
Notes on Contributors

Roland Clark is Assistant Professor of Modern European History at Eastern Connecticut State University. His monograph Holy Legionary Youth: Fascist Activism in Interwar Romania is forthcoming with Cornell University Press, and he is working on a new project on anti-Semitic student organizing in East-Central Europe. He has published articles on the history of Romanian fascism, the Holocaust, Eastern Orthodoxy, nationalism and the history of everyday life.

John Corbally is Assistant Professor of History at Diablo Valley College in California. For the past four years he was a lecturer and fellow at Stanford University and has also taught at University of California Berkeley. His research explores the Irish experience in post-war Britain, placing the Irish alongside immigrants of colour from South Asia and the Caribbean. He is interested in questions surrounding varieties of racism, whiteness and the continuity of imperial relations in both modern states and modern identity. Besides working on his first monograph, Shades of Difference: Irish, Caribbean, and South Asian Immigration to the Heart of the British Empire, 1948–1971, he is co-authoring a thirty-chapter World History textbook and has published articles in Radical History Review and H-Albion (H-Net).

Astrid Hedin is Senior Lecturer and co-ordinator for Political Science at Malmö University, Sweden. She has published articles in Political Science Review, Comparativ: Leipziger Beiträge zur Universalgeschichte und vergleichenden Gesellschaftsforschung, and Historisk tidskrift. Her recent writing includes 'Den nya berättelsen: MBL-utbildning som identitetspolitik under det kalla kriget', Arbetshistoria (forthcoming) ['The New Narrative: Workplace Democracy Training as Identity Politics during the Cold War']. She is currently completing two articles, one on the entangled history of Swedish historical research on communist regimes: 'Socialist Security Checks as Histoire Croisée', and the other on workplace democracy legislation as a pan-European trend during the cold war.

Piotr H. Kosicki is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Maryland and W. Glenn Campbell and Rita Ricardo-Campbell Hoover National Fellow and the Bittson National Fellow at Stanford University. Kosicki specialises in the international and intellectual history of twentieth-century Europe and of the cold war in particular, focusing on Poland, France and the Catholic Church. His articles have appeared in, among others, East European Politics and Societies, Vingtième Siècle: Revue d'histoire and Więź. Since earning his PhD at Princeton University, he has edited three volumes, has two books forthcoming in Polish in 2015 – Katolicy rewolucjoniści: Personalizm, socjalizm i francuskie więzi polskiej inteligencji katolickiej, 1939–1956 (IPN) and Mazowiecki (Świat Książki) – and is completing Between Christ and Lenin: Catholicism, the Social Question and Poland's Place in the World, 1891–1991.

Lorenz M. Lüthi is an Associate Professor for the History of International Relations at McGill University in Montreal, Canada. His first book, The Sino-Soviet Split: Cold War in the Communist World, was published by Princeton University Press in 2008. The book was released in a Polish translation by Dialog in Warsaw in 2011; a Chinese translation is in preparation. Lüthi has widely published on the cold war in East Asia, Sino-Soviet relations, and the Vietnam War. He is currently working on a second book project on the regional cold wars in Europe, East Asia, and the Middle East. Lüthi's research has led him to work in archives in China, Australia, Russia, Poland, Germany, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Bulgaria, Serbia, Italy, Switzerland, the United Kingdom, Canada, and the United States.

Marti Lybeck is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Wisconsin La Crosse. She has recently published, Desiring Emancipation: The New Woman and Homosexuality in Germany, 1890–1933 (SUNY Press, 2014) and is now working on an examination of the role of cinema in shaping and solidifying ideology and social patterns of romantic love in the Weimar period, tentatively titled 'Love for the Masses'.

Ol'ga Pavlenko is Assistant Professor, Head of the Department of Area Studies and Foreign Policy, and Director of the Division of International Relations and Area Studies, Institute for History and Archives, at the Russian State University for the Humanities, Moscow. Her research interests are Soviet foreign policy in the cold war, contemporary Russian foreign policy, and the history of international relations (nineteenth century – present). She is currently working on the research project, 'Konets epokhi: SSSR i strani Vostochnoi Evrope v 1985–1991 gg' ['The End of an Epoch: USSR and Eastern European Countries in 1985–1991']; Russian foreign policy (Russian State University for the Humanities (RGGU) – Council of the Federation of the Federal Assembly of the Russian Federation); 'Russia and Poland: Shared and Divided History' (RGGU – 'Centre for Polish–Russian Dialogue and Understanding' Foundation), and writing a student textbook on Russian contemporary history, 1985–2015, for the university.

Peter Ruggenthaler has been Senior Fellow at the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute for Research on War Consequences, Graz, since 1998 and Member of the Russian–Austrian Historians' Commission since 2008. His research interests are Soviet foreign policy and neutrality in the cold war. His publications include Der Kreml und die

Wende 1989 (Studienverlag, 2014); co-editor, Harvard Cold War Studies Book Series: The Fate of Communist Regimes 1989–1991 (Rowman & Littlefield, 2014) and The Prague Spring and the Warsaw Pact Invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968, (Rowman & Littlefield, 2010); ‘The 1952 Stalin Note on German Unification: The Ongoing Debate’, Journal of Cold War Studies, 13, 4, (Fall 2011), 172–212; co-editor, Prager Frühling: Das internationale Krisenjahr 1968 (Böhlau, 2008); Stalins großer Bluff: Die Geschichte der Stalin-Note in Dokumenten der sowjetischen Führung (Oldenbourg, 2007); Zwangsarbeit in der Land- und Forstwirtschaft auf dem Gebiet der Republik Österreich 1939–1945 (Oldenbourg, 2004).

Austrian History Yearbook

Published for the Center for Austrian Studies, University of Minnesota, in cooperation with the Conference Group for Central European History and the Society for Austrian and Habsburg History

Executive Editor

Gary B. Cohen, University of Minnesota, USA

Editor

Pieter M. Judson, Swarthmore College, USA

Founded in 1965 by R. John Rath, the Austrian History Yearbook remains the only English-language peer-reviewed journal devoted to the history of the territories in Central Europe that were formerly under Habsburg rule and now comprise the modern states of Austria, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Hungary, Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina and parts of Italy, Poland, Ukraine, Romania and Serbia. Typically, each issue of the Yearbook contains seven to eight articles, a forum on an important historical issue, a review article, and approximately 40 book reviews

Modern Intellectual History

Editors

Charles Capper, Charles Capper

Duncan Kelly, University of Cambridge, UK

Anthony J. LaVopa, North Carolina State University, USA

Samuel Moyn, Columbia University, USA

This important journal serves as a focal point and forum for scholarship on intellectual and cultural history from the mid-seventeenth century to the present, with primary attention to Europe and the Americas and to transnational developments that encompass the non-West. MIH enquires into this era's intellectual discourses and texts, their contextual origins and reception, and the recovery of their historical meanings. The journal encompasses various forms of intellectual and cultural history, including political thought and culture, philosophy, religion, literature and literary criticism, social sciences, natural sciences, visual arts and aesthetic theory, communications, law, economic thought, social and cultural theory, psychology, anthropology, music and the history of the book.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contemporary European History covers the history of eastern and western Europe, including the United Kingdom, from 1918 to the present. By combining a wide geographical compass with a relatively short time span, the journal achieves both range and depth. It is open to all forms of historical enquiry – including cultural, economic, international, political and social approaches – and welcomes comparative and transnational analysis.

Submissions

Articles submitted for publication should be sent electronically to Contemporary European History, at ceh@sheffield.ac.uk, or, in the case of submissions from North America, to the Corresponding Editor for North America, Tara Zahra, tzahra@uchicago.edu

Articles should normally be about 8,000 words long, the total to include footnotes. Review articles should not exceed 5,000 words.

The journal is published in English, and contributions are normally submitted in that language; however, we will also consider articles submitted in other major European languages. If accepted for publication, these will be translated. All articles, including those commissioned, will be refereed.

An abstract of each article is published in English, French and German.

Submission of a paper will be taken to imply that it is unpublished and is not being considered for publication elsewhere. On acceptance of a paper, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press. An article cannot be published unless a signed copyright form is returned promptly.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their text.

The editors would be grateful if contributors kept closely to the journal's stylistic conventions. Copy-editing is time-consuming and the editors will return any contribution which does not follow the conventions for correction and re-typing.

Prospective authors should refer to the full set of Instruction for Contributors by following the link at <http://www.journals.cambridge.org/ceh>

Contributors of accepted papers should send a final version via email. This should include

1. the text, which should begin with the title, the author's name and email and postal address, and the author's affiliation as he/she should wish it to appear
2. a 100-word summary of the article in English, French or German
3. a short title for use as a running page-head
4. a statement of the article's length in number of words (including both text and footnotes), and a list of tables, graphs, maps and any other illustrative material (each of which should be supplied as a separate file)
5. a short biographical note with a description of work in progress and previously published work (130 words max.)
