

Annals of the Pickett - Thomson Research Laboratory.

VOLUME I.

- ¶ This periodical is issued irregularly. The first part appeared in July, 1924; the second part was published early in June, 1925.
- ¶ One of its chief purposes is to record by photography, on a scale hitherto unattempted, the whole range of bacteria and protozoa found in man.
- ¶ The first part contained, among others, the following articles, which were illustrated by over 200 microphotographs and two coloured plates :—
- Researches on the Virus of Variola-Vaccinia.
 - Researches on the Etiology of Measles.
 - Researches on the Etiology of Scarlet Fever.
 - The Vaccinal Treatment of Scarlatinal Otorrhœa and Rhinorrhœa.
 - The Tuberculin Test in Cattle and certain Experiments with Fractions of the Tubercle Bacillus and with Detoxicated Tubercle Vaccine.
 - Researches on the best Methods of detoxicating Vaccines without thereby injuring their Antigenic properties.
 - The Classification and Identification of Germs by Microphotography.
- ¶ The subscription rate is £2 2s. 0d. per volume, post free.
