Hague Institute for the Internationalisation of Law

Rule of Law in a globalising world | Hague Institute for the Internationalisation of Law (HiiL) is an international research institute that studies the challenges globalisation poses to legal systems, in particular at the national level.

Fundamental research for practical solutions | HiiL joins the best thinkers from top-level universities with practitioners in bottom-up knowledge partnerships to generate real solutions for the challenges of the law of the future.

Flexible and global | HiiL is a networked organisation with a small in-house staff and over 140 HiiL Fellows from around the world working on its projects.

Shaping the Law of the Future | HiiL is venturing on a unique and ambitious mission to think ahead of the curve about the changing nature of law in the next 20 years. [www.lawofthefuture.org]

Stimulating justice innovations | HiiL is one of the founding partners of Innovating Justice, a new platform to improve the rule of law and access to justice. [www.innovatingjustice.com]

As part of its core mission, HiiL bridges the gap between practitioners and academic communities. For this purpose HiiL maintains a variety of networks, such as

Hague Rule of Law Network (HROLN) | An international and interdisciplinary group of academics, policy-makers, and practitioners, bringing together professionals sharing a profound interest in the rule of law and a commitment to promoting it worldwide. [www.haguerolnetwork.org]

Recommended citation: HJRL

The Hague Journal on the Rule of Law is a multidisciplinary journal that aims to deepen and broaden our knowledge and understanding about the rule of law. Its two main areas of interest are: 1) theoretical issues related to the conceptualization and implementation of the rule of law in domestic and international contexts; 2) the relation between the rule of law and economic development, democratization and human rights protection. The HJRL welcomes contributions from academics and practitioners with expertise in any relevant field, including law, anthropology, economics, philosophy, political science and sociology.

The Hague Journal on the Rule of Law is supported by the Hague Institute for the Internationalisation of Law (HiiL). It is indexed by the Legal Journals Index (LJI).

EDITORIAL POLICY & GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Hague Journal on the Rule of Law publishes two categories of articles: papers (approx. 6000–10.000 words) and notes (approx. 500–3000 words). Papers are accepted on the basis of double blind peer-review. Notes are accepted on the basis of review by two or more editors of the journal. Authors should feel free to make inquiries at the Editorial Office in case they consider writing a paper or a note. Authors are kindly requested to send their manuscript to the Editorial Office at any time of the year. All submitted materials should be in English. For detailed guidelines for manuscripts, contact the editorial office or see www.assertpress.nl/cata/hjrl/fra.htm or <http://journals.cambridge.org>.

Submission and publication elsewhere

Manuscripts submitted to the HJRL must not be under consideration for publication elsewhere. Acceptance of the Editorial Board's offer to publish, implies that the author agrees to an embargo on publication elsewhere for a period of two years following the date of publication in the HJRL. After this two-year period, the author may republish the article elsewhere, provided only that the author notifies the Publisher and ensures that the Publisher is properly credited and that the relevant copyright notice is repeated verbatim.

Revision, language-editing and copy-editing

Authors are responsible for the language-editing of their texts and copy-editing in conformity with the guidelines for authors. After acceptance of a text for publication, the fully edited and correct text must be sent to the Editorial Office within four weeks. Any (minor) changes to the text must also be made within this four-week period. Authors will not receive formatted proofs for correction.

Books for Review

Books for review and proposals to review books should be addressed to the Editorial Office.

Fees

Authors will not receive a fee, but will be presented a complimentary issue of the HJRL in which their contribution appears.
