Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, together with a duplicate copy, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing and, preferably, conform to the styling of The China Quarterly.

The China Quarterly is published by the Contemporary China Institute of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Contemporary China Institute.

ELITES in the PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC of CHINA

Edited with an Introduction by
Robert A. Scalapino

Fourteen prominent scholars examine power in Mainland China; who holds it at national and local levels, how it is allocated and exercised, and what the results are in terms of policies, programmes, and goals.

In the opening essay, Gordon A. Bennett summarizes the current state of elite studies, their main trends and yet unsolved problems. Specific studies begin with elites on the national level analysing the character of the national Party elite from the Kiangsi Soviet period to 1969. Thomas W. Robinson completes the section with a timely study of the enigmatic Lin Piao. From the national level the studies turn to subnational elites. Victor C. Falkenheim's essay on the Fukien provincial leadership is followed by Heath B. Chamberlain's examination of the corresponding elements in Tientsin, Shanghai, and Canton in the years 1940–53. Lynn T. White III contributes a similar study of the leadership in Shanghai, 1954–69. Essays also focus on the military elite, elites involved in minority work, and the intellectual elite at Peking University. Donald W. Klein concludes the volume with a critical analysis of the sources for elite studies and biographical materials on China.
