ARCHAIC GREEK COINAGE

by

Martin Price of British Museum

and

Nancy Waggoner of the American Numismatic Society

This is the publication of one of the most important hoards of Greek coinage ever found. 867 coins have been recorded, representing more than 70 mint cities; and the authors have taken the opportunity to make a complete reappraisal of Greek coinage during the late 6th century and early 5th century B.C.

The survey includes major alterations in the chronology of issues of Athens, Aegina, and many other mints, as well as the illustration of many new masterpieces of numismatic art.

Some of the outstanding features are:

- A tetradrachm of Aeneia depicting the flight of Aeneas from Troy
- 7 tristaters of Delphi
- 15 coins of the Derrones
- 24 coins from Italy and Sicily
- 42 coins from Cyrenaica
- 133 staters of Aegina
- 163 tetradrachms of Athens

Due to be published in the Autumn

Athenian Black Figure Vases

JOHN BOARDMAN

Athenian black figure vases bear the work of consummate artists, like Exekias, who depicted on them scenes of myth and everyday life which deepen our knowledge and understanding of Greek antiquity. In this handbook Mr. Boardman enables the reader to study the many aspects of the vases, and to grasp the essential style of a painter or group of painters, without having to consult a number of expensive, and not always easily accessible, publications. Moreover, since no systematic guide to the mythological scenes and other decorative features of the vases is available, Mr. Boardman devotes a final section to this subject.

With 383 illustrations 252 pp. World of Art Library Hardcover ISBN 0 500 18144 6 £2.50

Paperback ISBN 0 500 20138 2 £1.50

Baroque Architecture in Classical Antiquity

MARGARET LYTTELTON

Architectural historians have often noted the puzzling phenomenon of the startling baroque architectural designs displayed in the tomb facades at Petra in Southern Jordan, and in other, later Roman buildings in Syria and North Africa. Comparisons have several times been made between seventeenth-century baroque churches in Rome and the monuments of Baalbek and Petra, but no one has previously attempted systematically to investigate the origins and development of this baroque architectural style in Classical antiquity. Dr. Lyttelton sets out to chart this development, using techniques of stylistic analysis and placing particular importance on the emergence of local, regional schools of architecture in the eastern provinces of the Roman Empire. In order to study and record architectural details which throw light on the stylistic and chronological evolution of baroque architecture in antiquity, the author has travelled in a vast area of the ancient world, from Athens to Petra, and from Alexandria to Tunis. The large collection of photographs reproduced in this book, showing both Classical baroque architecture and its seventeenth-century dependents, provides a unique conspectus of the architectural decoration and surviving remains of baroque buildings in the eastern provinces of the Roman Empire.

With 227 photographs and 52 line drawings 336 pp. Studies in Ancient Art and Archaeology.

Hardcover ISBN 0 500 69002 2 £12.50

The Elephant in the Greek and Roman World

H. H. SCULLARD

Professor Scullard here examines the knowledge and use of the elephant in the Classical world in depth. Starting with the natural history of the animal he then assesses the large literature on it, and the many references to it, by Greek and Roman authors. The elephant's major role was in war, especially in Hellenistic times under Alexander the Great and his successors; then, with the ascendancy of Rome, she and her great adversary Carthage put elephants at the head of their war effort. The use of the elephant in battle, the Classical forerunner of the tank, is well brought out by contemporary accounts and battle plans of the most important engagements in which elephants were involved. The book closes with a discussion of how elephants were seen by later writers such as Philostratus, and with an assessment of them in war and peace. The plates have been selected to show how the Greeks and Romans saw the elephant in their art, especially in their sculpture, painting and coinage.

With 81 illustrations, including 11 maps and battle plans 312 pp. Aspects of Greek and Roman Life.

Hardcover ISBN 0 500 40025 3 £6.00

Homer and the Heroic Age

J. V. LUCE

How reliable is the tradition embodied in the Homeric poems? Their basic historicity was widely accepted in the ancient world: Thucydides and Plato used Homeric data in reconstructing early Greek history and territorial claims could be supported by reference to the epic tradition.

Professor Luce, the author of the widely acclaimed The End of Atlantis: New Light on an Old Legend, here examines in detail the world of Homer through the literary and archaeological evidence. In the 103 years since Schliemann's first soundings on the site of Troy, archaeological investigations in Greek lands and on the Aegean coast of Turkey have been numerous and productive. The most important result of this activity has been the establishment of a firm factual basis for the Greek heroic legends; the tradition represented by the Homeric poems is a composite one, with some elements dating back to the period of the Trojan War and even further back into the Mycenaean Age. In this most readable survey Professor Luce displays the evidence for and the interpretations of a truly golden, Heroic Age.

With 136 illustrations, 16 in colour, 5 maps and plans 200 pp. Hardcover ISBN 0 500 25040 5 £4.50

The Ritual Lament in Greek Tradition

MARGARET ALEXIOU

A study of the Greek tradition in the oral and literary lament and in the rituals associated with it. Dr Alexiou traces the history of the lament through the classical and Byzantine periods to modern times, where it remains part of a living tradition. The author shows how the survival of the genre has depended not on individuals but on the collective participation of a community.

The Prehistory and Proto-history of the Hellenic World

A remarkable work – at once an impeccable piece of scholarship and an outstandingly beautiful volume: written by thirteen eminent archaeologists and historians and illustrated throughout by colour photographs of the highest quality. Never has Greek prehistory – from the Stone Age to the end of the Mycenaean civilization – been so thoroughly revealed and explored. When the Greek edition appeared it was hailed by the Journal of Hellenic Studies as 'a vast undertaking' and by the American Journal of Archaeology as 'a most valuable work, created with love and care'. The English translation carried out by a team of experts under the direction of Dr Philip Sherrard of King's College, London, is accurate and lucid and incorporates the very latest discoveries, including the Santorini Frescoes which have come to light since the Greek edition appeared.

SLIDES COLLECTION

The Slides Collection contains 4000 coloured slides (2" × 2") covering a wide variety of subjects, including sites on the Greek mainland, the Greek islands, Rome, Italy and the Roman Empire, Etruscan tomb paintings, Roman frescoes and mosaics and Greek vases: objects from the Greek and Roman Life Room of the British Museum are well represented.

Sets and film-strips are available to members, and the Keeper of Slides will be pleased to send a list of these on request.

There are 20 coloured sets (2" × 2"), of which 9 are available as film-strips. There are also 3 black and white sets (2" × 2") and 11 black and white film-strips. All may be bought or hired by members: notes to the sets are included in the hire-price of 50p per set, plus postage.

The subjects of the sets, which are accompanied by notes, include classical sites in Greece, Italy, Gaul and Britain, architecture, sculpture, the theatre, drama, athletics, Minoan Crete, Mycenaean Greece, Cyprus, Sicily and Magna Graecia, Greek papyri, jewellery, terracottas, art in Roman Britain, Roman Coins and the Roman Imperial army in Britain.

A catalogue of coloured slides is available for 45p. Individual slides may be hired by members for 1½p: duplication costs 25p per slide. There are 10,000 B/W (3¼" × 3¼") slides from which prints or 2" × 2" slides may be made.

Schools are eligible for membership.

For particulars apply to the Secretary of either Society at 31-34 Gordon Square, London, WC1H 0PP.
