Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts from scholars, including research students, on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and the Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, in triplicate, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing, footnotes being placed at the end of the article; preferably conform to the styling of The China Quarterly and normally not exceed 8–10,000 words in length. A style sheet is available upon request. Submission of a manuscript is taken to imply that it has not previously been published and that it is not currently being considered elsewhere.

The China Quarterly is published by the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the School.

If you need to be well informed about China, read The China Quarterly

For over quarter of a century, The China Quarterly has been essential reading for everyone concerned with modern China. Today it continues to provide the authoritative and provocative perspectives on which China-watchers have come to rely. The China Quarterly has an international circulation that includes diplomats, journalists, financiers and the business community as well as its principal audience in the academic world. The China Quarterly covers all aspects of issues relating to the People's Republic of China, Taiwan, Macao and Hong Kong – politics, economics, commerce, arts and literature, international affairs, social change, demography, geography.

- THE CHINA QUARTERLY
- Carefully researched articles published according to the highest academic standards, after close scrutiny by specialists in the field. Briefing analyses on recent developments keep readers up to date with current events.
 - Research Notes bring specific topics of scholarly interest to wider attention.
 - Occasional essays on new concepts and methods in Chinese studies offer cutting-edge perspectives for researching and thinking about China.
 - Surveys of the state of the field describe and assess advanced research on China in various nations and academic disciplines.
 - Periodic special issues devoted to a specific theme provide comprehensive analysis of key topics.
 - The Chronicle and Documentation section provides a valuable analysis of recent events in China and reactions thereto, both domestic and foreign, as well as occasional translations of important Chinese documents.
 - The substantial number of book reviews, with the listing of books received, are a reliable and up-to-date guide to new publications in the China field. This section of the journal is used by the many subscribing academic institutions and libraries for book selection and acquisition.
