PUBLIC RELATIONS AND BUSINESS, 1900-1929

BY ALAN R. RAUCHER

Public relations as a specialized vocation did not emerge until the twentieth century. Professor Raucher's lively account begins with the essentially defensive public relations policies first formulated by business leaders and goes on to trace their developing interest in producing a favorable market through press agents — former journalists such as James D. Ellsworth, George V. S. Michaelis, Ivy L. Lee, and E. H. Heinrichs. The railroads and utilities in particular found publicity specialists useful in creating a favorable public image. Running through the author's account is a history of the efforts to professionalize public relations and to raise the position of the public relations agent to the managerial level. Detailing the publicity programs of various companies and following the careers of the most famous publicity agents, the author demonstrates the growth of sophisticated techniques, the emergence of a rationale for public relations, and the development of a foundation for modern public relations.

Alan R. Raucher is a specialist in American social and intellectual history at Wayne State University.

Newcomen Awards in Business History

Presented by

THE NEWCOMEN SOCIETY IN NORTH AMERICA

in cooperation with

THE BUSINESS HISTORY REVIEW

¶ Two Newcomen Awards in Business History are offered annually for articles published in the Business History Review. The First Prize, of $250, is awarded the article judged, according to the rules outlined below, to be the best of the year. The Special Award, of $100, is for the best article by an author who is not more than 35 years of age and who has not published a book.

¶ Prize articles are selected by a panel of judges composed of a representative of The Newcomen Society and members of the Advisory Board of the Business History Review. No member of the Advisory Board or editorial staff shall be eligible for a prize, and articles so authorized will not be considered in the judging. Authors eligible for the Special Award shall also be eligible for the First Prize, but in no event shall both prizes be awarded for the same article. The Advisory Board reserves the right to withhold the Special Award in the event that eligible articles do not, in the Board's judgment, merit prize consideration. The awards program is administered by the editorial offices of the magazine.

¶ Criteria for selection include: originality, value, breadth, and interest of contribution, quality of research materials and methods, and quality of presentation.

The Thomas Newcomen $1,000 Award in Business History

Presented by

in cooperation with

THE BUSINESS HISTORY REVIEW

¶ The Newcomen Society in North America, in cooperation with the Business History Review, announces a prize of $1,000 and scroll to be awarded in 1970 for the best book on the history of business published in the United States during the years 1967-1969.

¶ For the purposes of this award, "the history of business" will be interpreted in its broadest sense, including not only the history of firms or industries, but books tracing interactions of businessmen, analyses of business philosophy or behavior, and studies of the adjustment of businesses and businessmen to their economic, political, and social environments.

¶ Criteria for selection will include contribution to knowledge, depth of analysis, soundness of reasoning, clarity of style and organization, and general readability and format.

¶ The committee to select the recipient of the 1970 Thomas Newcomen $1,000 Award in Business History is composed of: Professor James P. Baughman, Editor, Business History Review, Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration; Mr. Stanley van den Heuvel, Trustee, The Newcomen Society in North America; and Professor Arthur M. Johnson, Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, chairman.

¶ The 1970 Thomas Newcomen $1,000 Award in Business History will be the third in a series of triennial prizes intended to encourage the study and improve the writing of business history in the United States and Canada.

Mutual Savings Banks: the Evolution of a Financial Intermediary

By Weldon Welgling

Mutual savings banks in the United States, Europe, and elsewhere constitute a "movement" which provides an unusual combination of welfare and profit motives. Once the principal financial institutions in the United States, savings banks suffered a decline in national importance but underwent a dramatic resurgence after World War II, attaining assets in excess of $61 billion by 1966.

Against the historical background, this study examines the current importance and problems of the industry in the United States. Light is thrown on the debate over federal charters for savings banks and on such related questions — as whether savings banks should be permitted to make personal loans and whether they can be effective competitors with stockholder-owned commercial banks. This sesqui-centennial history brings up to date all previous work in the area. Current statistics on savings banks in the United States make the book an invaluable reference for economists and specialists in finance. 325 pages, $7.95
