ILLUSTRATED HISTORY

China

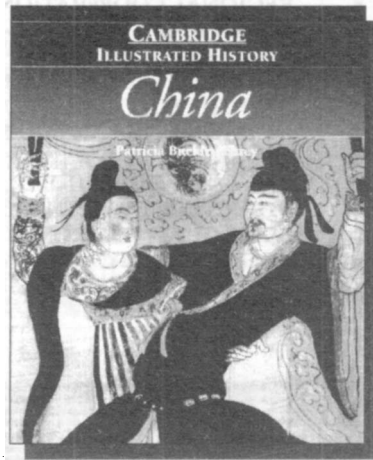

Patricia Buckley Ebrey

Professor of East Asian Studies, University of Illinois

Written by a leading specialist on Chinese history, The Cambridge Illustrated History of China explores the contribution of the various factors and forces, ideas and inventions, events and leaders that have shaped Chinese civilization. Phenomenal in scope, the book embraces all aspects of Chinese arts, culture, economics, politics and society. But key emphasis is placed throughout on the major social and cultural developments, and how they impinged on the lives of ordinary people.

Detailed, imaginative and highly visual, this book is essential reading for anyone interested in China, its society and its culture.

- Draws, wherever possible, on traditional Chinese interpretations of events and developments
- Lavishly illustrated in colour throughout
