

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

ERNESTO FRIEDRICH DE LIMA AMARAL is an assistant professor in the Department of Political Science at the Federal University of Minas Gerais, Brazil. He holds a PhD in sociology from the University of Texas at Austin. His research interests focus on issues related to evaluation of public policies, economic development, and demographic transition.

HELENE BALSLEV CLAUSEN es doctora por Copenhagen Business School, Centro de Estudios de las Américas, México. Es editora y autora de varias antologías y artículos sobre identidad, turismo y poder. De las antologías recientes destacan Projections of Power in the Americas en colaboración con Jan Gustafsson y Niels Bjerre-Poulsen (2012); "Las comunidades norteamericanas en ciudades turísticas de México" (en colaboración con Mario Alberto Velázquez García), en Construir una nueva vida: Los espacios del turismo y la migración residencial, editado por Tomás Mazón, Raquel Huete y Alejandro Mantecón (2011); y "La posición social y espacial en una ciudad: Las luchas simbólicas de Álamos, Sonora" (con Mario Alberto Velázquez García), en Pasos: Revista de Turismo y Patrimonio Cultural (2010).

MARCELA MENEZES COSTA is an undergraduate student of public management in the Department of Political Science at the Federal University of Minas Gerais, Brazil.

MALCOLM DEAS is an emeritus fellow of St. Antony's College, Oxford University, where he was a founder and later director of the Latin American Centre. He has worked on the history and politics of Colombia, and a number of his essays are collected in Del poder y la gramática (2006). Among his works on violence and security are Intercambios violentos (1999) and Reconocer la guerra para construir la paz (coedited with María Victoria Llorente, 1999). For a decade he was the editor of the Cambridge University Press series Latin American Studies.

LUCAS GONZÁLEZ holds a PhD in political science from the University of Notre Dame. In his dissertation, he studied the struggles for the distribution of federal fiscal transfers between the central government and subnational units in Argentina and Brazil. His thesis adviser was Guillermo O'Donnell. His most recent research interests are federalism, redistribution, and the political economy of redistributive transfers. He is currently adjunct professor and researcher at the Universidad Nacional de San Martín, and professor at Universidad de San Andrés, Universidad Católica Argentina, and Católica de Córdoba. He has coauthored two books and written articles in edited volumes and peer-reviewed journals, the most recent two of which were published in the Journal of Politics and Publius: The Journal of Federalism.

JORGE HEINE is Centre for International Governance (CIGI) Chair in Global Governance at the Balsillie School of International Affairs, professor of political science at Wilfrid Laurier University, and a distinguished fellow of CIGI in Waterloo, Ontario. His most recent books are Fixing Haiti: MINUSTAH and Beyond (coedited with Andrew S. Thompson, 2011), The Dark Side of Globalization (coedited with Ramesh Thakur, 2011), and Which Way Latin America? Hemispheric Politics Meets Globalization (coedited with Andrew F. Cooper, 2009). A past vice president of the International Political Science Association, he chairs the international jury for the Luciano Tomassini Latin American International Relations Book Award established by the Latin American Studies Association in 2011. He has been a visiting fellow at St. Antony's College, Oxford, and a public policy scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, DC; and he will be a visiting professor of political science at the University of Konstanz in Germany in 2012.

SILVIO SALEJ HIGGINS é professor adjunto do Departamento de Sociologia e Antropologia da Universidade Federal de Minas Gerais (UFMG-Brasil). PhD em sociologia pela Université Paris Dauphine e pela Universidade Federal de Santa Catarina (Brasil). A sua pesquisa se concentra em arranjos produtivos locais, dimensão organizacional das microfinanças e na aplicação da metodologia da análise de redes sociais a socio-economia. Atualmente coordena o programa de pós-graduação em sociologia da UFMG.

SIMÓN PEDRO IZCARA PALACIOS is professor of rural sociology at the Department of Sociology, Autonomous University of Tamaulipas, Mexico, and a member of the National System of Researchers of Mexico. He specializes in rural and immigration studies. Recent articles include "Opinión de los polleros tamaulipecos sobre la política migratoria estadounidense," Migraciones Internacionales (2012); "Redes migratorias versus demanda laboral: Los elementos que moldean los procesos migratorios," Convergencia (2011); and "Guest Workers' Working Conditions in US Farming: The Example of Farm Workers from Tamaulipas," Journal of Workplace Rights (2011).

ROBERTO PATRICIO KORZENIEWICZ is professor of sociology at the University of Maryland, College Park (USA), and profesor titular at the Universidad Nacional de San Martín (Argentina). His book Unveiling Inequality (2009), coauthored with Timothy P. Moran, won the 2010 Best Book Award of the Political Economy of the World-System section of the American Sociological Association. His current research focuses on global patterns of income inequality, social stratification, and mobility, and on historical and current patterns of political change in Latin America.

GUSTAVO MORELLO is assistant professor in the Sociology Department of Boston College. He received his doctorate in social sciences from the University of Buenos Aires. He studies the relations between Argentine Catholics and politics in Argentina's recent history. His recent articles include "Charles Taylor's 'Imaginary' and 'Best Account' in Latin America," Philosophy and Social Criticism (2007), and "Charles Taylor's Modernity in a Latin American Catholicism," in Politics and the Religious Imagination, edited by John Dyck, Paul Rowe, and Jens Zimmermann (2010).

ALEJANDRA NAVARRO SMITH es doctora en antropología social usando recursos visuales. Se desempeña como investigadora en el Instituto de Investigaciones

Culturales / Museo de la Universidad Autónoma de Baja California. La evolución de sus intereses —que inician con el estudio del sentido de la migración internacional de México a Estados Unidos para los migrantes mismos, y que continúan con la exploración de los significados asociados a la defensa de la tierra, la lucha por la autonomía y la justicia desde la experiencia de la vida cotidiana de las comunidades indígenas de los municipios autónomos en Chiapas— la ha llevado a preguntarse por los modos en que la exclusión y las formas de racismo estructurales están asociados a la organización de movimientos étnicos y ciudadanos, la reformulación de identidades y la formación de conciencias políticas contemporáneas en el contexto de los Estados nacionales y los contextos de globalización. Actualmente trabaja con la población Cucapá que radica en Baja California y estudia la pesca cucapá de la curvina golfina que desde 1993 se volvió ilegal al decretarse la Reserva de la Biosfera del Alto Golfo y Bajo Delta del Río Colorado sobre su territorio, donde actualmente se prohíbe todo tipo de extracción.

JAIME ORTIZ holds degrees from Universidad de Chile, Chile; Institute of Social Studies, the Netherlands; and Virginia Tech, United States. He is currently vice president of the Texas International Education Consortium and has held faculty and administrative appointments in universities in Florida, New Jersey, and Texas. He has worked for international organizations, private corporations, and nongovernment entities in economic and business matters. He is the author, coauthor, or editor of books, book chapters, textbooks, research monographs, technical reports, and refereed journal articles. He has been a scholar with the Fulbright Program and fellow with the W. K. Kellogg Foundation. His research focuses on economic growth and development, global investment decisions, and identification of sources and origins of technical change.

MARCUS ABÍLIO GOMES PEREIRA is an assistant professor in the Department of Political Science at the Federal University of Minas Gerais, Brazil. He has a PhD in political sociology from the University of Coimbra. His research interests focus on issues related to digital participation, repertoires of action, digital democracy, and the public sphere.

ALBA RUIBAL holds a PhD in politics from Facultad Latinoamericana de Ciencias Sociales, México, and is currently a doctoral researcher in the Law Department of the European University Institute. She has published works on the politics of the Argentine Supreme Court reform, the sociological concept of judicial legitimacy, the new politics of property rights, and the institutional implications of neo-republicanism.

IGNACIO M. SÁNCHEZ PRADO es profesor asociado de español y estudios internacionales en Washington University en Saint Louis. Es autor de El canon y sus formas: La reinención de Harold Bloom y sus lecturas hispanoamericanas (2002) y Naciones intelectuales: Las fundaciones de la modernidad literaria mexicana (1917–1959) (2009), con el que obtuvo el premio LASA México 2010 al Mejor Libro en Humanidades. Ha editado y co-editado siete colecciones críticas, la más reciente de las cuales es El lenguaje de las emociones: Afecto y cultura en América Latina (con Mabel Moraña, 2012). Ha publicado más de una treintena de artículos académicos sobre cuestiones de literatura, cultura y cine mexicano, así como de teoría cultural latinoamericana. Actualmente trabaja en un libro sobre cine y neoliberalismo en México.

MARIO ALBERTO VELÁZQUEZ GARCÍA es doctor en sociología por El Colegio de México y profesor-investigador en El Colegio de Sonora, México. Es autor y coautor de varias publicaciones sobre turismo en las que destacan "Las comunidades norteamericanas en ciudades turísticas de México" (en colaboración con Helene Balslev), en Construir una nueva vida: Los espacios del turismo y la migración residencial, editado por Tomás Mazón, Raquel Huete y Alejandro Mantecón (2011), y "La posición social y espacial en una ciudad: Las luchas simbólicas de Álamos, Sonora" (con Helene Balslev Clausen), Pasos: Revista de Turismo y Patrimonio Cultural (2010).