CONTRIBUTORS

DR V. KOFI AGAWU received his M.A. at King's College, London, for a dissertation on Stravinsky and his Ph.D. at Stanford University for a thesis on musical form in the nineteenth century. He has taught at Haverford and Duke University in the United States and is now in the Faculty of Music, King's College, London. His areas of interest include semiotics and interpretation, and the symphonies of Mahler.

THOMAS J. BASSETT is Assistant Professor of Geography at the University of Illinois, Urbana–Champaign. His current research focuses on peasant–herder interactions and land-use patterns in the savanna region of West Africa.

MATTHEWS A. OJO is lecturer in the Department of Religious Studies, Obafemi Awolowo University, Ile-Ife, Nigeria. He studied for the doctoral programme in theology, specialising in Church history, at the School of Oriental and African Studies, London, and King's College, London. Areas of interest include the history of Christian missions in Nigeria and the new religious (pentecostal and charismatic) movements in Nigeria.

FATHER BRENDAN P. CARMODY, of the Society of Jesus, received his Ph.D. at Berkeley, University of California, in 1986. He is based at Kitwe, Zambia.

JOHN M. WEATHERBY is an artist by profession. Now retired, he was Lecturer in the History of Art. He served in government education in Uganda from 1954 to 1971. A Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, he is the author of an M.A. thesis (at Makerere) on the Sebei of Mount Elgon, and has published a number of articles resulting from fieldwork in north-eastern Uganda.

JOHN A. WISEMAN is Lecturer in Politics at the University of Newcastle upon Tyne. After completing a doctorate on politics in Botswana at the University of Manchester he taught Southern African politics for three years at Ahmadu Bello University, Nigeria. He is a regular visitor to the Gambia.
