The Shortcomings of Indeterminacy in Arms Control Regimes: The Case of the Biological Weapons Convention	Jack M. Beard	271
States consider many variations in substance, structure, and obligation as trade-offs in negotiating the design of arms control agreements. Using the Biological Weapons Convention as an example, this article analyzes the dangers of adopting indeterminate language in this process. While it may be useful elsewhere, indeterminacy can frustrate arms control efforts and is particularly damaging to multilateral disarmament regimes shaped by security dilemmas involving complex dual-use technology issues.

PROGRAM OF WORK

In addition to publishing the American Journal of International Law, the ASIL offers a variety of information resources and participation opportunities for members as well as nonmembers. These programs, best viewed at www.asil.org, include: publications such as International Legal Materials and Studies in Transnational Legal Policy; electronic bulletins such as ASIL Insights, International Law In Brief, and il.Post; events such as the Annual Meeting and other gatherings in Washington, DC, and around the world; OUTREACH programs for the justice sector, the media, and other audiences; an array of resources on the ASIL Web site, such as the Electronic Information System for International Law (EISIL) and the Guide to Electronic Resources for International Law (ERG); and opportunities to be part of an active network bridging expert and non-expert communities associated with the development of international law.

PHILANTHROPY AND THE SOCIETY

The ASIL accomplishes much of its work through charitable support. The Society is grateful to its many members who contribute to the annual fund and the endowment, the foundations whose grants fund special programs, and the law firms, publishers, universities, and others that sponsor ASIL activity. The Society is particularly honored to receive contributions through the Patrons program and to be included in our members' estate plans through the ASIL Heritage Circle. We recognize these contributors below.

PATRONS

Patrons of the Society contribute $10,000 or more to the ASIL Endowment for International Law. Patrons may also be recognized posthumously upon such a donation being made in their name.
