Indigenous Peoples and the Law Comparative and Critical Perspectives

Edited by Benjamin J Richardson, Shin Imai and Kent McNeil

Indigenous Peoples and the Law provides an historical, comparative and contextual analysis of various legal and policy issues affecting Indigenous peoples. It focuses on the common law jurisdictions of Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the United States, as well as relevant international law developments. It features 13 contributors including many Indigenous scholars, drawn from around the world. The book provides a pithy overview of the subject-matter, enabling readers to appreciate the seminal issues, precedents and international legal trends of most concern to Indigenous peoples.

The International Court of Justice and Self-Defence in International Law

James A Green

The legal rules governing the use of force between States is one of the most fundamental, and the most controversial, aspects of international law. An essential part of this area is the question of when, and to what extent, a State may lawfully use force against another in self-defence. However, the parameters of this inherent right remain obscure, despite the best efforts of scholars and, notably, the International Court of Justice. This book examines the burgeoning relationship between the ICJ and the right of self-defence. Since 2003 there have been three major decisions of the ICJ that have dealt directly with the law governing self-defence actions, in contrast to only two such cases in the preceding fifty years. This, then, is an opportune moment to reconsider the jurisprudence of the Court on this issue.

Human Dignity and the Foundations of International Law

Patrick Capps

International lawyers have often been interested in the link between their discipline and the foundational issues of jurisprudential method, but little that is systematic has been written on this subject. In this book, an attempt is made to fill this gap by focusing on issues of concept-formation in legal science in general with a view to their application to the specific concerns of international law. In responding to these issues, the author argues that public international law seeks to establish and institutionalise a system of authoritative judgment whereby the conditions by which a community of states can co-exist and co-operate are ensured. A state, in turn, must be understood as ultimately deriving legitimacy from the pursuit of the human dignity of the community it governs, as well as the dignity of those human beings and states affected by its actions in international relations. This argument is in line with a long and now resurgent cosmopolitan tradition in legal and political philosophy.

Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in International Law

Manisuli Ssenyonjo

The effective promotion, protection and fulfilment of economic, social and cultural (ESC) rights is an important but under-explored component of international human rights law, of which ESC rights form an essential part. They are fundamental to the dignity of every person. At the international level ESC rights are protected in several international instruments, the most comprehensive being the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (the Covenant) ratified by a majority of States. However, claims of violations of ESC rights are treated less seriously. This book subjects ESC rights protected in the Covenant to a deeper analysis in light of the practice of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights while taking into account other relevant sources of ESC rights at national, regional and international levels.

The Law/Politics Distinction in Contemporary Public Law Adjudication

edited by Bogdan Iancu, Faculty of Political Science, University of Bucharest

The contributions in this book address various issues pertaining to the judicialization of politics and politicization of justice. This theme lends itself to a number of approaches that are of interest to contemporary public law. Methodological and theoretical diversity and the originality of the general conceptual approach are the major strengths of this book. In conceptual terms, the contributions do not assume a unitary definition of the phenomenon of politicization/judicialization, starting from the premise that such definitions are by necessity grossly oversimplifying and therefore of limited epistemological use.

Due to its unique approach, this work is a distinctive and unique product compared to the existing literature on the subject.

The German Civil Aviation Act

by Markus Geisler and Marius Boewe, Mayer Brown LLP, Cologne

The aim of this book is to assist in presenting and clarifying the applicable aviation law in Germany by providing a professional English translation of the German Civil Aviation Act. For a better understanding of the Act, an introduction has been added, setting out the national, European and international context. An outline of the Act is given and an account of other German Acts and Regulations covering the field of aviation law. Furthermore, some practical issues related to aviation law are included as well.

This book is a welcome addition to the literature in the field and should be of interest to anyone dealing with German aviation law. It is published as volume 5 in our Essential Air and Space Law series.

Intellectual Property Rights and China: The Modernization of Traditional Knowledge

by Bryan Bachner, PhD in Environmental and Natural Resource Conservation Law, Wuhan University

The aim of this book is to examine the role of intellectual property rights in the development of the pharmaceutical market in China and the world. Taking as a case study the commercialization of traditional Chinese medicine in China, the author discusses how patent rights have begun to take root and encourage healthcare innovation. The research reveals, however, that a consequence of this progress has been a threat to biological diversity. The book calls for taking the discussion of the correlation between intellectual property rights and environmental law to a new level. It offers important comparative and international legal insights on the relevance of trade and conservation as well as the processes of creativity. A welcome, thought-provoking addition to the literature, this study will be of interest to academics, practicing lawyers, government legal advisors, and investors alike.

ASPEN PUBLISHERS PROUDLY PRESENTS...

LAW ACROSS BORDERS

Law Across Borders, a new series by Aspen Publishers, is being offered to professors who want to introduce an international perspective into their courses easily and confidently.

These brief paperback, 160-250 pages in length, will center around a single high-interest problem of international significance as it pertains to a specific course area. The problem orientation will offer a framework for asking fundamental questions and teaching students how to think about international law issues. Each title in the series will be accompanied by Professor's Notes that explain how the author uses his or her materials in their class.

New Titles Available in 2009:

Plea Bargaining Across Borders
Civil Procedure
Jenia I. Turner

Climate Change and Property Rights
Harl Osofsky and Wil Burns

Constitutional Law Regulation of Abortion
Colin B. Picker

Unfunding Terror

The Legal Response to the Financing of Global Terrorism

Jimmy Gurulé, Professor of Law, Notre Dame Law School, US, former Under Secretary (Enforcement) in the US Department of the Treasury (2001–2003) and former Assistant Attorney General, US Department of Justice (1990–1992)

'Jimmy Gurulé knows how to bankrupt terrorists like few others do. As Undersecretary of the Treasury for Enforcement, he spearheaded the fight against al-Qaeda's global bank accounts, helping to earn the highest grade awarded on the 9/11 Commissioners' report card. As an author, he performs once again. Unfunding Terror provides policymakers and laymen alike a clear roadmap on how to keep terrorists out of the global financial system.'

– Timothy J. Roemer, Center for National Policy, former US Congressman and member of the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States (9/11 Commission)

'Jimmy Gurulé has given us a superbly comprehensive and well-written assessment of why, regarding terrorism, Deep Throat's principle is bang on: follow the money.'

– R. James Woolsey, venture partner, VantagePoint, and former Director of Central Intelligence, US

'Professor Gurulé is comprehensive: he describes the problem (terrorist funding by those in the free world), analyzes the legal responses (make it a crime, freeze terrorist assets, impose regulations on financial institutions), critiques the administration's and international community's efforts to unfund terrorists (political rhetoric, not in fact backed up with effective strategies or implementation), and outlines concrete legal and administrative remedies. Would that they to whom the recommendations are addressed act on them quickly. Too much is at stake to let terrorists, who condemn the West as corrupt, get their funding to attack the US and its allies from the West itself. That would be a form of social suicide.'

– G. Robert Blakey, Notre Dame Law School, US

The September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks that claimed the lives of 2,973 innocent civilians required as much as $500,000 to stage. At the time, al Qaeda was operating on an annual budget of between $30 and $50 million. However, despite the obvious fact that terrorists need money to terrorize, preventing the financing of terrorism was not a priority for the United States or the international community prior to 9/11. Jimmy Gurulé, former Under Secretary for Enforcement in the US Department of the Treasury, provides the first book-length, comprehensive analysis of the legal regime that evolved following the terrorist attacks.

- The Travaux Préparatoires of Multilateral Treaties, 2

This work gathers together for the first time in a single publication the records of the multitude of meetings which, in the context of the newly established United Nations, led to the adoption of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide on 9 December 1948. This work will enable academics and practitioners easy access to the Genocide Convention's travaux préparatoires – an endeavour that has until now proven extremely difficult. This work will be of paramount importance for the international adjudication of the crime of genocide insofar as recourse to the “general rule of interpretation” and the “supplementary means of interpretation” under the 1969 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties is concerned.

Commentary on the 1969 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties

Mark E. Villiger

- January 2009
- ISBN 978 90 04 16804 6
- Hardback (xxxiv, 1058 pp.)
- List price EUR 215.- / US$ 318.-

The 1969 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties, regulating treaties between States, lies at the heart of international law. This commentary interprets the Convention's 85 articles clearly and precisely. It covers such major topics as reservations to treaties, their interpretation and the grounds for terminating a treaty, for instance breach. Emphasis is placed on the practice of States and tribunals and on academic writings.

It contains further sections on customary international law and the Convention's history while providing up-to-date information on ratifications and reservations. This commentary is a must for practitioners and academics wishing to establish the meaning and scope of the provisions of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties.

Georgetown Law offers one of the largest transnational legal education programs in the world. With an ideal location and a campus of major new buildings that include an international and comparative law library, Georgetown Law is one of the leading global law schools.

The array of courses dealing with transnational, international, and comparative law is extraordinarily comprehensive, numbering over 150. This curriculum is generated and sustained by over 110 full-time faculty members, more than 30 of whom are currently focused on transnational and international curriculum subjects. These full-time faculty members are joined by over 90 distinguished Washington, D.C. practitioners from inside and outside the government. In addition, faculty exchanges bring several foreign law professors to visit each year.

At its Washington, D.C. campus, Georgetown's overall student body includes about 300 foreign students from over 70 countries. Of these, approximately 190 are foreign trained lawyers enrolled in Georgetown's advanced Master of Laws (LL.M.) programs.

NEW TRANSNATIONAL INITIATIVES:

Global Health Law LLM: Georgetown University Law Center and the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies (IHEID) in Geneva, Switzerland have recently partnered to offer a new Master of Laws (LL.M.) in Global Health Law and International Institutions. The program brings together two institutions at the cutting edge of global health law and diplomacy to offer graduate students a unique opportunity to advance their knowledge and skills in a rapidly growing field of law. Our students benefit from stellar faculty and unparalleled course offerings in global and public health law, biotechnology law, bioethics, and food and drug law, as well as international law, human rights, environmental law, intellectual property, and international trade.

For more information, including how to apply to the program for the class beginning in Fall 2009, please visit <http://www.law.georgetown.edu/graduate/IHEID.htm>.

Center for Transnational Legal Studies: In Fall 2008, Georgetown inaugurated the new London-based Center for Transnational Legal Studies (CTLS). Georgetown students study alongside classmates drawn from over a dozen select partner schools, located in almost as many countries around the globe. A truly transnational faculty, drawn from many of the same schools, offers a curriculum specifically designed for those students intent on transnational careers. With this diversity of perspectives, and no "host" school or jurisdiction, students have a unique, semester-long opportunity to study transnational legal topics in a truly transnational setting.

For more information on Georgetown's vast array of International and Transnational programs, please see visit the Office of Transnational Programs website at www.law.georgetown.edu/otp.

SAY GOODBYE TO international law as we knew it.

To old ideas about environmental regulation, global financial transactions and the traditional hierarchies of domestic and international courts.

SAY HELLO TO international law as we're getting to know it.

One which recognizes that there are fewer degrees of separation between issues once treated in isolation. Like foreign investment and human rights. Or labor relations in one country and capital markets on the other side of the globe.

AT THE FOREFRONT OF THIS PRACTICE IS COLUMBIA.

With first-of-their-kind dual degree programs. Through joint programs with the U.N., as well as the schools of business, public health, and public affairs. On campus, you'll find endowed centers for Chinese, Japanese, and Korean legal studies. Elsewhere, you'll find double-degree programs with law schools in Paris, Frankfurt, and London. And everywhere we are, you'll see pioneering scholarship on everything from climate control to international terrorism.

All of it developing just as fast as the world is changing. And that's pretty fast indeed.

DUKE LAW

CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL & COMPARATIVE LAW

Spring 2009

Center for International & Comparative Law (CICL) provides an administrative framework for faculty and student initiatives at the law school. From the upcoming symposium, "General Jurisprudence," to the conference on the global impact of local environmental resource management organized by the Duke Journal of Comparative and International Law, CICL supports international and comparative legal scholarship at Duke.

7TH ANNUAL BERNSTEIN MEMORIAL LECTURE

The Annual Bernstein Lecture on Comparative Law, named in honor of the late Herbert L. Bernstein, will be given by William Twining of the University College of London on April 7th. Professor Twining will present his paper "Normative and Legal Pluralism: A Global Perspective."

INTRODUCING CICLOPS

This spring CICL will launch an occasional paper series to highlight the breadth of international and comparative legal activity at Duke. The series will include papers by Duke faculty, visiting lecturers, and visiting professors and scholars. The spring papers include:

- CICLOPs, Volume 1, The Bernstein Collection. A collection of past Bernstein lectures on comparative law, including works by Hein D. Kötz, Christian Joerges, Chibli Mallat, Richard M. Buxbaum, Suli Zhu, and Joseph Lookofsky.
- CICLOPs, Volume 2, Where NAFTA Stands. The collected presentations given at Duke Law by Gary Hufbauer, Debra Steger, and Alejandro Posadas, with Fritz Mayer.

CICL SCHOLARS PROGRAM

We are pleased to welcome Christine Windbichler and Oliver Lepsius back as CICL Scholars in the spring of 2009. This program affords visiting scholars the opportunity to stay at Duke for a short period during which they can write, lecture, and otherwise engage with the law school community.

- Professor Windbichler, from Humboldt University, Berlin, will join us in mid-spring and will present at the Global Law Workshop.
- Professor Lepsius currently holds the Chair of Public Law at the State University of Bayreuth. During his visit to Duke he will take part in the General Jurisprudence Symposium in early April.
