"A lively, lucid history of America's national debt."—Forbes

HAMILTON'S BLESSING

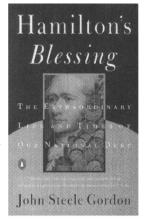

The Extraordinary Life and Times of Our National Debt
JOHN STEELE GORDON

"Brings to life the colorful characters and historical accidents that have made the national debt a uniquely American institution."

—Chicago Tribune

In a fascinating history of American finance, business historian John Steele Gordon casts the national debt in a surprisingly heroic light. Our nation's vibrant economy was conceived in debt, he argues, and the debt has been used to rescue the Union from Civil War, raise the nation out of Depression, and keep the world safe for democracy. With a new afterword by the author.

The Chemical Heritage Foundation Series in Innovation and Entrepreneurship records, analyzes, and makes known the buman story of chemical achievement. Gordon Cain is a legend among chemical engineers. His story reveals the human and economic realities that empowered mergers and acquisitions for the restructuring of the American chemical industry in the 1980s and 1990s.

Ralph Landau Professor of Economics, Center for Economic Policy Research, Stanford University

Everybody Wins! is a case study in American business enterprise told through the life of an extraordinary man: Gordon Cain—a legendary entrepreneur who when well past retirement age effected a turnaround in the commodity chemicals industry. The result was a win for management, workers, investors, and the general economy.

Everybody Wins! offers a clarion call for better management and more accountable boards of directors. It outlines a new paradigm of business management—one in which workers help businesses anticipate and embrace market change.

You, the reader, now have the opportunity to understand more about LBOs through the eyes of one of the important actors of the time. I commend this book to you.

GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

GENERAL INFORMATION

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not concurrently under consideration elsewhere and that the material—in substance as well as form—has not been previously published.

Three copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Authors should identify themselves only on a separate title page that provides name, mailing address, and telephone number. Authors must also remember not to identify themselves in the body of the manuscript; specifically, references to their own work in the text should be in the third person, and citations should be written without possessive pronouns—not "See my"

Potential contributors should initially submit hard copy, not diskettes, but it will save considerable work for all parties in the event of acceptance if authors follow a few rules from the beginning:

- · In general, use as few formatting commands as possible.
- Left justify text.
- Do not hyphenate words at the end of lines.
- · ALL material—including extracted quotations and notes—must be double spaced.
- Notes should be numbered consecutively and citations should be placed as footnotes or endnotes formatted as indicated by The Chicago Manual of Style (1993).
- Each table and figure must be accompanied by a complete source.

Each article should be accompanied by an abstract of 75–100 words outlining the main point(s) of the paper and placing the article in context. Subheads should be used to divide the manuscript into three or four sections (or more, depending on length). We do not have an upper or lower page limit, but articles usually run between 25 and 50 typescript pages, including notes and other material.

We are always eager to publish illustrations, but authors should not include originals of illustrative materials at the time of submission; photocopies of such material may be included. Authors are responsible for obtaining all illustrative materials and permissions for reproduction, and for writing captions.

Authors of accepted manuscripts will receive two copies of the issue in which the article appears, and twenty-five free offprints.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

We use the 14th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style (1993) and spell and hyphenate words according to Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary.

The journal encourages authors to use gender-neutral prose in all cases where it is not anachronistic to do so; male nouns and pronouns should not be used to refer to people of both sexes. We use the day-month-year form for dates, as 11 February 1998. Double quotation marks should be used for journal titles and direct quotation; single quotation marks are used for quoted material inside quotations.

SAMPLE CITATION FORMS
