CONTENTS

No. 1 (FEBRUARY 1956)

ORIGINAL ARTICLES	PAGE
607. Winter feeding of dairy cows. I. The influence of level and source of protein and of the level of energy in the feed on milk yield and composition. W. HOLMES, R. WAITE, D. S. MACLUSKY and J. N. WATSON	1
608. Winter feeding of dairy cows. II. Dried grass produced in spring and in autumn compared with other concentrates and with spring grazing. W. HOLMES	13
609. Acetone taint in milk due to Bacterium cloacæ . G. ELIS JONES	21
610. Destruction of Mycobacterium tuberculosis and phosphatase in heat treated cream. R. ASCHAFFENBURG, C. A. E. BRIGGS, E. L. CROSSLEY and J. ROTHWELL	24
611. The steam stripping of taints from liquids. IV. An analysis of continuous counterflow equipment. J. K. SCOTT	30
612. Steam distillation of taints from cream. II. Investigations on commercial equipment with use of diacetyl and acetoin as reference substances. F. H. McDOWALL	48
613. Variations in the chemical composition of milk with particular reference to the solids-not-fat. I. The effect of stage of lactation, season of year and age of cow. R. WAITE, J. C. D. WHITE and ALAN ROBERTSON	65
614. Variations in the chemical composition of milk with particular reference to the solids-not-fat. II. The effect of heredity. ALAN ROBERTSON, R. WAITE and J. C. D. WHITE	82
615. Colour changes in heated and unheated milk. V. The effects of temperature of measurement, pH, and the addition of certain ions on the reflectance of separated milk. H. BURTON	92
616. The size of the fat globules in the milk of diseased cows. J. O. L. KING	105
617. Variations in the carotene and vitamin A contents of herd butterfats throughout lactation. A. K. R. McDOWELL	111
618. Host-phage relationship of cheese starter organisms. I. Interaction of phage races with a strain of Streptococcus lactis and its lysogenic and resistant derivatives. J. CZULAK and JILL NAYLOR	120
619. Host-phage relationships of cheese starter organisms. II. Effect of phage activity on heterologous strains of lactic streptococci. JILL NAYLOR and J. CZULAK	126
620. Host-phage relationship of cheese starter organisms. III. Significance in selection and maintenance of starter cultures in commercial use. J. CZULAK and JILL NAYLOR	131

REVIEWS OF THE PROGRESS OF DAIRY SCIENCE:
Section C. Dairy Chemistry
Milk proteins and enzymes. R. ASCHAFFENBURG	134
The composition of milk and dairy products and methods of analysis. E. R. LING	144

No. 2 (JUNE 1956)

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

621. Winter feeding of dairy cows. III. The influence on milk yield of high and low protein concentrates, each fed at two levels in addition to dried grass and grass silage. D. REID and W. HOLMES	159
622. Infection and mastitis in a dairy herd 1945-53. J. OLIVER, F. H. DODD and F. K. NEAVE	169
623. Variations in the incidence of udder infection and mastitis with stage in lactation, age and season of the year. J. OLIVER, F. H. DODD, F. K. NEAVE and (the late) G. L. BAILEY	181
624. Udder infections in the 'dry period'. II. The effect of withdrawing secretion from the dry udder on the incidence of infection. J. OLIVER, F. H. DODD, F. K. NEAVE and J. M. LEE	194
625. Udder infections in the 'dry period'. III. The method of drying off cows at the end of lactation. J. OLIVER, F. H. DODD and F. K. NEAVE	197
626. Udder infections in the 'dry period'. IV. The relationship between the new infection rate in the early dry period and the daily milk yield at drying-off when lactation was ended by either intermittent or abrupt cessation of milking. J. OLIVER, F. H. DODD and F. K. NEAVE	204
627. Udder infections in the 'dry period'. V. The effect of teat disinfection at drying off on the incidence of infections in the early dry period. J. OLIVER, F. H. DODD and F. K. NEAVE	212
628. Further studies of immersion cleaning of milking equipment. C. C. THIEL, L. F. L. CLEGG, P. A. CLOUGH and CHRISTINA M. COUSINS with technical assistance from D. N. AKAM and MARIE GRUBER	217
629. Antibiotic treatment of mastitis and its effect on the cell content of the milk. P. S. BLACKBURN	225
630. The determination of lactose in milk. F. H. GRIMBLEBY	229
631. Variations in iodine value of milk fats. J. W. MAYHEAD and C. R. BARNICOAT	238
632. Reactivation of milk phosphatase following heat treatment. IV. The influence of certain metallic ions. R. C. WRIGHT and J. TRAMER	248
633. The effect of commercial sterilization on the nutritive value of milk as determined in experiments with rats and baby pigs. A. P. DE GROOT and C. ENGEL	257

	PAGE
634. The determination of the coagulating power of commercial rennet extracts using an automatic tester. F. C. STORRS	269
635. The estimation of the total volatile fatty acids in cheese. A. J. G. BARNETT and G. A. TAWAB	277
REVIEWS OF THE PROGRESS OF DAIRY SCIENCE:
Section D. Nutritive value of milk and milk products. W. A. MCGILLIVRAY and J. W. G. PORTER	283

No. 3 (OCTOBER 1956)

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

636. The influence of milk yield on fertility in dairy cattle. ELISABETH J. CURRIE	301
637. Acid production in milk by starter cultures—The effect of peptone and other stimulatory substances. ELLEN I. GARVIE and L. A. MABBITT	305
638. The influence of cultural conditions on the characteristics of Streptococcus cremoris , strain HP. H. R. WHITEHEAD, C. A. E. BRIGGS, ELLEN I. GARVIE and L. G. M. NEWLAND	315
639. Some bacteriological aspects of commercially sterilized milk. I. Incidence and nature of spoilage. AGNES A. NICHOLS and M. R. CANDY	319
640. Some bacteriological aspects of commercially sterilized milk. II. Type of sporeforming bacteria isolated. M. R. CANDY and AGNES A. NICHOLS	329
641. Penicillin in milk. I. The rapid routine assay of low concentrations of penicillin in milk. N. J. BERRIDGE and members of the National Agricultural Advisory Service	336
642. Penicillin in milk. II. The incidence of penicillin. N. J. BERRIDGE and members of the National Agricultural Advisory Service	342
643. Penicillin in milk. III. The effect of low concentrations of penicillin on the rate of acid production by starter cultures. N. J. BERRIDGE	348
644. The influence of penicillin on the manufacture and ripening of Cheddar cheese. H. R. WHITEHEAD and D. J. LANE	355
645. Lactobacilli isolated from the surface of normal and slipcoat Stilton cheese. M. ELISABETH SHARPE and MARJORIE BRINDLEY	361
646. The steam stripping of taints from liquids. V. The basic design of cream deodorizing equipment. J. K. SCOTT	363
