

"Among the most widely-cited journals of historical research in the United States."

Coming in 1993–1994, volumes 26 and 27, of the journal of social history

The Journal continues to define new areas of historical coverage and to clarify major interpretive issues in the field with groupings of articles on such subjects as:

New approaches in gender history

- working-class masculinity
- women and family relationships
- sexual standards and sexual behavior

Explorations in new aspects of comparative history: race, religious values.

Issues in the social history of education

Agrarian rebellion and war
The experience of disability

A new emphasis on synthesis: social history and legal history; social history of cities and neighborhoods; racial unrest.

Plus

- new research on social class, suicide, and imprisonment patterns in the United States, Latin America, Europe, New Zealand, and Africa.
- many other articles and reviews, as the JSH maintains its role as a major outlet for historical research.

Also as an individual subscriber to the JSH you can receive a 25 percent discount from 15 American and British publishers.

The Formation of Labour Movements 1870-1914

An International Perspective

Edited by M. van der Linden and J. Rojahn

The twenty-seven articles presented in this volume mark the first stage of an international research project set up after the comprehensive reorganization of the International Institute of Social History in 1987. The aim of this extensive book project is to study the development of working-class movements using comparative research in an international framework in the time-period 1870-1914.

Included in this study are papers by experts on as many countries (both European and non-European) as possible with a modern labour movement.

Socialist Parties and the Question of Europe in the 1950's

Edited by Richard T. Griffiths

During the 1950's the West European Socialist parties found themselves divided on the question of "European integration". This cleavage not only separated different national parties from each other but caused deep and painful rifts within national parties themselves. The related controversies form the core of this volume, consisting of a synthetic analysis, thirteen national case studies, and testimonies of three "eyewitnesses" (Marinus van der Goes van Naters, Christian Pineau, Mario Zagari) closely involved with the events described. The collection deals with an important aspect of the pre-history of the European Economic Community and provides a useful tool for its comparative study.

Guidelines for contributors

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not currently under consideration elsewhere and that the material – in substance as well as form – has not been previously published.

Two copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Each article should be accompanied by a summary, not exceeding 100 words, outlining the principal conclusions and methods in the context of currently accepted views on the subject.

All material – including quotations and notes – must be double-spaced with generous margins. Use of dot-matrix printers is discouraged.

Notes should be numbered consecutively and placed at the end of the text.

Spelling should be consistent throughout (e.g. Labour and Labor are both acceptable, but only one of these forms should be used in an article).

Turns of phrase using masculine forms as universals are not acceptable.
