Basic Documents on Human Rights

Edited by Ian Brownlie

In order to maintain the usefulness of this collection of sources, for the second edition the editor has included some significant materials which have emerged in recent years, such as the Final Act of the Helsinki Conference, the United Nations Declaration of Protection from Torture, and the judgment of the European Court of Human Rights in The Sunday Times case. Second edition £15 paper covers £9.50

Constitutional Theory

Geoffrey Marshall

'The author has maintained the very high standards which we have come to expect from the Clarendon Law Series' (Cambridge Law Journal). This paperback reprint replaces the boards edition of this book, which introduces some of the basic ideas underlying the Anglo-American system of constitutional government and examines them. Paper covers £4.95

Enacting a Bill of Rights

The Legal Problems

Joseph Jaconelli

'Dr Jaconelli has undertaken the useful job of filling in the background to many of the technical problems that surround this subject. He has taken a broad view and has explored many more legal byways than are normally visited by those who have discussed the pros and cons of bills of rights in Parliament or in political or academic writings. . . . This is a wide-ranging and discursive book. . . . Lawyers and others interested will find it full of food for thought.' H. W. R. Wade in The T.L.S. £14

The European Convention on Human Rights

Francis Jacobs

'Professor Jacobs' book is one of the most comprehensive and informative writings published to date on this important area of international law.' Millennium. This is a paperback reprint of the book which was originally published in hard covers. Paper covers £6.95

Oxford University Press

The Judge

Patrick Devlin

'There are two reasons for reading Lord Devlin's book. One is that it is so well written. Almost every page gleams with phrases and images that are pure delight. . . . But the chief reason is that Lord Devlin, intellectually our most distinguished judge, addresses important themes and illuminates each with new insights.' Michael Zander in The Spectator. £8.50

Compensation for Incapacity

Geoffrey Palmer

The Accident Compensation Act, passed in New Zealand in 1972, abolished the right to sue for damages for personal injury and in place of the old legal remedies came automatic compensation, without proof of fault, for all victims of injury. Geoffrey Palmer was consultant for the reform in New Zealand and for the inquiry into the scheme that took place in Australia. £17.25

Origins of Muhammadan Jurisprudence

Joseph Schacht

First published in hard covers in 1950, this book now appears in paperback for the first time, replacing the hard-cover edition. Paper covers £4.50

Basic Community Laws

Treaties Up-dated—Secondary Legislation—UK Sources

Edited by Bernard Rudden and Derrick Wyatt

For the first time this book makes available a collection of basic Community laws organized to provide the indispensable basis for a study of the European Community. Part I includes the Treaty of Rome, incorporating later developments in the Merger Treaty, the Budget Treaties, the Treaties of Accession (first of the Three and now of Greece), and the new measures on direct elections; the institutional and general provisions governing the coal and steel community; the major Acts on the Court of Justice, on Community resources, and on fundamental rights. Part II contains the basic and durable legislation on the main fields of community activity. Part III contains the key UK legislation. £12.50 paper covers £4.95

The Concept of a Legal System

An Introduction to the Theory of Legal System

Joseph Raz

'It is a work of major interest and importance which opens up a whole range of new and fascinating topics in analytical legal philosophy.' Philosophical Quarterly. 'Dr Raz has written a remarkable book, a book of depth, penetration, and originality.' The Modern Law Review. For this second edition of this important essay on jurisprudence Dr Raz has written a postscript in which some of the central themes of the book are restated and examined. £8.95 paper covers £3.95

Natural Law and Natural Rights

John Finnis

This book confronts moral scepticism head-on. It uses contemporary analytical tools to provide basic accounts of values and principles, community and 'common good', justice and human rights, authority, law, the varieties of obligation, unjust law, and even the question of divine authority. It is an authoritative restatement of natural law doctrine and will also give the student of moral, legal, or political philosophy a fundamental orientation in these disciplines. £15 paper covers £6.95 Clarendon Law Series

The Contract of Employment

Mark Freedland

'The analysis is coherent and satisfying, the fundamental principles underlying the law are brought out, appropriate solutions to old problems and new doubts are persuasively suggested, and, above all, at the end of the book one feels simply that one has an intellectual understanding of something that was previously at best only dimly perceived.' British Journal of Industrial Relations. This is a paperback reprint. £7.50

The Chronicle of Battle Abbey

Edited by Eleanor Searle

This work, written in the last quarter of the twelfth century, may be described as the earliest teaching casebook in English common law. Its author was evidently his abbey's advocate for many years, and he presents a vivid first-hand account of the royal courts. £20 Oxford Medieval Texts

Legislative Series

The Legislative Series is a periodical prepared by a specialised service of the International Labour Office and has been issued without interruption since the ILO was founded in 1919. It contains reprints or translations of selected labour and social security laws recently enacted throughout the world. Parallel editions are produced in French and Spanish. The twice-yearly numbers are issued in a binding enabling the texts to be kept together in this form or broken up and grouped together according to individual requirements. The subscription includes an annual supplement, containing a subject index to the texts printed in the Legislative Series during the year, and a chronological list, by country, of all legislation of lasting interest that has come to the knowledge of the ILO.

Annual subscription rate 1980 (2 issues, plus supplement)
