TO THOSE WISHING TO SUBMIT MANUSCRIPTS

Three copies of any article or note should be submitted, and at least one copy must be in a form suitable for sending to the printer. Footnotes should be double-spaced and placed at the end of the manuscript. Library of Congress transliteration should be used. In general, articles should not exceed twenty-five pages, except where especially justified, e.g., by extensive documentation, tables, or charts. Manuscripts will not be returned unless specifically requested and postage is provided. The policy of the Slavic Review is not to consider materials that have been published or that are being considered for publication elsewhere.

Publication of articles in the Slavic Review is ordinarily limited to those submitted by members of AAASS. Nonmembers wishing to submit manuscripts are asked to request a membership application.

Authors who wish to have their manuscripts considered anonymously should request so explicitly and prepare manuscript copies accordingly.

New Translation Journals

Soviet Archeology

Editor: Stephen Dunn

Today archeology is making enormous and exciting new discoveries that are revolutionizing our understanding of man's past. Many of the most startling revelations and most interesting interpretations of prehistory have come from the Soviet Union. Soviet Archeology, a translation journal, will provide a thorough survey of Soviet achievements from the most outstanding articles, monographs, books, or excerpts from books that appear in the USSR. This journal will also explore theoretical issues in archeology as well as Soviet innovations in methods and techniques, including reactions of Soviet scholars to the Western literature in these fields.

Science and Technology in the USSR

Editor: Thane Gustafson, Harvard University

This new translation journal explores how the Soviet Union copes with the scientific-technical explosion and how it absorbs the social, political and economic impact of technological change. Complete and accurate translations of key policy statements, news articles, scholarly papers, excerpts from books and monographs, or complete books will be published to show how the USSR sets its priorities for research and development, manages funding, trains scientists and technicians, and resolves controversies that arise in policy-making.
