I. INTRODUCTION . . . . .	5
II. THE STUDY OF NATIVE STANDARDS OF LIVING . . . . .	7
Economic surveys of Indian villages give data on methods of assessment of consumption. The problem of raising the standard of living necessitates a deeper analysis. Anthropological studies of 'institutions' provide a technique for this analysis. Man's reaction to environment and to culture contact is not automatic. Problem stated as it appears in the Ngoni Highlands of Nyasaland.
III. THE NGONI HIGHLANDS AND THEIR INHABITANTS . . . . .	14
The inhabitants of the Highlands.
IV. ECONOMIC LIFE IN THE HIGHLANDS, PAST AND PRESENT . . . . .	17
Their economic system was entirely under their own control. Wealth and rank were synonymous. Variations in the standard of living were not shown in the consumption of food but in the possession of accumulated goods. The former food consumption was adequate and uniform. The chief changes to-day. Chief causes of these changes.
V. THE NGONI AND THEIR CATTLE . . . . .	25
The distribution of herds. Problem of ownership and exchange. The care of the herds. Cattle represent security. Security in religious ritual. Security in everyday social relationships. Security in legal affairs. Cattle give a potential command of labour. Ngoni resistance to improvements in cattle breeding. Cattle owners have a potentially higher standard of living.
VI. AGRICULTURE IN THE NGONI HIGHLANDS . . . . .	36
The factors on which agriculture depends. Memorandum by the Paramount Chief on Ngoni cultivation. His statements are confirmed by observation. The superior technology of the Ngoni was part of tribal tradition. Stimuli to work in former times. These stimuli no longer operate. The women's part in cultivation formerly and to-day. Agriculture and the present standard of living. The difficulties of increasing production.
VII. THE PARAMOUNT CHIEF'S MARKET . . . . .	45
Types of trading in this area. Description of market. Kinds of goods sold, the regulation of prices, and collection of market dues. Other facilities provided at Lizulu. The Paramount Chief and his market. The market and the standard of living.
VIII. CONCLUSION . . . . .	54
