The Chinese in Southeast Asia

Second Edition

By VICTOR PURCELL. Since its publication in 1951, this book has gained acceptance as the standard work on the subject. The author has brought the second edition up to date and incorporated some 50,000 words of new material, including a completely new introduction and conclusion. While some cuts were necessary to accommodate new information, most of the basic historical and descriptive matter has been retained. The revised bibliography contains an entirely new list of works in Chinese and Japanese, as well as a selection of recent Western-language works.

A Pocket Dictionary (Chinese-English) and Pekingese Syllabary

With a Supplement of New Abbreviated Characters in Official Use

By CHAUNCEY GOODRICH. This reprint is produced from the American edition of 1943, with a number of additions and changes: a biographical sketch of the author; a chronological table; the stems and branches of the Chinese sexagenary cycle and the cycles for the period 1804 to 2044; units of weights and measures; and a list of abbreviated characters now in official use in the Chinese People's Republic.

Confrontations

A Study of Indonesian Politics

By JAN M. PLUVIER, University of Malaya. In the current welter of perplexing political and nationalist movements, none is more complicated than Indonesia's. This book will be an invaluable guide to that maze, as the author examines forty years of events leading to the present "confrontation" of Malaysia.

The Oxford History of Modern India 1740-1947

By PERCIVAL SPEAR, University of Cambridge. This is a reprint of Part III of the third edition of The Oxford History of India, published in 1958. Rather than being a history of the British in India, it is a general survey of Indian history in the modern period, a study of the prelude to the new India. The treatment is comprehensive rather than selective, much basic material being covered and viewed in the perspective of history. A chronological table of important dates in Indian and world history is inserted and there is a folding map of India, in addition to seven text maps and fourteen pages of plates.

U.S. AND THE FAR EASTERN CRISIS OF 1933-1938: From the Manchurian Incident Through the Initial Stage of the Undeclared Sino-Japanese War

"Dr. Borg makes clear the methods as well as the aims of the United States as they revealed themselves in this period of Far Eastern crisis. . . . The volume is well-planned and well-written and is one which students of United States foreign policy and of Far Eastern politics will find an important addition to their libraries."—Journal of Asian Studies

"If our society adequately rewarded achievement in the literature of history Miss Borg should win a decoration. Her book, with its solid bibliographical foundations, reflects patience, industry, discerning research and documentation, and the detachment and objectivity of high scholarship."—Journal of Politics

"This craftsmanlike, fair-minded, even-tempered book makes a valuable contribution to our understanding of what surely is one of the most exasperating periods in the history of American foreign policy."—American Historical Review

"Dorothy Borg has made a major contribution to our understanding of prewar diplomacy, and the dispassionate search for facts and understanding and her great insights make her book a model for those who would write diplomatic history."—Journal of American History

ASIA IN THE MAKING OF EUROPE

Volume I (Books 1 and 2): The Century of Discovery

By DONALD F. LACH

This first part of a projected six-volume study traces the many and varied influences of Asia upon Western civilization. Lach first discusses Europe's traditional view of Asia from antiquity and the Middle Ages. Following is a review of the new channels (the spice trade, the printed word, and the Christian mission), through which fresh information was disseminated. The final section shows how India, Southeast Asia, Japan, and China, through published books and maps, became known in sixteenth-century Europe. "His tone is consistently sensible, modest, and fair-minded. And in view of the world situation today, he is recounting an important story."

—HERBERT J. MULLER, Book Week.

HISTORY OF THE INDIAN OCEAN

By AUGUSTE TOUSSAINT

Translated by JUNE GUICHARNAUD

A geohistory of the Indian Ocean from the earliest times to the present, this maritime chronicle charts the course of civilization in the islands and neighboring continental mainland, the development of their population, and the currents of migration and cross-influence. Toussaint shows how the area was affected by China and by European intervention and rivalries.

ADVANCED CONVERSATIONAL CHINESE

By SSU-YU TENG

One of the first advanced texts to approach Chinese as a spoken language. Adapted from material Professor Teng originally prepared for the Army Specialized Training Program, the varied subject matter will enable students to converse more fluently on government, politics, diplomacy, geography, history, and religion. Two short plays are included for practice in enunciation, and each lesson is followed by translation exercises to improve the student's command of reading and writing.

NEW—A thorough introductory survey of Asian history from antiquity to the present . . .

A History of ASIA

Volume One: Formation of Civilizations from Antiquity to 1600

Volume Two: Old Empires, Western Penetration, and the Rise of New Nations since 1600

By Woodbridge Bingham, University of California, Berkeley;

Hilary Conroy, University of Pennsylvania; and

Frank W. Iklé, University of New Mexico

Two new volumes comprise an integrated history of the whole of Asia from antiquity to the present. Volume One examines the civilizations of Asia, region by region, as they existed traditionally before the impact of the West. Volume Two embodies the major civilizations of Southwest Asia, India, China, Japan, and Southeast Asia, and discusses these cultures in the light of the Western impact. Each volume contains over 100 illustrations as well as useful maps. There are reading lists at the ends of the chapters. Volume One: 582 pp. 1964. $9.95 list. Volume Two: 704 pp. Spring, 1965. $9.95 list tent.

Comments on Volume One:

"I'm very delighted by the book. The textbook is the first that attempts successfully to integrate impacts of West and East upon the development of civilizations in Asia and West. The material and information contained in the textbook are clearly presented."

Y. Akashi, Geneva College

"The treatment of political and cultural subjects is comprehensive and the reading lists are most useful."
