Review of African Political Economy

EDITORS

Chris Allen and Jan Burgess, Sheffield, UK

The Review of African Political Economy has for over twenty years attempted to provide radical analysis and commentary on trends and issues in Africa. It has paid particular attention to class and gender analysis, and to marxist interpretations of change in Africa.

The Review has also been, and remains, especially concerned with the problems of Africa's economic, political and intellectual marginalisation; with the rationale for and imposition of 'free-market' development strategies, notably structural adjustment programmes, and with their social and political impact; with the continuing existence of and external support for repressive and violent regimes and movements; with the economic and political role of the African bourgeoisie; and with questions of regional, national and community conflict.

Of equal concern is the nature of popular responses to these problems, and the examination of the actions needed to overcome them. Thus the Review promotes and publishes analysis and debate on democratic struggles and grassroots movements; on the organisation and actions of women and other subordinate groups; and on popular resistance to repression and exploitation, including religious and cultural movements. The provision of an outlet for news and documents of such organisations and actions is viewed as important, and is achieved through a distinct 'Briefings' section.

International Journal of the Economics of Business

EDITORS

Eleanor Morgan, University of Bath, UK;
Mick Silver, Cardiff Business School, University of Wales, UK;
H.E. Frech III, University of California, USA

International Journal of the Economics of Business presents original research in economics that is clearly applicable to business and related public policy problems or issues. The term 'business' is used in its widest sense to encompass both public and private sector, governmental, private non-profit and cooperative organisations, as well as profit-seeking ventures. Services and distribution are included along with manufacturing and extractive industries. Coverage also includes the former Eastern Bloc and less developed countries, as well as industrialised countries. The Journal carries papers relating to: the organisation - to analyse and aid decision-making and the internal organisation of the business; the industry - to analyse how businesses interact and evolve within and across industries; and the external environment - to show how public policy, technological developments and other outside forces affect business behaviour.

ELECTRONIC ACCESS

In 1998 Carfax is making the Journal available over the Internet at no extra charge; subscribers to the journal in 1998 will be able to access 1998 issues via the Internet using RealPage software with no further payment. This applies to the 1998 volume of the journal only. For further details on how to access the electronic version please visit the Carfax Home Page at <http://www.carfax.co.uk/cfxnews.htm>

International Review of Applied Economics

MANAGING EDITOR

Malcolm Sawyer, University of Leeds, UK

Supported by an International Editorial Board

The International Review of Applied Economics is devoted to the practical applications of economic ideas. Applied economics is widely interpreted to embrace empirical work and the application of economics to the evaluation and development of economic policies. The interaction between empirical work and economic policy is an important feature of the journal.

The journal is international in scope. Articles that draw lessons from the experience of one country for the benefit of others, or that seek to make cross-country comparisons are particularly welcomed. Contributions which discuss policy issues from theoretical positions neglected in other journals are also encouraged. Although the International Review of Applied Economics associates itself broadly with the non-neo-classical tradition, it does not identify itself with any specific theoretical or political position.

ONLINE FOR 1998 International Review of Law, Computers & Technology

EDITOR

Dr Kenneth Russell, Visiting Professor at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas, USA

Supported by an International Editorial Board

International Review of Law, Computers & Technology is an international review devoted to the study of both the principles and practices bearing on the interaction of computers, other new technologies, and the law. The rapid advances made by technology are radically changing the face of our society. New media now exist in areas such as the creation and the distribution of information and entertainment. They must still be governed by law but which laws are relevant, and which new laws need to be established?

Articles are published from a wide variety of disciplines and perspectives. Until 1995, Volume 9, the journal was published as a Yearbook but now it is published as the International Review of Law, Computers & Technology and appears twice a year.

International Journal of Logistics: research and applications

EDITOR

Peter Hines, University of Wales, Cardiff, UK

Supported by an International Editorial Board

International Journal of Logistics: research and applications will publish original and challenging work that has a clear applicability to the business world. As a result the journal concentrates on articles of an academic journal standard but aimed at the practitioner as much as the academic. The term 'logistics' is taken in its broadest context with articles crossing the various traditional functional boundaries of the complete supply-chain.

Articles are drawn from, but not restricted to, the logistics sub-process areas of distribution (including third-party distribution); manufacturing, marketing, material management, purchasing, stock management, transport, warehousing; the logistics and supply-chain process itself; specific areas within logistics such as new technology, systems and methods; and people related issues in the supply chain.

Notes for Contributors

1. Addresses for editorial correspondence are given on the inside front cover.
2. The complete style guide is available from the editor or by accessing www.iup.edu/ec/ If you have a recent copy of JHET, you can use it to resolve questions not answered here or in that guide.
3. The final version should be in Word or WordPerfect, or in an ASCII text readable by WordPerfect. Please send a 3.5" disk and one hard copy.
4. All copy must be double-spaced, including displayed (indented) quotations, footnotes, and the references. Do not justify the right margin.
5. The paper should begin with the title, centered. Under that the word BY should appear, and under that your name, centered. Subsection titles are in capitals and are flush left. Paragraphs are indented three spaces. The first word begins on the fourth space.
6. Footnote numbers should be indicated by superscripts in the text. All footnotes should be collected together and put, double-spaced, beginning with a new page, at the end of the paper.
7. Citations in the text must be in round parentheses, with a comma between the author's name and the year. The page numbers are preceded by p., or pp. if multiple pages are cited.
8. Symbolic letters are italicized, whether in an equation or in the text. Numbers in equations and in symbolic terms in the text are not italicized, even if they are subscripts or superscripts.
9. Unless you do not have an italic font, do not use underlines. Use italic type. For example, all book titles in the references should be in italics.
10. The first time a person's last name appears (except in a citation), his or her first name and middle initial should also be given or the initials of the given names, no matter how well-known the person may be.
11. The references, double-spaced, should appear immediately after the end of the text. Examples:
