WINDOW TO A CHANGED WORLD

The Personal Memoirs of William Graham

Edited by Donald L. Parman

At the age of eight William Graham experienced a religious conversion that led him to become a Methodist minister. Graham's ministry involved a long journey as a circuit rider, traveling from his hometown of York, Pennsylvania across Indian territory and finally to northwest Indiana. During Graham's ministry, Methodism was a highly dynamic and rapidly growing denomination. Graham's active role in building new churches in northern and western Indiana—using his carpentry skills, organizational expertise, and fund-raising talents—contributed to the formalization and professionalization of Methodism in the state.
