The new concordance of the Latin Vulgate is both more reliable and more comprehensive than any of its predecessors during the last 700 years. Its special advantages are that it is based on a hitherto inaccessible text and that it makes use of the most up-to-date technology and skills of data-processing. Bonifatius Fischer OSB, the editor of the new concordance, is the founder of the vetus Latina Institute in Beuron, which he directed until 1973. As the basis for his concordance he used the text of the new critical edition of the Vulgate, edited by Robert Weber, of which he himself was a co-editor.
