2 volumes of selected essays by Jan Mukařovský

The Word and Verbal Art

translated and edited by John Burbank
and Peter Steiner
Foreword by René Wellek

Until now very few of the writings of Jan Mukařovský, the father of structural aesthetics, have been available to the non-Czech reader. This collection, comprising eleven essays written between 1933 and 1946, provides access to one of the earliest and still most significant formulations of a structuralist theory of literature.

"Highly recommended . . . for its contributions to both linguistics and literary theory and to the theory of structuralism in general."

Structure, Sign, and Function

translated and edited by John Burbank
and Peter Steiner

These essays by the Czech critic Jan Mukařovský concentrate on his writings on general esthetics, art, architecture, theatre, and film. They are not only among the earliest contributions to the structuralist study of art but they also provide a lucid and valuable source for anyone who wishes to become acquainted with contemporary critical methods in the humanities. $15.00

CONTEMPORARY YUGOSLAV POETRY Vasa D. Mihailovich, editor

This comprehensive anthology of Yugoslav poets presents a wide spectrum of contemporary poetry. The forty-three poets included here published from prior to World War II to recent times, with the bulk of them representing the very active middle generation. The six distinct ethnic backgrounds in Yugoslavia gave diversity to the poetry, while World War II and the formation of a Socialist Federated Republic established the atmosphere surrounding the creation of these poems.

"There is a wealth of good poetry here. The selection of authors is quite representative of the best Yugoslav poets today. The translations are on the whole quite good, particularly those in which a native speaker of English collaborated with a native speaker of Serbo-Croatian."—Thomas Butler, University of Wisconsin

ALLEN & UNWIN, INC., the American Division of George Allen and Unwin, Ltd., takes pleasure in announcing that some of its most distinguished titles are now available from our new U.S. headquarters.

All new titles

THE SOVIET ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Alec Nove • A completely rewritten version of the book that has gone through three previous editions and been translated into nine languages. This new book minimizes institutional detail and concentrates on structural problems and the dynamics of—and obstacles to—change. Separate chapters are included on “centralized pluralism,” investment and technical progress, prices, agriculture, internal and external trade, labor and wages, public finance and inflation. Alternative socialist models are considered and the author takes a challenging and original approach to comparing the effectiveness of economic systems. $23.25 cloth, $10.95 paper.

THE ECONOMICS OF SOCIALISM Third Edition

Principles Governing the Operation of the Centrally Planned Economies in the USSR and Eastern Europe under the New System

J. Wilczynski • In this new, substantially revised edition, the author covers all aspects of socialist economics: planning, profit, production, and growth, investment, consumption, labor and land. Other topics include: fiscal policy, banking, domestic and foreign trade, and international economic cooperation. The author finally presents an objective comparison of socialist and capitalist economies and considers whether the two are converging. Special features include a full glossary of Soviet economic terms, extensive references for further reading in English, and a guide to periodicals, English and foreign. $8.75 paper.

THE SOVIET UNION

Edited by R.W. Davies • This general introduction to the contemporary Soviet Union provides a remarkable example of an integrated, multi-disciplinary approach to a major set of world problems. The basic facts about the Soviet Union and the results of recent research form the background for consideration of major disputes and unsolved problems such as: is the Soviet Union a genuine socialist state or a new class society? Is it a successful example of a planned industrialization, or a backward country, or an inefficient dictatorship? $13.25 cloth. $6.50 paper.

New in paperback

THE SOCIALIST INDUSTRIAL STATE Towards a Political Sociology of State Socialism

David Lane • Covering the USSR, East Europe, and China, using a thematic approach, David Lane considers political structure, culture, political consent and opposition, and political elites. He treats three other socialist countries as counterpoints to the Soviet model and assesses various “outcomes” of the political system, presenting the available evidence on forms of social equality and inequality and of mobility between groups with a view to determining whether a system of hereditary stratification is evolving. $7.75 paper
