Mission Statement

The European Journal of Sociology (EJS) is a peer-reviewed general sociology journal, founded in 1960 by prominent European scholars and intellectuals such as Raymond Aron, Ralf Dahrendorf, Tom Bottomore, Michel Crozier and Éric de Dampierre. EJS embraces the scientific ambitions of the historical and modern classics of the discipline and publishes original empirical and theoretical articles from all areas of sociology. The journal invites especially the submission of manuscripts concerned with the economy, the state, religion, law, science, politics, technology, and culture. Over the course of its history, EJS has developed a reputation for comparative and historical research and a keen interest in the evolution and diversity of cultures, civilizations, and institutions. The journal welcomes innovative qualitative and quantitative research and encourages sociologically informed contributions from anthropologists, economists, political scientists, historians, legal scholars, and philosophers. EJS aims at advancing theoretical debates in the discipline, disseminating sociological research from European countries, and enhancing interaction between European and non-European sociology. Contributions may take several forms: research articles, critical essays, key concept and state of the art papers. Extended book reviews appear in the journal's final issue each year.
