POPULAR GOVERNMENT IN AN AFRICAN TOWN

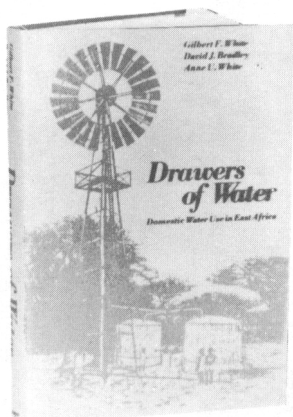

Kita, Mali

Nicholas S. Hopkins

Examines how local identity and massive popular participation set the framework for political struggle in Kita. This study analyzes the critical relationship between national and local conceptions of key political ideals. The book is an important contribution to an understanding of the political development and organization of emerging African states, and it gives a vivid picture of the efforts of one community to cope with its problem.

DRAWERS OF WATER

Domestic Water Use in East Africa

Gilbert F. White, David J. Bradley, and Anne U. White

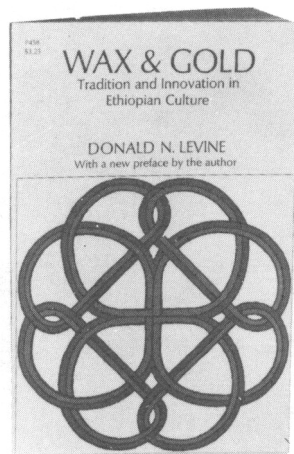

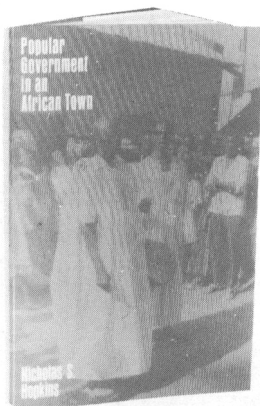

Based on several years of detailed investigations in a variety of sites, ranging from remote subsistence farms in the Uganda highlands to slums and high-income dwellings in the growing cities, this study considers systems of water use and their improvement in developing countries. Monetary and energy costs of obtaining water, health effects, productivity of water users, volume and allocation of water, and how water users choose among possible alternative sources of water are examined.

WAX AND GOLD

Tradition and Innovation in Ethiopian Culture

Donald N. Levine

With a new Preface by the author

Using the insights and tools of several disciplines, Donald Levine looks on Amhara culture as history, as a social structure, and as a "combination of opposites." With acuity and sensitivity he describes the strains modernization places upon the traditional culture. Cloth edition (1965), $10.00.

Information for contributors to the Review: Contributions are welcome whether or not the author is a member of the Association. Manuscripts should be typed on one side of sheet only, double-spaced, and with ample margins for editorial marking. The original and, if possible, one carbon copy should be submitted. Authors are advised to include footnote material in the text wherever possible. Footnotes should be numbered consecutively throughout the article but should not include bibliographical references. These should be incorporated within the text in parentheses with the author's last name, date of publication, and specific pages. An end bibliography with entries arranged by authors' last names should list the complete references and inclusive pages for articles. Articles may be illustrated with line drawings and maps, classified as figures, to be submitted in final form (except for size). Tables should be carefully prepared and should replace text, not duplicate it.

Book reviews, to be sent to the Book Review Editor, carry no footnotes and "References Cited" but incorporate bibliographical references and notes within the text. Please include complete information on the reviewed book (title, sub-title, author, publisher, place and date of publication, number of pages and plates, addenda, price). Short papers (up to 12 manuscript pages) may be submitted for the Brief Communications section. For details of form and style, consult a recent Review. Contributors of articles receive ten reprints with covers.

All editorial correspondence and manuscripts, with the exception of book reviews, should be sent to John P. Henderson, African Studies Center, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan 48823. Manuscripts should be received no later than January 15, June 15, and September 15 respectively.

RURAL HAUSA

A Village and a Setting

POLLY HILL

An examination of the economic life of a rural community in Hausaland. Themes which emerge are those which Polly Hill has stressed elsewhere: people do not fit into stereotypes and economic life is always more varied and intricate than a superficial observer would expect. The book includes a 137-page alphabetical commentary of reference material which also serves as a glossary of Hausa words. Illustrated $25.00

THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF COLONIALISM IN GHANA

Edited by GEOFFREY KAY

The main argument of this book is that in Ghana the official British colonial commitment to free trade and laissez-faire was not reflected in practice, and that the colonial government was unwilling to foster trade that did not contribute directly to the accumulation of British capital. This viewpoint is presented in an introductory essay to a collection of edited official documents for the period 1920-1950.

Also included is a statistical abstract for the years 1900-1960 which is one of the most complete for any underdeveloped country. $25.00

KALAHARI VILLAGE POLITICS

ADAM KUPER

Dr. Kuper examines the political organization of Kuli, from field work done in 1963-1964 and 1966-1967. "A meticulous, lucidly organized study of the micro-politics of a remote group of Sotho speakers, the Ngologo, closely related to the Tswana, and resident in the Kalahari semi-desert." — Africa Report. "The study is richly documented with cases from the lekgota or village court/council, and shows the relationships between politics and the social and economic life of the community, and the articulation of local and national systems...A welcome, carefully argued account..." — Choice $11.50

RELIGION AND THE TRANSFORMATION OF SOCIETY

A Study in Social Change in Africa

MONICA WILSON

Using the theoretical framework established in The Analysis of Social Change, Professor Wilson studies changes in the religious aspect of previously isolated societies coming into contact with the outside world. The theme is illustrated by an examination of symbolism in the traditional African societies. $6.00
