THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF IRAN

Volume 4: From the Arab Invasion to the Saljuqs

Edited by R. N. FRYE

The Cambridge History of Iran is planned as an eight-volume survey of Iranian history and culture, its contribution to the civilization of the world. All aspects of the religious, philosophical, political, economic, scientific and artistic elements in Iranian civilization are studied, with some emphasis on the geographical and ecological factors which have contributed to that civilization's special character. The aim is to provide a collection of readable essays rather than a catalogue of information. The volumes offer scope for the publication of new ideas as well as providing summaries of established facts. It is hoped that the volumes will act as a stimulus to specialists; but they are primarily concerned to answer the sort of questions about Iran that are asked by the non-specialist.

Volume 4 is a survey of every aspect of the civilizations which flourished in the Iranian region from the Arab conquests to the Saljuq expansion: in particular, it studies the gradual transition of Iran from Zoroastrianism to Islam, the uniting of all Iranians under one rule, the flowering into full magnificence of the Persian language, and the establishment of those other arts which were to flourish so brilliantly after the Mongol conquest. The volume as a whole provides a comprehensive record of the formative centuries of Islam in Iran.
