

Mark Graber, assistant professor, department of government and politics, University of Maryland-College Park.

Susan Haire, assistant professor of political science, University of North Carolina.

Ollie A. Johnson III, assistant professor, department of government and politics, University of Maryland-College Park.

Pam Mason, assistant professor, department of political science, John Carroll University.

Neil A. Pinney, assistant professor, department of political science, Western Michigan University.

Glen Ross, student recommended faculty, department of politics and society, University of California-Irvine; formerly Otterbein College, Ohio.

Steven Vogel, assistant professor, department of politics and society, University of California-Irvine; formerly of University of California, Berkeley.

Promotions

Ronald Brown, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Wayne State University.

Susan Buck, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Mark R. Daniels, associate professor, department of political science, public affairs programs, Memphis State University.

Richard C. Elling, professor, department of political science, Wayne State University.

Mark P. Gibney, professor, department of political science, Purdue University.

Robert Kirby Goidel, assistant professor of political science, University of Southwestern Louisiana.

James M. Ingram, professor of political science, University of Alaska, Anchorage. Ingram will be on leave in 1993-1994 to work on his book, The Education of Winston Churchill.

Kristen Monroe, professor, department of politics and society, University of California, Irvine.

Amita Shastri, associate professor, department of political science, San Francisco State University.

Penny A. Weiss, associate professor, department of political science, Purdue University.

Retirements

Richard C. Claude, professor, department of government and politics, University of Maryland-College Park.

Chun-tu Hsueh, professor, department of government and politics, University of Maryland-College Park.

Edgar Litt, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Ralph Ranald, associate professor, department of government and politics, University of Maryland-College Park.

David RePass, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

T. McN. Simpson, associate professor, department of political science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Morton J. Tenzer, associate professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Visiting Appointments

Samuel Decalo, visiting professor, department of political science, University of Florida.

Andrew P. Dunne, Lentz Postdoctoral Fellow in Global Issues, International Conflict and Peace Research, Political Science and Center for International Studies, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Robert S. Jordan, serving second year as visiting professor of international relations, department of national security studies, Air War College. He is on leave from the University of New Orleans, where he is a research professor of international institutions and professor of political science.

Marion Just, Wellesley College, visiting professor of public policy for 1993-94, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University.

Sarah McCally Morehouse, professor emeritus of political science at the University of Connecticut, has been appointed visiting scholar at the University of Kentucky for 1992-1994.

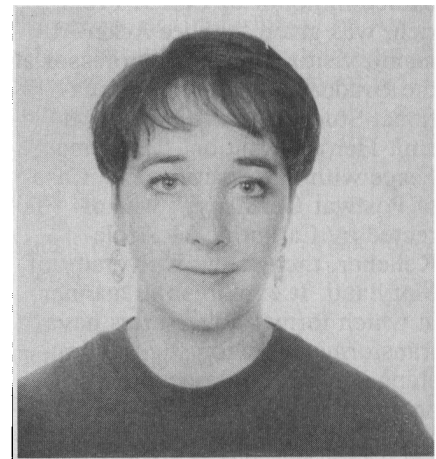

Moo-Sup Shin, professor, department of public administration, Chon Buk National University, Korea, visiting professor, department of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Kenny Whitby, associate professor, University of South Carolina, visiting scholar at Wayne State University during fall semester 1993.

Award Recipients

Women's Caucus Dissertation Award

The Women's Caucus for Political Science presented the 1993 Alice Paul Dissertation Proposal Award to Rachel K. Gibson, of Texas A & M University, for her prospectus on "Western European Anti-Immigrant Parties, 1970-90."

Rachel K. Gibson

People in Political Science

An honorable mention was given to Barbara Walters, of the University of Chicago, for her research on "The Resolution of Civil Wars: Why Incumbents and Insurgents Do Not Negotiate." The Alice Paul Dissertation Proposal Award is a prize of $250 given to the best dissertation prospectus in political science or public administration by a female graduate student.

Mary Lepper Award

The Women's Caucus for Political Science has named two winners of its 1993 Mary Lepper Award. The award, given every other year, was established to honor a woman who holds a Ph.D., and who combines an academic career with a politically active or public service career. Jo Freeman, an advocate of civil and women's rights, has balanced a career in the study of women and politics and participation in Brooklyn politics. Elsie Scott, has moved from a university career to the realm of law enforcement. The former Executive Director of the National Association of Black Law Enforcement Officials, Scott is presently New York City Deputy Police Commissioner for training.

Carl J. Freidrich Prize

The Conference Group on German Politics' dissertation award, named in honor of Carl J. Freidrich, was given to Alice Ackermann, visiting assistant professor at the Graduate School of International Studies, University of Miami. Her dissertation, "Building Peace with Adversaries: The Case of Postwar Germany," was directed by Catherine McArdle Kelleher, then at the University of Maryland. It explores the manner in which former adversaries have transformed antagonistic relationships into peaceful ones, using postwar Germany as a case study. Melvin Croan, University of Wisconsin-Madison, chaired the dissertation award committee.

Policy Studies Organization 1993 Awards

The Policy Studies Organization presented its 1993 awards at the APSA Annual Meeting on September 3, 1993, in Washington, DC. The winners are as follows:

Harold D. Lasswell Award

For outstanding scholarship in contribution to our understanding of the substance or process of public policy. James Anderson, Texas A & M University

Donald Campbell Award

For being an outstanding methodological innovator in policy studies. Michael White, University of Southern California

Hubert H. Humphrey Award

For being an outstanding public policy practitioner. William Crotty, Northwestern University

Theodore Lowi Award

For the best article in the Policy Studies Journal in 1992. John Echeverri-Gent, University of Virginia

Jeffrey Pressman Award

For the best article in the Policy Studies Review in 1992. Jack Scarborough, Barry University

Aaron Wildavsky Book Award

For the best policy studies book in 1992. William Dunn and Rita Kelly, Advances in Policy Studies Since 1950, Transaction Books, 1992.

Thomas R. Dye Award

For outstanding service to the Policy Studies Organization. Joyce Nagel, University of Illinois

PSO Presidents Award

For service as a PSO president. Alan Stone, University of Houston

Miriam K. Mills Award

An outstanding individual in the policy studies field under age 35. Gary King, Harvard University

1993 Fulbright Scholars Announced

The J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board and the United States Information Agency have announced the presentation of 1993 Fulbright grants to over 980 scholars. This year 63 political scientists were awarded grants. They are listed below with their academic affiliation in the U.S. and the location where the grant period will be spent.

Hisham H. Ahmed

University of North Dakota, Palestinian Academic Society for the Study of International Affairs, Jerusalem, West Bank

Robert E. Biles

Sam Houston State University, Catholic University of Ecuador, Quito, Ecuador

Charles J. Bukowski

Bradley University, University of Ljubljana, Ljubljana, Slovenia

Terry F. Buss

University of Akron—Main Campus, Budapest University of Economic Sciences, Budapest, Hungary

Francis M. Carney

University of California—Riverside, University of Tirana, Tirana, Albania

Judith A. Chubb

College of the Holy Cross, Kazan State University, Kazan, Russia

Kenneth M. Coleman

University of New Mexico, National Autonomous University of Nicaragua, Managua, Nicaragua

Pamela J. Conover

University of North Carolina—
Chapel Hill, NATO Research
Fellowship Program

Beverly K. Crawford

University of California—Berkeley,
American University in Bulgaria,
Blagoevgrad, Bulgaria

Paul J. D'Anieri

University of Kansas, Lviv State University, Lviv, Ukraine

James W. Derleth

University of the Pacific, American University in Bulgaria, Blagoevgrad,
Bulgaria

John S. Duffield

University of Virginia, NATO Research Fellowship Program

Norman R. Eder

Oregon Graduate Institute of Science and Technology, Hanyang
University, Seoul, Korea

Robert E. Elder

Hope College, Bangladesh Association of American Studies, Dhaka, Bangladesh, and University of Colombo, Colombo, Sri Lanka

Karen A. Feste

University of Denver, Diplomatic Academy of Vienna, Vienna, Austria

Keitha S. Fine

University of Massachusetts—
Boston, Comenius University,
Bratislava, Slovak Republic

Donald M. Freeman

University of Evansville, University of San Jose Recoletos, Cebu
City, Philippines

Gail M. Gerhart

CUNY—Graduate and University Center, University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, South Africa

Roy H. Ginsberg

Skidmore College, Center for European Policy Studies, Brussels, Belgium

Gregory W. Gleason

University of New Mexico, Tashkent State University, Tashkent, Uzbekistan

Malcolm L. Goggin

University of Houston, University of Strathclyde, Glasgow, United Kingdom

Mel Gurtov

Portland State University, Hanguk
University of Foreign Studies,
Seoul, Korea

Paul Y. Hammond

University of Pittsburgh, Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, Singapore

Nand E. Hart Nibbrig

George Mason University, National Research Institute, Port Moresby,
Papua, New Guinea

Beverly G. Hawk

University of Alabama—Birmingham, University of Nairobi,
Nairobi, Kenya

Raymond A. Hinnebusch

College of St. Catherine, University of Durham, Durham, United Kingdom

Gerald L. Houseman

Indiana University-Purdue University—Fort Wayne, Diponegoro University, Semarang, Central
Java, and Hasanuddin University, Ujung Pandang, South Sulawesi,
Indonesia

Michael C. Hudson

Georgetown University, University of Sanaa, Sanaa, Yemen

Ruth Iyob

Emory University, Asmara University, Asmara, Eritrea

John E. Jackson

University of Michigan, Jagiellonian University, Krakow, Poland

Kenneth Janda

Northwestern University, Budapest
University of Economics, Budapest, Hungary, John Marshall Chair

Rasma Karklins

University of Illinois—Chicago,
University of Latvia, Riga, Latvia

Andrew M. Koch

Winthrop College, Quaid-i-Azam
University, Islamabad, Pakistan

Stanley A. Kochanek

Pennsylvania State University,
Economic Development Institute,
Karachi, Pakistan; Center for Policy Research, Dhaka, Bangladesh; and Center for Development Research, New Delhi, India

Andrzej Korbonski

University of California—Los Angeles, Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, Polish Academy of Sciences, Warsaw, Poland

Fred H. Lawson

Mills College, University of Aleppo,
Aleppo, Syria

William J. Long

Georgia Institute of Technology,
University of Leiden, Leiden, Netherlands, Thomas Jefferson
Chair

People in Political Science

Abraham F. Lowenthal

University of Southern California, visits to various institutions, Japan

Andrew Ludanyi

Ohio Northern University, Lajos Kossuth University, Debrecen, Hungary

Ardith L. Maney

Iowa State University, West Bohemian University, Pilsen, Czech Republic

James M. McCormick

Iowa State University, University of Waikato, Hamilton, New Zealand

Barbara P. McCrea

University of Notre Dame, University of Zagreb, Zagreb, Croatia

Kurt L. Mendenhall

Independent Scholar, University of Damascus, Damascus, Syria

Eusebio Mujal-Leon

Georgetown University, Autonomous University of Madrid and University of Alcala de Henares, Madrid, Spain

David M. O'Brien

University of Virginia, Tokyo International University, Tokyo, Japan

Glenn R. Parker

Florida State University, University of Nijmegen, Nijmegen, Netherlands, John Adams Chair

Anthony W. Pereira

New School for Social Research, State University of Campinas, Sao Paulo, Brazil

Steven E. Perimutter

New York University, Giovanni Agnelli Foundation and the Carlo Cattaneo Institute, Bologna, Italy

James F. Pontuso

Hampden-Sydney College, University of Economics, Prague, Czech Republic

George K. Romoser

University of New Hampshire, University of Freiburg, Freiburg, Germany

John F.L. Ross

Northeastern University, University of Tampere, Tampere, Finland

Donald D. Searing

University of North Carolina—Chapel Hill, NATO Research Fellowship Program

Robert J. Slagter

Birmingham-Southern College, Foreign Affairs College, Beijing, People's Republic of China

William R. Smith

Lake Forest College, Visits to various institutions in France, Spain

Paul C. Sondrol

University of Colorado, Catholic University, Asuncion, Paraguay

Selma K. Soontag

Humboldt State University, Tribhuvan University, Kathmandu, Nepal, and University of Lucknow, Lucknow, India

John D. Spence, Jr.

University of Massachusetts—Boston, Central America University, San Salvador, El Salvador

Tom A. Travis

Bucknell University, Presidency College, Madras, and Mahatma Gandhi University, Kottayam, India

Doru Tsaganea

CUNY—Graduate and University Center, University of Cluj, Cluj, Romania

Larry L. Wade

University of California—Davis, Hanguk University of Foreign Studies, Seoul, Korea

Meredith W. Watts

University of Wisconsin—Milwaukee, University of Siegen, Siegen, Germany

Claude E. Welch, Jr.

SUNY—Buffalo, Visits to various institutions in Namibia, Nigeria, Senegal, and Ethiopia

Carol Wise

Claremont Graduate School, Technological Autonomous Institute of Mexico, Mexico City, Mexico

Council For European Studies Pre-Dissertation Fellowships for 1993

The Council's selection committee reviewed 105 applications from doctoral candidates at 50 universities. The committee was composed of the following: Mabel Berezin, sociology, University of Pennsylvania; Judith-Maria Buechler, anthropology, Hobart & William Smith Colleges; Atina Grossmann, history, Columbia University; Martin Schain, Politics, New York University.

Pre-Dissertation Fellowships in European Community Studies, funded by a grant to the Council from the European Commission, were awarded to the following:

Jeanie J. Bukowski, political science, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign: "A Community of Regions: European Economic and Political Integration Reexamined. A Comparison of Spain and Portugal."

Steven W. Casper, government, Cornell University: "Industrial Restructuring in the New Europe: The Development of Transnational Production Networks in Response to Economic and Political Change."

Pre-Dissertation Fellowships, funded by a grant to the Council from the Ford Foundation's program in education and culture, were awarded to the following:

Katrina Burgess, politics, Princeton University: "Crisis, Coalitions, and Economic Reform: "Spain in Comparative Perspective."

Cecilia Chessa, political science, University of Washington (Seattle): "Democratic Consolidation in Eastern Germany: Researching Emergent Civil Society as the Basis for a Comparative Approach."

Denis Saint-Martin, political science, Carleton University: "Managerialism and Citizenship: A Comparative Study of Recent Bureaucratic Reforms in the British, Canadian and French States."

Mitchell Orenstein, political science, Yale University: "The Economic Policy Process in East Central Europe."

The Social Science Research Council 1993 Research Workshop Awards

The SSRC-MacArthur Foundation's Research Workshop Awards are intended to permit junior faculty members and other junior scholars to meet for two to three days of intensive discussion on a specific topic related to the study of international peace and security. Organizers initiating the workshops are members of the MacArthur research community, including recipients of: SSRC-MacArthur Foundation Fellowships in International Peace and Security (past and present), MacArthur Foundation Grants for Research and Writing, MacArthur Collaborative Studies Grants, or any other direct or indirect grant from the MacArthur Foundation's Program on Peace and International Cooperation. For the October 1993 competition the Committee on International Peace and Security made the following awards:

Mohammed A. Bamyeh, University of Massachusetts, Multiculturalism and Transnationalism

Oleg Bukharin, Center for Energy and Environmental Studies, Princeton University, Fissile Material Cutoff

Sohail Hashmi and Beatrice Heuser, Harvard University and King's College, London, Contesting Sovereignty: The State and International Security in the Twenty-First Century

Kavita R. Khory, Mount Holyoke College, Rethinking South Asian Security Studies

Peter Trubowitz, University of Texas at Austin, The Politics of Strategic Adjustment: Ideas, Institutions, and Interests

Ford Foundation Announces Research Grantees

The Gerald R. Ford Foundation announces its research grant award winners for the fall of 1992 and spring 1993. Fifteen grants were awarded to political scientists encompassing a wide array of foreign and domestic issues. The grantees are:

John B. Bader, Brookings Institution, Congressional Leaders, Agendas, and Divided Government

Larry Berman, University of California-Davis, Disengaging from Vietnam

Kenneth E. Collier, University of Kansas, Executive Branch Relations with Congress

Bruce J. Dierenfield, Canisius College, Making Room for God: Gerald R. Ford & the School Prayer Amendment

Catherine Forslund, Washington University in St. Louis, Anna Chenault: China, Asia, and United States Foreign Policy, 1950-1985

Jeffrey A. Hale, Louisiana State University, The Quest for Privacy: Surveillance Law Reforms of the Ford Presidency

George C. Herring, University of Kentucky, America's Longest War: The United States and Vietnam, 1950-1975

Clark Hubbard, State University of New York at Stony Brook, The Mass Media Election Revisited: The 1976 Campaign

T. Christopher Jespersen, University of Arizona, After the War: The United States and Southeast Asia Since 1973

Anthony Kandel, Lander College, Environmental Policymaking in the Ford Administration

George A. Krause, West Virginia University, The Political Economy of Monetary Policy Decision-making and Policymaking in the Post-Modern Era at the Federal Reserve

Brigitta Loesche-Scheller, University of Zurich, The Legacy of Johnson's War on Poverty in U.S. Policymaking

Timothy J. McKeown, University of North Carolina, The High Politics of U.S. Foreign Aid

Michal Skapa, Charles University, Prague, Czechoslovakia, Curriculum Development and Teaching of U.S.-Czechoslovak Relations

Charles J. Tull, Indiana University of South Bend, Present at the Collapse: Graham Martin in Saigon, 1973-1975

Social Science Research Council Doctoral Research Fellowships Awarded

Social Science Research Council Fellowships are awarded for doctoral dissertation research in Western Europe in the social sciences and humanities.

Applicants are expected to devote a minimum of nine and a maximum of 18 months to field research in the country or countries relevant to their proposals.

Two political scientists were awarded fellowships for 1994:

Daniel V. Friedheim, Yale University, Mid-Level and Regional Officials in Regime Collapse: The Peaceful East German Revolution of 1989-1990.

Wade A. Jacoby, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Two Post-

President Ford and the judges, plus one winner, for the 1992 Gerald R. Ford Journalism Prizes. From left to right, political scientists, Jim Pffnner, George Mason University; Roger Davidson, University of Maryland; Kenneth Walsh, award winner, US News and World Report; Susan Hammond, committee chair, American University; and President Ford. Also shown are Paul Stares, Lawrence Cavaiola, and Captain Edward L. Beach (Ret.).

war Reconstructions: A Comparison of Institutional Transfer in Germany, 1945-1994.

Alexander von Humboldt Foundation Awards Research Fellowship

The Peer Review Selection Committee of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation in Bonn, Germany, in its most recent meeting has selected the following outstanding young scientist in political science for a research fellowship for a long-term collaborative research project in Germany:

Houchang Chehabi, Harvard University

Other Award Recipients

Richard B. Cheney, former Secretary of Defense and APSA Congressional Fellow, was awarded the 1993 Francis Boyer Award by the American Enterprise Institute. The award was presented to Cheney by former APSA president and current chairman of AEI's Council of Academic Advisers, James Q. Wilson. Cheney is currently a visiting fellow at AEI.

Paul F. Diehl, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and Gary Goetz, University of Florida, have received a grant from the National Science Foundation for their project "Enduring Rivalries."

Paul F. Diehl, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has been named the 1993 Alan M. Hallene University Scholar.

Richard C. Elling, Wayne State University, received the 1993 Probus Club of Detroit Award for scholarly achievement in the humanities and social sciences.

Susan Fino, Wayne State University, has been awarded a Career Development Chair by Wayne

State University for the 1993-94 academic year.

Kenneth Hoover, professor and chair, department of political science, Western Washington University was selected for the Eugenio Battisti Award for the best article published in Volume 3 of Utopian Studies. The article is titled, "Mondragon's Answers to Utopia's Problems." The award was conferred at the Annual Meeting of the Society of Utopian Studies in St. Louis in November 1993.

Max M. Kampelman, former ambassador and Counselor of the Department of State, was this year's recipient of the Eleanor Roosevelt Award, given by the United Nations Association. The award is given in recognition of exemplary service to the United Nations Association.

Harold Wolman, Wayne State University, received a 1993 Board of Governors Faculty Recognition

Award for his two recent books: Urban Politics and Policy and Comparing Housing Systems.

In Memoriam

John T. Dorsey, Jr.

John T. Dorsey, Jr., professor emeritus of political science at Vanderbilt University, died August 3, 1993, at the age of 68. He was a native of Opelika, Alabama, and received undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Alabama, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He served in the US Army in Europe from 1943–45 and won the Silver Star for heroism. It was typical of his modesty that none of his colleagues knew of that honor.

John was a Fulbright Scholar at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques, University of Paris in 1951–55, and after receiving his doctorate in 1955 he joined the faculty of Michigan State University. In 1955–56 and 1957–59 he was a member and then Chief of the Michigan State University advisory group to the government of South Vietnam on issues of public administration.

Professor Dorsey joined the Vanderbilt faculty as an Associate Professor in 1961 and became a Professor in 1967. His area of teaching and research was that of public administration, with particular attention to developing nations. He was a visiting professor at the Fundacao Escola de Sociologia e Politica de Sao Paulo, in Brazil in 1964. He also served in various capacities for the Comparative Administration and Organization Theory Groups of the American Society of Public Administration. He was a member of the Joint Committee on Latin American Studies of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council, as well as the editorial boards of Administration and Society and the Journal of Comparative Administration.

He published numerous journal articles throughout his career on issues of public administration in developing countries. His careful supervision of doctoral dissertations was well known to his colleagues and graduate students. One of his students, Allen Bergerson, won the Leonard D. White award from the American Political Science Association in 1978 for the best dissertation in the general field of public administration.

John had been a civil rights activist from his student days at the University of Alabama. He was on the steering committee of La Casa, an organization devoted to ending oppression in Central America. He was a member of the Nashville Peace Alliance and helped found the Peace and Justice Center. He was extremely knowledgeable about jazz and was a former president of the Tennessee Jazz and Blues Society.

He served on the executive committee of Phi Beta Kappa at Vanderbilt and was Director of Graduate Studies in the department of political science.

A memorial service for John was held at Vanderbilt in August. At that time his son, Jefferson, characterized his father in words that sum up John's character to his friends:

"He was full of humor and wit. Central to everything, he was humble. I sometimes used his character as a yardstick to measure against others, to their detriment. I could ask no better for myself than to be like my father."

Erwin C. Hargrove
Vanderbilt University

Harold C. Hinton

Born in 1924, Harold Clendenin Hinton moved with his family to Washington, D.C. in the early 1930s. He served in the Far East during World War II. After the war, he returned to Harvard, where he received all three of his degrees, including, in 1951, the Ph.D. in Far Eastern history. He subsequently taught at Georgetown University, the Foreign Service Institute, and Trinity College in Washington, and served as a senior staff member of the Institute for Defense Analyses. He joined the faculty of The George Washington University on a full-time basis in 1964, and spent the remainder of his career there, the latter two decades as professor of political science and international affairs. He was closely affiliated with the Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies throughout his years at GW. He was awarded emeritus status in 1992.

Harold's abiding interests as a scholar were directed toward the modern and contemporary Far East, and more specifically toward Chinese politics and foreign policy and Sino-U.S. and Sino-Soviet relations. He was the author of many articles in such journals as Current History, Orbis, The Annals, World Politics, Journal of Northeast Asian Studies, and Korea and World Affairs. His books included The Grain Tribute System of China, 1845–1911; Leaders of Communist China; Communist China in World Politics; The Bear at the Gate: Chinese Policymaking Under Soviet Pressure; An Introduction to Chinese Politics; Three and a Half Powers: The New Balance in Asia; The Sino-Soviet Confrontation: Implications for the Future; Peking-Washington: Chinese Foreign Policy and the United States; Korea Under New Leadership; and East Asia and the Western Pacific. He also edited several volumes, organized numerous conferences, lectured throughout the United States and Asia, and held countless travel grants and research awards.

Harold was, in the words of one long-time colleague, "the consummate professional." He emerged in the post-World War II era as a leading member of a new generation of scholars who took a more "objective" view of East Asia than had previously been the norm. For his entire career, he worked tirelessly and productively to broaden the existing knowledge base about East Asia, a goal he pursued through his own pathbreaking research and through the unstinting energy he devoted to training graduate students who could carry on in the same tradition.

In the spring of 1992, many of Harold's friends, colleagues, and students gathered to honor him on the occasion of his retirement from the GW faculty. The collective reminiscences of those thus assem-