Jury Trials

John Baldwin and Michael McConville

The authors analyse a series of jury trials heard in Birmingham and in London in 1975 and 1976. The verdicts of the jury are evaluated against the opinions of judges, lawyers, and police officers. The authors identify a large number of questionable acquittals and a smaller but more disturbing number of doubtful convictions. They demonstrate the deficiencies of current appeal procedures as a means of rectifying such injustices. £4.95

Legal Reasoning and Legal Theory

Neil MacCormick

This book is concerned with the method of reasoning whereby legal decisions are justified, and in this way contributes to a greater understanding both of practical reason and legal processes. It also makes an important contribution to the general theory of law, not least in its refutation of R. M. Dworkin's widely acclaimed thesis. £5.75

Clarendon Law Series

A Sourcebook on French Law

Systems, Methods, Outlines of Contract

Sir Otto Kahn-Freund, Claudine Lévy, and Bernard Rudden

The first edition of this work was widely and successfully used in law faculties and in courses on the French language and French institutions. The second edition covers recent major changes. New sections deal with the Conseil Constitutionnel, with the French 'Ombudsman', with recent criticisms of the judges' attitude to the ordinary litigant, and with important new statutes in the field of consumer protection. Second edition £15 paper covers £9

A Concise Legal History of South-East Asia

M. B. Hooker

This pioneer attempt to describe South-East Asian legal history is essentially a history of legal ideas, the aim being to describe the nature of law in an area which is characterized by a diversity of races, religions, and cultures. £12
