governor of New York, and in the 1960s and 1970s he served the administrations of four different presidents in various capacities, including two which carried Cabinet status. Between 1973 and 1976 he was the U.S. Ambassador to India and then to the United Nations. He was elected to the Senate in 1976 and reelected in 1982.

In making this award we have not sought a replica or approximation of Hubert Humphrey, but we are nonetheless pleased that this first award goes to a colleague who shares so many of the Humphrey qualities—a deeply felt social concern, a belief that the public's problems can be solved by the intelligent use of public policy, and even that gift for abundant eloquence. Senator Moynihan also shares with Hubert Humphrey an extraordinary breadth of public experience: executive and legislative, national and local.

Senator Moynihan, you honor us by your presence this evening. It is a very great pleasure to present this award to you in memory of a great American and on behalf of a grateful Association.

APSA Council Minutes August 31, 1983, Chicago

The Council met at the Palmer House at 8:00 a.m., on August 31, 1983 in Chicago. Present: Twiley Barker, Walter Dean Burnham, Philip Converse, M. Margaret Conway, Doris Graber, Ole R. Holsti, Harold Jacobson, Ira Katznelson, Gerald Kramer, Thomas E. Mann, E. Wally Miles, William Riker, Philippe C. Schmitter, Judith N. Shklar, Roberta Sigel, Barbara Sinclair, Sidney Tarrow, Michael Walzer, Ronald Weber, Herbert Weisberg, Susan Welch, Philip Williams and Dina A. Zinnes.

President's Report

President Riker opened the meeting by asking for any additions to the agenda. There were none suggested, and he then reported briefly on his activities as president of the Association.

Council Minutes: Dual Participation Rule at Annual Meeting

Riker noted that the draft March 10-11 Council minutes, printed in the Spring PS, had a typographical error. The Council unanimously approved the minutes as amended by the Administrative Committee to read "An individual may serve on no more than two panels of the official program (that organized by the Program Committee). He/she may serve as an author of a paper on only one panel."

Committee Appointments

Burnham moved that the Council approve the Committee appointments submitted by President-Elect Philip E. Converse, reauthorize the APSR Search Committee with Converse as its chair and with the new President-Elect added to its membership, and authorize Converse to make substitutions for any committee nominees who are unable to accept their appointments. Kramer seconded the motion and it was unanimously approved.

1983 Program Committee

Weisberg reported briefly on the 1983 Program and Riker told the Council that Political Science: The State of the Discipline had been printed and would be displayed at the APSA's new exhibit booth. Weisberg also informed the Council of his efforts to find a publisher for a similar book on "The Science of Politics."

Preregistration

Mann reported on the dramatic increase in preregistration due to the increase in the number of program participants and to enforcement of the Council's preregistration guidelines. He also reported that a number of new members had been added at the same time, largely because of the reduced hotel rates for members.

Award Recipients

The Council reviewed the 1983 APSA award winners which included the first Hubert H. Humphrey award winner—Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan. The complete list of winners and citations will be printed in the Fall PS.

Business Meeting Agenda

The Council approved the proposed Business Meeting agenda.

1984 Program

Graber reported on the 1984 Program, which is using Orwell's 1984 as its theme. She welcomed any ideas to incorporate this theme into the Lasswell Symposium and explained her reasons for reducing the program to 20 official sections in order not to split up the discipline excessively. She expressed her concern about spreading the responsibility of organizing the program and with problems that may arise with new official APSA sections organizing panels. She urged that new sections coordinate their efforts with the Program Committee to avoid duplication of panels.

Political Science: The State of the Discipline

Mann distributed the flyer on the new APSA book Political Science: The State of the Discipline. He recounted the efforts that went into producing the final product and estimated that sale of about 1500 books (including 300-400 hard cover editions) would be necessary to recover the direct investment.

Sections

After Council discussion about official APSA sections and their relationship to the program, the Council reviewed the five groups that petitioned for section status. The Council accepted the Administrative Committee's suggestion that no additional explicit guidelines be established at this time for section approval and that they will be dealt with on a case-by-case basis. They also urged the promotion and development of sections in other subfields. Mann reported that other groups would be meeting at the annual meeting to discuss forming Organized Sections. Sinclair moved that the Council approve the petitions of Federalism and Intergovernmental Relations; Legislative Studies Group; Policy Studies; Political Organizations and Parties; and Law, Courts and Judicial Behavior. Williams seconded the motion and it was unanimously approved.

COPAFS

The Council turned next to the Association's membership in COPAFS (Council of Professional Associations on Federal Statistics). They reviewed reports on COPAFS submitted by its chairman, Judith S. Rowe and executive director, Katherine K. Wallman. Converse gave a brief report on the background of COPAFS and the necessity of APSA's taking an active role and paying membership dues comparable to its sister associations. Burnham brought to the Council's attention a recent review by Andrew Hacker in the New York Times that dealt with problems of the timely public release of government statistics, and he then moved that the Council approve the Administrative Committee's recommendation to pay $4,000 annual membership dues to COPAFS. Conway seconded the motion and it was unanimously approved.

IPSA

The Council reviewed the correspondence between Mann and John E. Trent, Secretary-General of IPSA, concerning the U.S. hosting the 1988 World Congress.

Discussion centered on the problem of insuring that participants would be guaranteed visas to attend the Congress. The State Department could not give any prior guarantee that visas would be issued to all persons interested in attending. Shklar asked if APSA may want to withdraw its bid now in view of the protests made by the U.S. regarding visa denials at the Moscow Congress. Holsti counseled against withdrawal, preferring to let the IPSA Executive Committee, which was meeting with Council members on Sunday, decide whether or not to accept the terms of our bid to host the 1988 Congress. Katznelson moved that the Council defer further discussion until more facts could be gathered concerning the APSA and the IPSA posture on denial of visas at past congresses. Riker seconded the motion and asked Mann to have the staff obtain the relevant information while the Council went on to the other agenda items.

The staff furnished the Council with reports from the winter 1978 PS on "IPSA 1979 World Congress Visa Nondiscrimination Policy" and "Resolution Concerning the Participation of the APSA in the IPSA Congress in Moscow in 1979" from the winter 1979 PS. The latter article contained the following resolution proposed by Gabriel Almond and adopted at the business meeting:

The international academic community has become increasingly concerned about the violations of human rights and academic freedom in the Soviet Union, particularly as they have affected the rights to emigrate, freely travel abroad for scholarly purposes, scholarly access to foreign materials, as well as the restrictions placed on the freedom to do research of Soviet scholars who have voiced disagreements with these policies. This concern has been recently manifest in the United States by committees of the National Academy of Sciences and concerned scientists and scholars who have both publicly protested these violations and have called on scholars to desist from visiting the Soviet Union. A number of groups of American scientists have called off participation in meetings there.

In view of these developments:

1. The American Political Science Association strongly supports the statement of the Executive Council of the International Political Science Association issued August 26, 1978, at its meeting in Rio de Janeiro which seeks to assure freedom of access to the IPSA Congress to be held in Moscow in 1979.
2. The APSA adopts the guidelines on the "Free Circulation of Scientists" issued by the International Congress of Scientific Unions. (See pamphlet "Advice to Organizers of International Scientific Meetings," ICSU Secretariat, pp. 4, 5).
3. The APSA affirms that it would be consistent with these guidelines to request, if it so chose, a change of site from Moscow for the 1979 IPSA meeting, in the case of the denial of visas to bona fide political scientists as Israeli geneticists were denied visas to attend the August 1978 meeting of the International Genetics Congress in Moscow.
4. In the light of this situation, the Association authorizes its Council to take appropriate action in the event of violations of these guidelines or IPSA guidelines in the course of the coming year.
5. The Association authorizes its incoming President to appoint an information committee on the free circulation of scientists to apprise the membership on the implementation of these guidelines in the course of the coming year.

Katznelson moved that the Council affirm the desirability of our hosting the IPSA Congress in 1988 and also reaffirm our commitment as expressed in the Almond resolution to the free circulation of scholars without any discrimination on political or other grounds. Sigel seconded the motion and it was unanimously approved.

The staff was asked to investigate the feasibility of purchasing an insurance policy to cover damages incurred by a last minute cancellation of the IPSA Congress due to visa problems and to discuss with IPSA officials what procedures might be instituted to insure that IPSA/APSA policies on visas apply only to bona fide political scientists.

Finally, Riker informed the Council that the Chinese Political Science Association in Taiwan has accepted the suggestion from APSA that it adopt a name more in line with international scholarly conventions and has reapplied for IPSA membership.

APSR

Dina Zinnes submitted her report as managing editor of the Review as well as the report of Steven Seitz, the book review editor. The Council reviewed the reports, which will be printed in the Fall PS, and discussed the problem of space limitations. Riker reminded the Council that the reauthorized APSR Editor Search Committee would be meeting immediately following the Council meeting.

Budget

Since the treasurer, Allen Schick, was unable to attend, Riker asked Mann to review in detail the final 1982-83 income and expenditures report as well as the official report of the auditors that was distributed to the Council. Mann reported that the Association's financial prospects were bright, thanks largely to a halt in the membership decline and increased income from grant overhead and dividends and interest.

The Council decided not to transfer the surplus from the 1982-83 year to the Trust and Development Fund, but to keep it in the general operating account where it can be used in future years to avoid increases in dues and fees and to enhance member benefits. Tarrow suggested that the Council may wish to earmark certain membership services that the surplus can be used for, and Riker noted that the Review may need more money allocated for its budget after it leaves Illinois.

PS Appendix

The Council asked the staff to explore various options for expending the surplus on behalf of APSA members. The report of the treasurer will be printed in the Fall PS.

Executive Director's Report

The Council reviewed the report submitted by Mann that was published in the summer 1983 issue of PS. Mann highlighted the report and informed the Council of the Insurance Trust Fund Committee's decision to make available a new group term insurance policy that will meet the current needs of subscribers. He also pointed out the changes in the WETA staff members who are working on the joint telecourse project and announced the recent award of a three-year NEH grant for Project '87 to develop a magazine on the Constitution.

PS

Catherine Rudder, the editor of PS, reported on changes in the journal, and the favorable responses to the articles that have been published.

ACLS

The Council perused an extensive report submitted by the APSA delegate to ACLS, William T. Bluhm. Riker suggested that the Council appoint Bluhm to the NEH Liaison Committee and ask that committee to work toward the establishment of an ACLS Committee to preside over a program serving the needs of scholars in the areas of political theory and philosophy. The Council approved unanimously.

COSSA

The Council then reviewed the report on lobbying activities submitted by COSSA. The Council commended the fine work being done by COSSA and requested that Council members be put on the COSSA Washington Update mailing list to remain informed on current activities.

Congressional Fellowship Program

Catherine Rudder, the director of the Congressional Fellowship Program, informed the Council of major fundraising activities initiated as the program enters its 30th year. The Council reviewed a request submitted to NEH for a $250,000 challenge grant to endow four Fellowships thereby establishing a stable financial base for the program. Rudder informed the Council of the initial fundraising activities on behalf of the Steiger Congress-sional Fellowship. Riker commended the Congressional Fellowship Program on its continuing excellence and asked that the Council support these important fundraising efforts.

Committee Reports

The Council reviewed the following committee and project reports:

- Applied Political Scientists Committee
- Departmental Services Committee
- Education Committee
- NEH Liaison Committee
- Professional Ethics, Rights and Freedoms Committee
- Publications Committee
- Research Support Committee
- Status of Blacks Committee
- Status of Chicanos Committee
- Status of Women Committee
- Project '87
- WETA/APSA Telecourse on Congress

In addition to the reports submitted, Robert J-P. Hauck, the staff associate working with applied political scientists, informed the Council that the first career workshop was being given for applied political scientists at the Annual Meeting as well as eight or nine panels organized on that subject. Rudder explained the close relationship between AAAS and the Committee on Professional Ethics, Rights and Freedoms in international cases. Riker urged the Council to give ideas on developing a small grant program (awards under $1,000) to the Research Support Committee. Maurice Woodard, the staff member working with the Committees on the Status of Blacks and Chicanos, reported on the current status of this year's Black Fellowship recipients. He also was instructed by the Council to convey to the Status of Chicanos Committee the Council's desire to broaden the request for a chicano fellowship to include all hispanics.

Funding in International Studies

Finally, Katznelson asked that the Council discuss the status of an effort led by Robert Ward of Stanford University to increase funding in international studies. The Council discussed at length the implications of governmental funding for scholarly research, particularly when funds are supplied by intelligence agencies. Jacobson requested that the staff obtain copies of Ward's original document, his report on the 1983 meeting, and his proposed changes in the structure of the funding institution which cover this issue in some detail and circulate them to the Council. Mann confirmed that APSA sponsorship of any such effort would require specific action by the Council.

President Riker thanked the staff and the Council for their support and work during the past year. Burnham moved that the Council thank Riker for his fine efforts, Sinclair seconded it, and there was a round of applause. The meeting adjourned at 3:00 p.m.

Project '87: Summer Faculty Workshops

Under the aegis of the Lilly Endowment, Project '87 offered a series of college faculty workshops in the summer of 1983. (See related article in Association News in this issue.) The titles of the seminars, their directors and participants are listed below.
