Saharan Myth and Saga

H. T. Norris

Myths and sagas about Muslim heroes and nations, fabulous cities, and the source of the Sudanic Nile are current among the Saharans. Most of these records are recent, although they contain ancient material which has moulded much Muslim African tradition and provided a continuous cultural transfusion into inner Africa from the Middle East, especially Southern Arabia.

The External Trade of the Loango Coast 1576–1870

The Effects of Changing Commercial Relations on the Vili Kingdom of Loango

Phyllis M. Martin

The Loango Coast lies between Cape Lopez in the north and the Congo river in the south. In the eighteenth century it was one of the most important sources of slaves for the Transatlantic trade. This study traces the development of trade in the area, starting with the pre-slave era, following the story through the slave-trade period, and looking briefly at the legitimate trade that had developed by the mid nineteenth century. 4 maps £4.50

The Emin Pasha Relief Expedition 1886–1890

Iain R. Smith

H. M. Stanley's last great African expedition, to 'relieve' the Governor of the equatorial province of the Sudan at the time of the Mahdist revolt, is probably the best-documented expedition that ever went through Africa in the nineteenth century. Utilizing the very full records that exist, including the remarkable diary of Emin Pasha himself. 6 plates 4 maps £6.50

Indirect Rule and the Search for Justice

Essays in East African Legal History

H. F. Morris and J. S. Read

These essays examine aspects of the search for justice which was a recurrent theme during the colonial period. They trace the development of official policies in East Africa, and the application of the doctrine of indirect rule during its heyday. The authors have endeavoured throughout to bridge the gap between history and law. Tables £5.50 Oxford Studies in African Affairs
